BULBS

AMERICA FOR THE AMERICANS!!

You need no longer be dependent on The Netherlands for your Tulip supply.
Since 1914 we have raised Tulips in Michigan with great success and we are strong for them. You, too, can raise your own supply of Tulips. (See official report by the Department of Agriculture in the Florists' Review of May, 1921.)
If you are alive to a paying proposition, act at once and take advantage of this.

Owing to limited space on our farm at Grand Rapids, we are forced to sell the following named varieties at a sacrifice:
Early Tulips, Yellow Prince and Artus.
May-flowering, or Cottage Tulips, Caledonia, Gesneriana Lutea, Gesneriana Spathulata, Golden Crown, Ida and La Merveille.
Darwin Tulips, Clara Butt, Gretchen and Inglescombe Yellow.
Planting stock, 2-year-old.....$6.00 per 1000
Planting stock, 1-year-old..... 3.00 per 1000

Grasp this: Next year you will pay $4.00 per 1000 duty on Tulips. Please send cash with order.
MICHIGAN BULB PROPAGATING CO.,
R. F. D. No. 1, Grand Rapids, Mich.

LETTER FROM FERD. FISCHER.
To My Customers in America:
Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.
I have paid strict attention to my salmon and red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed soon will be offered by the American Bulb Co., who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Co. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world. Yours very truly, FERD. FISCHER.

POINSETTIAS

TRUE CALIFORNIA POINSETTIAS.

This stock is grown from stock plants grown in California. They can be grown quite different from the old variety of Poinsettias. Last winter at times we would grow them real dry, then real wet, then in a 70 degree temperature, again in a 50 degree temperature to try them out.

After such treatment, we grew them with beautiful foliage from the ground up, and with an extra large bloom of the most dazzling splendor.

We are offering 2-in. stock of this same variety, as we grow no other, at $10.00 per 100.
Cash with order.

ASTERS DYING OFF.

My aster plants, of which a sample is enclosed, are gradually dying, drying up about even with the ground. I do not find any worms in the plants and the soil is rich, since it was planted in 1920 to a crop of potatoes. Three years previous to this it was planted to asters and again this year to asters. Will you advise me as to the trouble and suggest a remedy? H. F. M.—Ill.

The dying off is due to one of several causes, the most probable of which would seem to take place in the early stages of growth. Seedlings are often allowed to stay too long in the flats and when transplanted are put too deep in the soil for their own good. Seedlings develop no trouble until they have been planted out and have made considerable growth, not infrequently nearing the flowering stage, when they start to dry up and die. There is nothing you can do beyond pulling up and burning the plants which have this stem rot. It seldom affects asters grown in the open air, but is destructive to greenhouse-started seedlings. C. W.

DO YOU KNOW THIS WORM?

We are having trouble with our asters and gladioli. There is a white worm, about one-fourth of an inch long, with a brown head, that works rapidly at the roots, later going into the stem and killing the plants. Other aster plants seem to have a sort of dry rot, the stems turning black and falling over. Can you advise as to some method by which the worms can be killed?
E. S. S.—Ill.

I have had no experience with this particular worm and perhaps some reader may be able to suggest a remedy which will help E. S. S.

Carbon bisulphide will generate a gas which suffocates these and all other soil pests, but it will be a considerable task to treat a large area with this remedy. Holes are bored with a pointed stick, twelve to eighteen inches apart each way, preferably when the soil is damp, and a teaspoonful of the liquid is poured into each hole, which is then immediately covered. The carbon soon evaporates and must be used immediately. It usually comes in 1-pound cans. Since it is of an explosive nature, be sure not to have any exposed lights near it.

The aster stem-rot is usually caused by allowing the plants to crowd too long in the seed flats and, when transplanting, they are buried to keep them erect. This starts the stem-rot that later develops. Planting in ground which has previously had the disease aggravates the trouble. Pull up and burn all diseased plants. C. W.

HARDY GARDEN HELIOTROPE.

What is the true name for hardy garden heliotrope? D. F. C.—Minn.

The botanical name of the garden heliotrope, which is a herbaceous perennial and not the tender plant offered so much for bedding out purposes, is Valeriana officinalis. It is an aromatic plant and its flowers are sometimes white, but more often purplish in color.
C. W.

CLUB ROOT ON CYCLAMENS.

Some of our cyclamens develop club root. Will you kindly give information as to the cause and suggest a remedy, if there is any? T. L. C.—Minn.

The writer has had no experience with club root on cyclamens. It attacks the brassica family outdoors a good deal, but the writer was unaware that cyclamens suffered from its attacks. Usually a too acid soil is productive of club root and, perhaps, the addition of some lime in your potting soil would be of benefit. Can any other readers, with experience in club root on cyclamens, give us their experience and advice? C. W.

VARIETY OF ACHIMENES.

Will you tell us the correct name of the flower which is enclosed?
N. K.—O.

It is a variety of achimenes of the natural order gesneriaceæ, to which gloxinias and gesneras belong. These three plants want the same treatment. All need shade and succeed well in summer in ordinary greenhouses or in shaded coldframes with sashes left a little tilted.

Safe and dependable for every use under glass or in the field.

STEVIA FOR CHRISTMAS.

I have a bench of stevia which I desire to get in bloom for Christmas. Will you tell me when to pinch it for the last time, so it will be on time? I can run the house at any degree of temperature that is wanted. C. C. M.—N. Y.

If you want a good length of stem on your stevia, it would not be advisable to pinch after August 1. Stevia needs a low temperature and if you keep it at 45 to 48 degrees at night, it should be in bloom on time. Should it seem at all tardy, give it a little more warmth. The cooler you keep it the better it will be in quality. C. W.

CUTTING BACK POINSETTIAS.

Would it do to cut back poinsettias now if they have made a growth of from three to six feet? Do you think they would come again in time for Christmas? I am afraid that they are too far advanced at this time of the year. P. S.—Mich.

There is still time to cut the tops from your poinsettias, have them break and make good stems before the bracts show, but do it at once. If you are growing your plants in beds or benches and there is ample head room, I should prefer not to pinch. These starts, if left alone, should produce remarkably fine bracts for cutting. C. W.

You Ain't Too Old to Learn How to Play Again. Jim

I said it and I mean it—we all can learn how to play again and after using some of the different glazing cements that have been sold to the greenhouse men in the past years, using my JIM'S ELASTIC is just playing.

JIM'S ELASTIC is a glazing putty that comes ready for instant use in a beautiful GRAY COLOR free from lumps and works slick in any kind of a glazing machine or putty bulb.

JIM'S ELASTIC sets up fine, it don't get hard and crack, and after it's been on for several years it can easily be cut off if you break any glass.

JIM'S ELASTIC is an all around glazing putty and my formula is getting the best send-off of any material on the market.

If you own greenhouses, you owe it to yourself to get acquainted with me as soon as possible, for JIM'S ELASTIC is good for bedding on new greenhouses and fine for running over the top of the bars on old houses.

I spent about eight hours on this little talk trying to make the greenhouse men sit up and take notice and tell them about my JIM'S ELASTIC and after all that time the thought struck me that every friend that I've made came thru my offer on a free sample, and that if the trade find out that I'm not stingy with my material or afraid to show it to them, that it would please them, so here's another offer I'm making to you.

Use the coupon below or write me a letter and I'll send you free of charge a sample of the finest glazing putty that you ever saw.

Playfully yours,

JIM.

Gentlemen:---
Enclosed please find check for Soil Grinder. We gave this Grinder a thorough test yesterday, and we are highly well pleased with it. It surely is a great time saver. We find there is no waste in the soil, all the small stones are ground up
We are not using much soil at present but we ran this about an hour yesterday without a hitch. Respectfully yours,

Pictures do not always do justice to the appearance of a greenhouse.

Take, for instance, the above houses which we recently built for the City of Chicago, Tuberculosis Sanitarium. You never saw a better job of concrete work in the walls, all straight as a die and cast smooth and of even consistency.

Gutters and purlins are straight and true. All joints in the woodwork are neatly made. The glass is evenly laid and the putty scraped off clean.

It's the kind of a job to be proud of and it's the kind we always do.

When do you want us to give you an estimate?

Strout Builds Big

How things have changed!

It used to be when a man reached that time in life when his business put him on Comfortable Street, that he sort of stayed content to just stay there and be contented. But now, a man so organizes his business, that when he arrives at the time when he goes south fishing winters and plays golf summers, he has men in his business who keep right on forging ahead. They keep on building on what has been solidly built.

So it is that men like Strout, of Biddeford, Maine, stay big and keep on building big.

He counsels, guides and inspires, and his right-hand men, Whitney and Libby, "carry on."

They have just put up themselves one of our Iron Frames, 60 feet by 300 feet, and a Semi-Iron propagating house 21 feet by 67 feet.

Say what you will, we simply have to admit that even our expert erection men, never did a better job.

Next week will show you some specially interesting interiors and tell you more about the whole layout.

SWEET PEAS

EARLY WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING

I have the agency for Burpee's Seed, also Zvolanek's Seed; you will not make a mistake by buying Irwin's Seed, so take your choice.
TERMS: Less 5% cash with order. On charge orders, postage will be charged. New Seed is ready.

IRWIN'S VARIETIES

All the following are grown for me on contract, by one of the most reliable growers in California.

NOVELTIES

Prices on the following, 1 oz., $1.00; 4 ozs., $4.00; 1 lb., $15.00

Columbia—The best large flowering pink and white, same as Xmas Pink and White Orchid, but a decided improvement.

Prices on the following, 1 oz., $2.00; 4 ozs., $6.00; 1 lb., $20.00

All White—Early Giant White, long stems, one of the best White Sweet Peas to date.
Early Irene—Lavender, like Florence Nightingale, very fine.
Fair Maid—Early, finest blush pink, suffused salmon on white ground.
Rose Charm—Early, bright rose, with very large blooms. Produces four flowers on long stems.
Madonna—Early, surpassing any black seeded white variety, the best pure white, with extra large blooms, measuring 2½ inches across. Best novelty of the year.

STANDARD VARIETIES

Prices on the following, Irwin's varieties, ½ oz., 50c; 1 oz., 75c; 4 ozs., $2.75; 1 lb., $10.00.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

GETTING PAY FOR PLANTING

To increase our success as florists we must learn not only how to grow better flowers, but also how to sell more of them, and, in addition, how to collect the money for them with the smallest margin of loss. This article concerns the last-named subject, fully as important as the others.

OCCASIONALLY it becomes the unpleasant task of a florist or nurseryman who has set out shrubs and trees on residential premises to have recourse to law to collect his bill. The peculiar nature of this type of work and of the materials used gives such suits a different aspect from those most numerous in the courts. It would be well, therefore, if florists and nurserymen knew the attitude of the law in such cases. This is fully discussed in this article in connection with the consideration of a particular case cited by a reader of The Review.

The case presented is as follows: A, a nurseryman, sold to B some shrubs to be planted on residential property, which the latter had contracted to buy. B failed to keep up his payments on the property and it reverted to the seller, C, who afterward resold the property to D. D has become the absolute owner. The question is whether or not A can compel C or D to pay for the shrubs. If not, can A remove the shrubs or enforce a lien against the property? The account is not two years old at this time.

It is quite clear, on the facts presented, that neither C nor D is personally liable to A for the bill incurred by B. The credit appears to have been extended to B, and neither C nor D could become personally liable without having made an express or implied promise to pay. It is a fundamental principle of law that one cannot become indebted on a contract obligation without his consent.

Can Shrubs Be Removed?

The next question is: Can A remove the shrubs? There is nothing to disclose his right to remove them, and existence of the right is doubtful. We surmise that the shrubs were sold on open account, without reservation of any contract lien. If so, that is decisive against the right to remove them. It would be decisive even as against B, the original purchaser. Where one sells personal property on open credit, without reserving title as security for payment of the price, absolute title vests in the buyer, and his subsequent failure to pay invests the seller with no lien against the goods. The only qualification of this rule is that, under the statutes of many of the states, movable property which has retained its identity as personalty may be seized in satisfaction of a judgment obtained on account of the purchase price. We do not believe that these laws would be held to cover the cases where trees and shrubs are sold and become affixed to the real estate by planting.

But, even if it should appear that A reserved title to the shrubs by written agreement, that would not necessarily be binding on C or D, although binding on B. It may be that the agreement could be enforced as against C if he still remained the owner of the property, particularly if the shrubs could be removed without leaving the real estate in a damaged condition. But, as against D, it seems quite clear, in the light of what the courts have decided, that the shrubs could not be removed, unless D bought the place with knowledge that the shrubs had not been paid for and that the seller of the same had reserved title to secure payment of the price. And, as to D, we do not believe that recording of the contract reserving title to the shrubs would be sufficient to put him on notice. He was entitled to assume, in the absence of information to the contrary, that the shrubs were a part of the real estate and if the real estate records showed no lien on account of the purchase price he would not be charged with notice, although the contract might be filed among the public records affecting personal property.

An Illinois Decision.

These conclusions, so far as concerns the point that D took good title to the shrubs, is supported by the decision of the Illinois Supreme court in the case of Smith vs. Price, 39 Ill. 28. There it was held that a contract purchaser of land was entitled to enjoin the seller from removing nursery stock from the premises, although it had been verbally agreed that the seller might remove it. If this is true of nursery stock, there are stronger reasons for applying the same and similar rules to cases where trees, shrubbery, etc., have been permanently planted. The Illinois court said in the cited case:

"While fruit trees and ornamental shrubbery grown upon premises leased for nursery purposes would probably be held to be personal property, as between the landlord and tenant, yet there is neither authority nor reason for saying that, as between vendor and vendee, such trees and shrubbery would not pass with a sale of the land. They are annexed to and a part of the freehold. As between vendor and vendee, even trade fixtures and annual crops pass with the land where possession is given. Under the contract of sale and the delivery of possession by Price to Smith, the latter became the owner of the trees as well as of the soil, and it would be a violation of the most familiar rules of evidence to receive proof of a verbal arrangement contemporaneous with the written contract and impairing its legal effect. The parties, in executing the written instrument, deliberately made it the exclusive evidence of the terms of their agreement. This instrument shows a sale of the land in such terms as to pass the trees. No reservation is made, and to permit the vendor now to show that there was a verbal agreement for their reservation, would be to permit him to prove a verbal contract, inconsistent with the legal import of that executed by the parties under their hands and seals. This the law forbids.''

Legal Right to Lien

When florists, nurserymen or landscape gardeners have made plantings of bedding plants, shrubs or trees, they occasionally find the collection of payment therefor is hindered by change in legal title to the property on which the planting was made. What their legal rights are in such cases is set forth in this article, prepared for The Review by an attorney conversant with horticultural legal tangles.

In the case of Maples vs. Millon, 31 Conn. 598, it was decided by the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors that trees and shrubs planted in a nursery for the temporary purpose of cultivation and growth became subject to a real estate mortgage covering the premises. The court said:

''Trees and shrubs are generally as much a part of the realty as the soil itself, whether growing upon it naturally, or planted and cultivated by the hand of man. It is, therefore, incumbent upon the party claiming that they are personal chattels, which do not pass with the transfer of the land, to show that such was not the intention of the parties.''

A conclusion similar to this was reached by the Colorado Supreme court in the case of Dubois vs. Bowles, 30 Colo. 44, except that it was there held that during the period for redemption from a mortgage, the mortgagor is entitled to sell, in the ordinary course of trade, such nursery stock as is suitable for transplanting.

In Adams vs. Beadle, 47 Iowa 439, the Iowa Supreme court declared that a mortgage of premises on which nursery stock was growing covered such stock, as against a chattel mortgage given by the mortgagor against the stock.

Trees in Nursery.

In passing, it is interesting to note the decision of the appellate division of the New York Supreme court, in the case of Hamilton vs. Austin, 36 Hun Reports, 138. There it was decided that, although trees grown in a nursery expressly for sale as merchandise are covered by a mortgage on the land, yet it is not waste for a tenant of nursery grounds, who has entered thereon after a mortgage has been given upon them, to remove and sell, in good faith, and in the usual course of business, growing nursery stock, if this be done before an action to foreclose the mortgage has begun, and not in apprehension of the foreclosure or for the purpose of injuring the freehold and security. The court said:

''Trees reared in nursery grounds expressly for sale as merchandise possess none of the legal characteristics of fixtures. Fixtures are articles which have an existence independent of a freehold, and are afterwards annexed to and become a part of it. The trees in dispute never had an existence independent of the freehold, were not designed for use in connection with it, but were there solely for growth, and destined to become a part of other realty. Nursery trees more nearly resemble emblements [crops], though they are not strictly such, emblements being the annual product or fruit of things sown or planted. Hops, berries and the like are emblements, but the roots and bushes from which they grow are perennial and not strictly emblements. While the rules for determining the rights to fixtures and emblements, as between mortgagors and mortgagees, are not strictly applicable to the question involved, yet they throw some light upon it. Emblements reared by tenants entering subsequent to a mortgage, if growing at the time of the foreclosure sale, pass to the purchaser. But if the tenant, in the usual course of husbandry, gathers the emblements before sale on foreclosure, they belong to him, and he is not liable in an action for waste.

''Waste is an improper destruction or material alteration or deterioration of the freehold, or of things forming an essential part of it, done or suffered by a person rightfully in possession as a tenant, or having but a partial estate, like a mortgagor. It is not waste for a tenant of nursery grounds, entering subsequent to a mortgage, to remove and sell in good faith, and in the usual course of business, growing nursery stock, if done before foreclosure is begun, and not in apprehension of foreclosure or for the purpose of injuring the freehold and the security.''

It is to be borne in mind that the cases here under consideration are unlike the one presented for consideration, in that this is a case where shrubs were sold for permanent planting, while the cases cited involved situations where nursery stock was in its temporary growing places. Still, as noted, nursery stock is part of the real estate, if not removed in the ordinary course of business by the mortgagor or tenant in possession. These cases are here mentioned with a view to giving a general survey of the character of trees, shrubs, plants, etc., as part of the real estate on which they are growing.

A Greenhouse Case.

Another decision worthy of note is that handed down by the Maine Supreme Judicial court, in the case of Young vs. Chandler, 102 Maine, 251. That involved a florist's business, and the facts were as follows: Plaintiff bought from one James Smith, Sr., a greenhouse with its contents, consisting of potted plants, and plants maturely grown but not severed from the soil, and loam prepared for gardening purposes. The greenhouse had been removed by Smith from its original location and placed on posts on land belonging to his son. The greenhouse was attached to a barn, through which a door was cut to communicate between the barn and the greenhouse. A heating plant was installed in the basement of the barn, to heat the greenhouse by means of pipes, etc. The land had been previously mortgaged by young Smith to defendant, who foreclosed his mortgage and became purchaser of the premises at the foreclosure sale. Subsequently plaintiff attempted to remove the greenhouse, as well as its contents. Passing upon a contest between plaintiff and defendant as to whether the former was entitled to remove any of this property, the court said:

''If the defendant's title to the realty had been acquired simply by his deed from James G. Smith, by whose consent the greenhouse was erected, his rights would have been subject to the owner of the fixtures, but as he was the mortgagee of the realty at the time the structure was erected, it became a part of the mortgage security and by foreclosure he became the owner by accession, unless his consent to the erection is shown. There seems to be no evidence of his consent, and no fact or circumstance from which any agreement on his part may be presumed that the greenhouse should remain personal property after annexation.

''The status of the other classes of personal property described in the writ is to be determined by the more liberal rule which prevails between landlord and tenant. The plants in pots and fertilized loam remaining on the premises were not of the nature of fixtures, but movable property which the florist had the same right to sell as was his admitted right to sell the hothouse plants. The stock plants, which, although matured, had not been severed from the soil, were emblements [products of the soil], which the tenant, or his vendee, had the right to remove during the term, or within a reasonable time after its termination. As to this class of property, the case is to be distinguished from Bryant vs. Pennell, 61 Maine, 108, where the mortgage included plants and shrubs, and it was there held that the cuttings passed to the mortgagee by accession; but these plants were a new acquisition of property, having no relation to any class existing at the time the mortgage was given, and belonged to the tenant as the fruits of his industry.''

Right to Lien against Land.

Coming back to the specific question raised by our correspondent, the query remains: Is A, the nurseryman, entitled to enforce a mechanic's lien against the premises?

It is doubtful that a lien can be enforced. It seems that the Illinois mechanic's lien law, which governs in this case, is not broad enough to cover a case of this kind, although there is no apparent reason why the legislature could not give a lien to nurserymen and florists, as well as to carpenters and painters.

The Illinois act, as amended in 1919, limits the benefits of a mechanics' lien to builders, etc., and those who ''fill, sod or excavate, or do landscape work thereon.'' There does not seem to be room for doubt that a lien may be enforced to cover shrubbery, etc., furnished as part of a contract to do landscape work, but it will probably not be argued that selling shrubs to be planted by the buyer himself around a cottage constitutes landscape work.

Furthermore, in order to preserve a lien, when granted by statute, steps

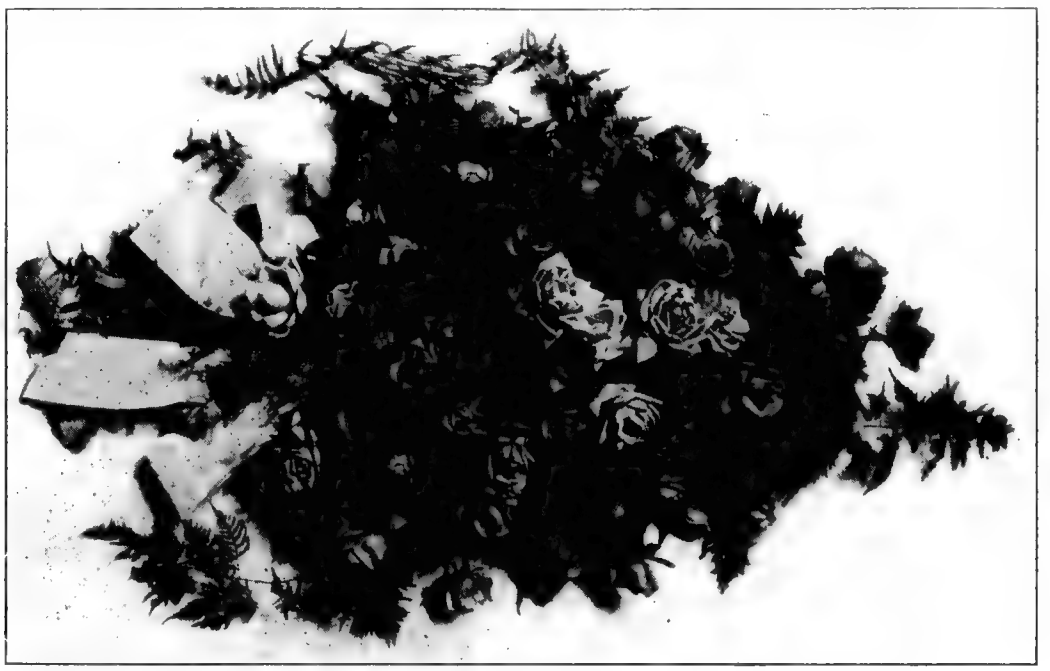
FUNERAL SPRAYS.

Supplanting Designs.



More and more the funeral spray or cluster is taking the place of designs, because it is more natural and graceful and permits a greater variety of arrangement and combination of kinds and colors of flowers. Patrons of refined taste often choose a spray in preference to a design, for it can be made as elaborate and costly as one wishes, and at least as much art can be put into a large spray as into a design. The customers realize that a design, at best, is artificial looking, for the design must have a certain fixed form of outline which is really out of place in a spray.

It is true, however, that thousands of florists all over the country are striving to make stiff, formal bunches instead of loose, feathery, artistic arrangements, because they forget that the funeral bunch is not a design, but a natural clustering together of one kind or several kinds of flowers, as the case may be.

The Right Materials.

The selection of the flowers to be used; the wiring of the greens for the foundation of the bunch; the finer greens used to give the delicate, lacy effect—all these points must be taken into consideration at the outset in order to get good results.

Long-stemmed flowers are always preferable. Nevertheless, short-stemmed flowers can be wired and then grouped into small clusters of from two to four flowers each, by using 18-inch wires to give the desired length and then covering the wires with asparagus, hardy ferns or maidenhair ferns. The long stems or wires are absolutely essential to the arrangement, for the short stems produce a low, flat, mussy looking bunch, with none of the fluffiness or height which is so desirable in funeral sprays.

A Typical Spray of Roses on a Background of Asparagus.

A Spray in White and Lavender.

Never use more than two, or at the most three, varieties of flowers in one spray. The same rule applies to colors, for too many colors form a heterogeneous mass. For instance, if white roses and lavender sweet peas are to be used, the greater part of the bunch should be composed of the white roses, and the lavender peas should be gathered into a delicate bunch just where the stems of the roses are caught and the bunch ends, thus covering the stems of the roses. Then a finish should be given to the whole cluster with the addition of a few sprays of asparagus. Ribbon of similar shade, in this case either lavender or white, may be used, but often ribbon detracts from the bunch rather than adds. Therefore the true artist uses little ribbon and then only when he decides that it adds materially to the color scheme or to the finish of the arrangement.

Mixing two kinds of flowers throughout the bunch is undesirable. They should be kept distinctly separate. However, two or three might be intermingled artistically beyond the color line.

A Typical Spray of Carnations on a Background of Asparagus.

Poising the Flowers.

Care should be taken, after the cluster is finished, to poise certain separate flowers, for, having been previously wired, they will stay just where the designer wishes them to be. He must give the finishing touches by bending the wired flowers up and out of the mass of blossoms and greens into which they have been gathered, while the cluster is being tied together. This is just where many designers fail, because they do not poise or balance their clusters after they are put together. Good designers do not fuss with a bunch after it is completed, but they pause just long enough to impart the artistic touch before their work leaves their hands. The large clusters or sprays are used a great deal for caskets.

Casket Mounds.

Casket blankets are giving way to the more artistic and natural casket mounds, which have for their foundation a low mound of moss formed on narrow strips of wood or wire frame. This is covered with ferns, smilax or any suitable green and topped with long sprays of asparagus, preferably Sprengeri. Then the flowers are mounted on long wires and green sticks, and are arranged so as to have a drooping effect out from the center of the mound, falling gracefully over the sides of the casket. Still longer garlands of the flowers are made by wiring long sprays of the asparagus together with the flowers and anchoring them into the sides of the mound.

The mound may be made to cover the entire casket or it may begin at the name plate and extend to the foot of the casket. Roses, lilies and orchids make a charming combination for a casket mound. One made entirely of orchids is rich and handsome. Roses and valley are also good for this purpose.

SMALL REFRIGERATION UNITS.

A florist has handed me the page from a recent issue of The Review carrying this inquiry: "Kindly advise if it would pay us to install an ice machine when the ice bill is $5 per week.—H. & B.—Pa.

"Can any reader answer in the affirmative? What is the name and address of the manufacturer of a reliable machine for refrigerating small display boxes in retail flower stores?—Ed."

I would respectfully call attention to the enclosed circular of the Rottel Refrigerating Machine Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., from which you will understand that the machine described is one that is not dangerous, is odorless and not harmful to either the health of persons or plant life, employing no fumes or gases that are detrimental. The cost of operating an average 1-ton plant is from $12 to $18 electric bill and from $2 to $3 water bill per month. Beginning with October a half-ton unit will be available, which will be amply large for small installations and will cost less. Our blower system for florists is by far the best cooling that has yet been employed and in conjunction with our gas-tight machine using no injurious fumes would say that our installations are ideal for florists. We trust this information will be of some assistance in answering the questions of your subscriber.

DEER WINDOW NOT DEAR.

A striking autumn window display was recently installed at the store of the Washington Floral Co. by its manager, J. Harper Hetherington, attracting widespread attention. This store is located on one of the busiest corners in the city of Washington. All automobiles proceeding down Fourteenth street stop in front of it upon the signal of the traffic officer stationed at the intersection of New York avenue. These stops are frequent, so that much advertising benefit is had in consequence.

The main feature of the window is the deer to be seen emerging from a thicket of leaves and brush. The "scenery" was brought in by David G. Grillbortzer, president of the Washington Floral Co., from his farm in Virginia. However, he does not produce livestock of the type that goes into the making of traveling bags and purses, and so the alligators in the foreground were secured from Edward S. Schmid, who specializes in animals.

There is a little log cabin and a small pond, in which the alligators disport themselves, and moss and leaves and logs and stones, all of which added to the general effect of the display without costing much of anything.

"Displays of this sort," said Mr. Hetherington, "work out well. They do not cost anything in real money, yet they bring in huge returns in the way of advertising the store. They are particularly helpful when flowers are high in price or scarce, and a setting such as this will last a long time before having to be changed. Any florist in any city can obtain the 'wild' animals necessary for such a scene from a dealer in animals in exchange for the display of a card announcing the fact that the 'properties' were furnished by him."

GROWING EASTER LILY BULBS

The second and final installment of an article entitled "The Production of the Easter Lily in Northern Climates," written by David Griffiths, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

THE previous installment of this article dealt with seedling stocks up to the time they are ready to be propagated vegetatively, as the Easter lily is usually produced. If these same stocks are to be grown continuously, the handling must, of course, be modified. Normally, the lily bulbs will be planted in late autumn; but if the first-year seedlings have been flowered in the greenhouse the bulbs will have to be planted out as soon as the ground can be worked in the spring.

The character of the field planting will probably resolve itself into a bed eventually, mainly on account of the advantage of a mulch, which becomes an excessive burden in any but the most intensive form of culture. No better method of planting can be recommended than the Dutch bed, in which the planted space is three feet wide, with a 12-inch to 15-inch path between the beds. The bulbs are planted seven to nine or more to the row across the bed.

The bulbs should be separated into four or five sizes before planting. In spring plantings of the seedling bulbs out of the house, two sizes will probably be sufficient; for in this case the bulbs will be large, with little, if any, propagation. They will be simply the large seedling bulbs. Assuming that the rows are uniformly six to eight inches apart, the larger of these sizes can be planted about seven to the row and the smaller nine to the row. They should be uniformly spaced and set up. After the seedlings have been grown outside for a year, however, there will be a large propagation of bublets, and consequently it will be better to make four or five sizes.

Planting the Seedling Bulbs.

In starting the planting on the bed plan, it is necessary to line out the beds carefully with taut lines, marked off by running a spade down two or three inches along the line and scraping the soil toward the center of the bed from either side. The soil is then thrown out of the first bed to a depth of about four inches and the bottom is raked to a level. The bulbs are then set and spaced, as already described. The soil from the opening of the second bed is used to cover the bulbs in the first, and so on to the end of the plat.

After the first year there will be more than two sizes, as there will be plenty of stem bulblets at the next digging. It will then be necessary to plant a larger number to the row. One may have fourteen and twenty-one to the row set up, and another size strewn along the row about one to the inch. The latter should not be covered so deeply as the large bulbs.

A modification of the foregoing method of planting which obviates the moving of so much soil has proved satisfactory. The ground is prepared as before and preferably floated or rolled. Rows are then opened up lengthwise of the bed with a wheel hoe having a plow attachment. A row is opened and planted, and then the second row is opened and the first covered by the same operation. Five or six of these rows six to eight inches apart are planted; then a row is skipped for a path and the next bed is started. Either of these forms of setting gives a thick planting, which it is believed is the most economical of space, labor and materials.

Date of Planting.

In vegetative propagation the time of planting will always be late autumn, though the date will vary with the locality. There are two important requirements that should be met. The bulbs should be well rooted before the ground gets so cold that no growth can take place. On the other hand, they should be planted so late that top growth will not take place before winter. The grower should endeavor to strike a balance between these two extremes, remembering that this lily does not stop growing so long as the moisture and temperature conditions are favorable. It is this characteristic that makes the crop a precarious one on portions of the gulf coast, where suitable growing weather for it is likely to be interspersed with sudden drops of temperature which are severe enough to cut the top growth.

In the climate of Washington, D. C., the best time to plant is about November 1. Even at this late date the plants sometimes come through the soil in open winters and are somewhat yellowed by subsequent cold weather in early spring, but no injury has been apparant thus far.

The matter of a mulch is of sufficient importance to be treated separately; indeed, it has sometimes seemed that a mulch expressed the difference between success and a large measure of failure in growing these plants under field conditions.

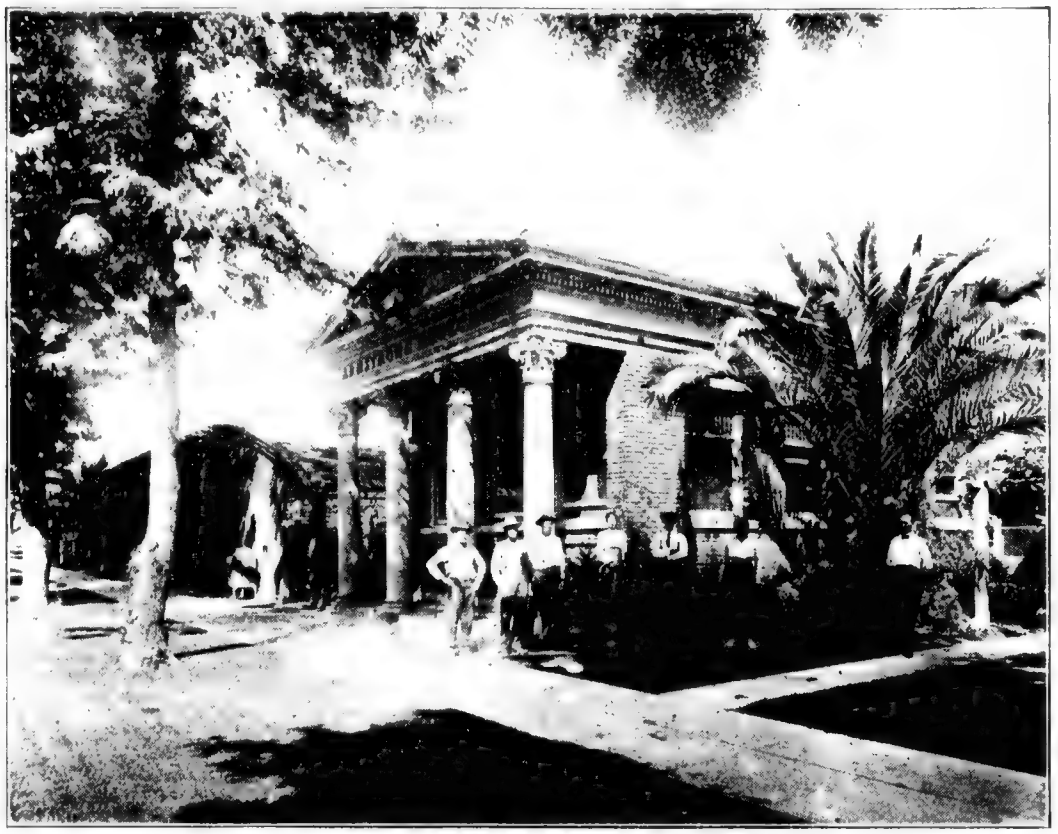
The mulch serves a dual purpose. It is an adjunct to the fertilizer applied and a protective covering as well. The application should consist of an inch or two of manure. The material should be either fine or strawy and not cloddy, so as not to interfere with the plants coming through.

The application should be made in early winter, after the ground has cooled off sufficiently so that growth is stopped, and it should remain during the growing season.

A summer mulch is considered as important in the culture of this lily as a winter one. Most lilies grow where there is a soil cover of some kind—many of them where this cover is a grassy one and others where the ground is just as effectively protected by brush, under and between which the lilies grow, sticking their heads above the canopy to flower.

Lilium longiflorum, with the forms of which we are dealing, produces a mass of roots from the stem above the bulb and near the surface of the ground. For the best results these roots, as well as those from the bulb, must have good conditions for development and must not be disturbed. This condition is admirably produced by a manure mulch, which not only furnishes plenty of fertility but prevents the soil from drying out and baking and also equalizes its temperature to a remarkable degree. One should keep in mind that this lily, like most other lilies, likes to have its feet moist and cool and protected both summer and winter, but its head must be in full light.

Irregular Blooming of Seedlings.



Attention was called in a general way, in the first installment of this article, to the irregular blooming of a seedling generation. The experimental stocks in 1920, sown November 1, 1919, began to flower in early July, at the same time as the outdoor vegetatively propagated plants. The last of the progeny did not open their flowers before the end of May, 1921. All of these seedlings were kept under precisely the same conditions from the time of sowing the seed, and all operations, such as pricking off, potting, etc., were performed in as short a time as ordinarily would be possible. In spite of this identical handling, there was an extreme variation of eleven months in the time of flowering. In all progenies which have been grown in the last six years the behavior has been similar.

When, however, these same bulbs have been handled normally for vegetative stocks, i. e., planted in November, they have all flowered within a short space of time. Two or three weeks cover the entire blooming period, which is as close as would be the case with imported varieties grown outdoors in the same way.

Shall the Flowers Be Used?

In bulb culture there is always a temptation to utilize the crop of flow-

In the first installment of this article, printed in The Review of September 1, the writer related his experiences in the growing of Easter lilies from seed. Here he continues his description of the cultural processes until the vitally important stage is reached—the production of mature, marketable, American-grown bulbs. In conclusion he offers some practical suggestions on such points as lengthening the outdoor blooming season of Easter lilies and reducing the cost of heat in forcing.

ers when there is sale for them. It has been found that it is practicable to cut off half of the stem in the first flowering of the seedlings in the greenhouse and still preserve the bulbs for starting vegetative propagation by planting out in the spring. The pots, after the cutting, are dried off rather quickly and the bulbs are left in the soil until ready to plant out. There are no data on the comparative value of stocks thus flowered and those which have had their tops cut off and are planted at normal depths outdoors to flower the next year. The bulbs are, without much doubt, weakened by this cutting and quick drying off, but they bloom well again in late July in the field and appear to recuperate perfectly in one season.

In normal vegetative propagation the flowers in the field should be removed when in bud or shortly after they open. If there is a sale for them, the individual flower stems four to six inches long may be safely taken off, in which case the blooms can be utilized for formal pieces; but no leafage should be removed from the plants. If there is no object in letting the flowers open they can just as well, and more easily, be snapped off in late bud.

It must be frankly admitted that the best time to dig the bulbs of the Easter lily is not known. It is well known, however, that the period over which they may be dug and good results obtained is longer than with most bulbous plants.

When to Dig the Bulbs.

With bulbous stocks generally the tops are allowed to die down before the plants are dug, but unless a severe drought occurs few of these lilies will die before frost cuts them down in the fall. In a field planting nearly all the stems are in vegetative vigor when cold weather starts, though a few scattering stems may show signs of maturing.

Probably the best guide to the time of digging is the formation of the new crown for the next year's growth, but to the uninitiated this may be difficult to interpret properly. At times the abundant formation of new roots, which appear in early September, has been the guide, and digging has been done when this occurred. This is probably to be looked upon as a reaction to more favorable temperatures for growth rather than an indication of maturity, but, nevertheless, stocks dug in early September, as the summer temperatures abate, have behaved perfectly under forcing and field conditions the next season. When dug at this season, though, the bulbs must be looked upon as not fully mature and as comparable to much of the imported stock from Japan, which also is dug while in full vegetative vigor.

Digging has been done from September 10 to October 30. The performance of the bulbs dug during this period is about the same, so far as has been observed, but no careful comparative tests have been made.

When the bulbs are dug late there is commonly a small percentage of the stocks in which growth has started from the next season's crown. This growth is more likely to take place in the propagation than in the old bulbs. There is little doubt that there is in this characteristic a basis for selection, to which attention is now being given.

To sum up this matter, it can be said that the bulbs can be dug from September 10 to October 15 or 20 and that the late digging probably gives the best-matured bulbs, although those dug earlier apparently develop satisfactorily.

Many Methods of Propagation.

Any plant to become widely useful must be able to make rapid increase. Lilies in general have been considered the aristocrats of the flower kingdom because of their beauty and the difficulties in producing them, but the Easter lily can be grown from seed so as to bloom in less than a year and can be produced vegetatively in one season. There are many methods of increasing the stock.

Propagation by seed was discussed in the previous section of this article, and the method of handling was fully described. Seed propagation gives clean stock and is a quick way of getting blooming plants. It is also exceedingly desirable for various other reasons. It furnishes a quick and easy way to build up stocks from a few plants. It enables the small grower or the florist to produce his own forcing stocks and to get blooms continuously from seven months after planting the seed up to and including the second Easter following the seeding. The method of propagation by seed is also economical of time and effort, since the stocks may be carried outdoors for six months on a space practically equal to the size of the greenhouse required to force them. Even in cold regions where the plants will not stand the winter climate, florists can still produce their own flowering plants, for by this method of propagation the stocks are flowered in the greenhouse during the winter, having made their development outdoors during the summer.

From Bulblets and Scales.

In the natural course of growing the plants, besides the bulb or bulblet planted, there is a propagation along the stem of from one to thirty bulblets which form in the axils of the leaf scales under the ground. This is the most common method of propagation and is ample for continuing the stock and increasing it from year to year. These bulblets are taken off the stems at digging time and planted to continue the propagation. Commercial bulbs can be produced from the best of these in one year. They will not be so large as some commercial stocks now imported, but they will produce better.

The bulbs may be broken up into their individual scales, which can be planted in the open ground two inches deep or in flats in the greenhouse. Bulblets form on the cut end of the scale, as in most lilies. The scales may also be incubated in a moist atmosphere in summer; the growth of the bulblets then becomes much accelerated. They may be handled almost exactly like hyacinths in propagation, except that if they are not covered they require an atmosphere somewhat more moist.

Cuttings, Layers and Divisions.

Cuttings of the side shoots and various portions of stems with three or more leaf scales, stuck in moist sand, will live and form bulblets in a surprisingly short time. Such cuttings, so far as is known, do not root, but bulblets form in the axils of their leaves and these soon strike root. Such growth can be made in three months or less.

Old stems which have bloomed may be layered in moist sand or simply laid on the surface of the ground in a moist atmosphere. When this is done, bulblets form readily along the lower part of the stem.

A natural propagation takes place in the Easter lily, as in nearly all other lilies, by the division of the bulb into two or more after it reaches maturity. After such a division it is necessary to plant the units out one year to round up, or they can be forced as double-nosed bulbs.

The most useful methods of propagating the Easter lily are by seed and

LOS ANGELES LEADERS

The exhibition features being prepared for the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen are expected to draw many trade visitors to Los Angeles October 20 to 23. Additional interest will be found by them in a number of establishments in the vicinity which occupy a prominent place in our industry. Some of these are described in current issues of The Review, one on this page.

BIG NURSERIES AT ONTARIO.

Armstrong's Achievement.

Well and favorably known for many years and over a vast expanse of territory, the Armstrong Nurseries, of Ontario, Cal., should certainly be visited by everyone who has the opportunity. The business here has been built up strictly on a quality basis, for no matter whether it be fruit trees, ornamental shrubbery, plants or anything else in the line of a nurseryman's business, one may be sure of getting the best that a high state of cultivation and a careful selection can supply.

John S. Armstrong came to Ontario, Cal., from Canada in 1889 and secured employment in a nursery that was situated just across the street from where the present large business has grown up. Soon after his arrival here Mr. Armstrong bought out the business of his employers and started in for himself. In the thirty-odd years since then he has taken advantage of the growth of the country to develop along the lines indicated. For several years the business was carried on as a local affair, the colony of Ontario having recently started. But there was plenty of land available for nursery purposes and ample water, which Mr. Armstrong leased.

Steady Success.

Success having come to him in small matters, he launched out more heavily, a few years later purchasing a tract of land in what was then known as the Chino Rancho, adding to this by degrees until about 320 acres were comprised in the home nursery. Then thirty acres were acquired at San Antonio Heights, about six miles north of Ontario, at an elevation of about 2,400 feet. This land is practically frostless and is devoted to the propagation and culture of tropical and subtropical fruits. The avocado, or alligator pear, is largely grown by Mr. Armstrong, and he has probably the largest collection of varieties in southern California. Instead of being planted in tin cans and other unsightly receptacles, all the avocado trees here are established in neat redwood boxes, made small and deep. They thrive well and are far more attractive to the purchaser this way. In fact, an attractive appearance characterizes all the stock shipped from this famous nursery.

The offices and salesyard are located on Euclid avenue, practically in the center of the city of Ontario, the former a substantial and attractive building, as will be seen from the illustration on the opposite page. Here also are the lath houses and greenhouses, where most of the propagating of the ornamental stock is carried on. Shipping and packing houses are also located in the rear and the whole is run on an excellent and time-saving system. This part alone is one of the most complete establishments in the west.

Busy by Mail.

A considerable portion of Mr. Armstrong's business is conducted by mail. He published his first catalogue in 1903 and has continued to improve it ever since. A believer in attractive printing, he always uses the best of cuts and press work, so that a catalogue in keeping with the character of the place is placed in his customers' hands annually. The great increase in the retail end of the business has necessitated cutting down on the wholesale. Until a few years ago a large quantity of roses was grown for the wholesale trade, but this has been practically discontinued, owing to the immense demand at retail.

While the fruit end may not interest florists much, it may be noted that here the same care is taken to give a good article. Buds for insertion are not taken promiscuously, but from proven trees in trial orchards, and the fruit tree business is tremendous. Commercial orchardists and planters of big real estate divisions are big customers here and it may be noted in passing that the Armstrong Nurseries have propagated and sold, probably, more olive trees than any other nursery in the state. The foregoing is a brief and incomplete mention of a most interesting business and the writer strongly advises visitors to this section to call and see for themselves the class of work carried on here. They can be assured of a hearty welcome by Mr. Armstrong or Mr. Meriweather, the courteous and well known manager here, and the visit cannot fail to be pleasant and instructive. H. R. R.

TATE'S TIPS

MAKING MORE FLOWER BUYERS.

Upbuilding Our Business.

In the article in The Review of September 1 we were discussing the question, "What is the outlook for the florists' business during the coming season?" Assuming that the business will be just what florists themselves choose to make it, let us consider in this article some of the things florists may do in order to keep the business on the high plane it now occupies.

None of us can tell for a certainty what the future holds in store for us. At best, we can but be guided by general conditions in the commercial world. When we hear of large factories being shut down or running on half time, it means a proportionate reduction in dividends. Admitting for the sake of argument that the workers are not the florists' important customers, when you touch dividends you are touching the purse of those whom some of us are wont to look upon as the natural flower buyers.

Way Won by Work.

Why should we look upon any class in this country as natural flower buyers? Florists are the last men in the country who should do this. The business itself should teach them differently.

Let me give you an example. The writer can remember when as a boy he worked in his father's range, in which there was a rose house containing Safrano, Isabella Sprunt and Bon Silene. These were considered the best roses of the day. As I go into a modern range today and look at Premier, Madame Butterfly, Columbia, etc., I often think of that old rose house with its 10x12 glass and its brick flues. How has this improvement been brought about? The first-mentioned varieties were certainly the natural varieties of that time, but by brains, patience and hard work the new and better varieties have taken their place. Had it not been for such men as E. Gurney Hill, Dr. Van Fleet and John Cook, men with a vision of the future, we might still be growing those old varieties. No, we are not going to admit that the florists' industry depends upon such a thing as a natural flower buyer, for when we speak of this it is just another name for the wealthy class.

What the business depends upon is the flower lover, for, be he rich or poor, he is not going to buy flowers unless he loves them. Realizing this, the next thing is to create a love for flowers in the hearts of the public, and then put flowers within the reach of all. This brings us to the gist of this article: How is all this to be done? In the first place, by education, and there is no end to the ways we can educate the public in the use of flowers. Every florist can be an educator. The next important step is efficient and better production.

Means of Education.

The methods of education that I am going to touch upon in this article belong to the retailer and grower alike. We shall leave out the most important method of education, publicity, and take up those methods that to some seem less important. The first important thing is to be educated yourself. Don't forget that none of us can impart education in flowers or anything else until we know our subject ourselves. One of the most successful florists I know is a woman who has spent a long life in a retail store. When customers come in they will have no one else wait upon them. She never misses an opportunity to use the botanical name of anything she is selling. For instance, a customer will come in and say, "How much is that fern?" Or, perhaps, "Isn't that a lovely fern?" She will come back with, "That's Nephrolepis elegantissima; that plant is $5." Or, perhaps, she will tell what a fine house variety it is. If any plant comes into the store with which she is not familiar, the first thing she does is to find out all about it. When you can tell customers the name and habit of a plant it gives them confidence in you, and you are not only disseminating education, but improving your salesmanship as well.

Another important matter in the window or in the store is to have a neat card on each vase telling the varieties. For instance, take a vase of Columbia in a window. Someone will stop and admire it, never thinking of the name. But have a card on it, "New Rose, Columbia," and perhaps the next day that person will read in the society news that "Mrs. Moneybags carried Columbia roses at the reception last night." This will immediately recall your roses and your place. This is all education. There are any number of just such simple things that every one of us must study out for ourselves.

The Growers' Part.

What is the growers' part in all of this? It is their duty, by using the most efficient methods possible, to reduce the cost of production to the lowest possible figure, so that they, as well as the middleman and retailer, may have a fair margin of profit and yet put their product into the hands of the consumer at a reasonable price. And by all means they ought to see to it that their stock is the best they can produce.

If we will all get together and work along such lines as these, there will be no question as to what the future of the business will be. Tate.

THRIPS ON ROSES.

Under separate cover I am mailing a sample of our Kaiserin rose plants. I should like to know what is wrong. The plants were kept cool during the winter and started early this spring. They were doing exceptionally well in the first part of the summer, up to about the beginning of July. The sample is one of the worst I could find and the plants on an average seem to be doing better again. The new growth is healthy in color. The weather was extremely hot during June and in the first part of July. N. N.—Minn.

The specimen rose plant received showed signs of being badly infested with thrips. The hot, dry weather of June and July made it a trying time for plants under glass, especially for the rose plants in bloom. The petals of the buds sent were covered with thrips. The variety Kaiserin, with the waxy texture of its flowers, is highly susceptible to the attacks of thrips, which puncture the petals and spoil them. As soon as the weather becomes cooler there will be less trouble from the pest, but in the meantime I would suggest that you spray the plants with nicotine extract about twice a week and cut down on the syringing of the plants, so that their foliage will become harder, better able to withstand insect attacks and less susceptible to disease. M. P.

SPANWORM ON ROSES.

We should like to know what insect it is that is eating our rose leaves. We are sending a sample leaf.

L. S. G.—Minn.

It is hard to tell from the sample leaf just what may be eating the rose leaves, but from the appearance I am inclined to believe that it is caused by what is commonly known as the spanworm, a worm about two or three inches long, and with legs on both ends of its body. These two sets of legs cause it to travel along the stem as if it were measuring or spanning it; hence its name.

This worm clings closely to the stem during the day and seems able to change its color to conform to the color of its support. On that account it is hard to find. The worm usually eats the buds as well as the leaves. Hand-picking is the best and about the only remedy.

A RARE POSSESSION.

Specimens of Evonymus japonica aurea are rarely seen as beautiful as the two shown in the illustration on this page. Indeed, these are described as the most handsome and perfect specimens he has seen in either this country or Europe by Henry A. Siebrecht, Jr., of Pasadena, Cal., who is shown in the picture standing beside them.

For a number of years the two specimens have been show pieces of Pasadena, and quite noted landmarks. Since they had to be removed to make room for the building of new shops on Colorado avenue, Mr. Siebrecht was able to purchase them. To remove them was a considerable task, necessitating a box five feet wide and four feet deep for each plant. Each plant weighs 2,800 pounds and measures eight feet in diameter. The height of each can be judged by comparison with that of Mr. Siebrecht. When they were planted twenty-five years ago the plants were only two feet high. A striking feature about the specimens is that they resemble two large globes and the aurea parts of them have grown in such a way as to represent North and South America.

WIREWORM ON ASTERS.

Under separate cover I am sending you some aster roots that are infested with some kind of worm and, while you may not be able to see the worm, there are often as many as fifty in one plant and they are destroying hundreds of plants. Will you suggest a remedy?
M. L. B.—Okla.

Your aster field is infested with one of the varieties of wireworm. There is probably nothing you can do to destroy them without seriously damaging your asters. On account of the hard, shell-like covering of the worms, ordinary remedies do not affect them. Heavy applications of salt or salty fertilizers are recommended, but you cannot apply these in sufficient quantity to destroy the worms without destroying the asters. After the crop is off you can follow these suggestions and, in addition, it would be well to plow the field just as late in the fall as possible, thus exposing the worms to the frosts to some extent. A. F. J. B.

BLIGHTED ASTERS.

I am sending you an aster plant. I wish that you would inspect it and see what the trouble is. Will you advise me as to what I can do to remedy the defect? What is the best soil to plant in? Through this trouble I have lost more than 1,000 plants this year and I desire to know what to do next year.
T. A. J.—Kan.

The aster plant submitted is plainly affected by the common aster blight. It would be worth a good deal to be able to tell you how to control this disease, which is one of the most baffling diseases known to commercial growers. Many theories have been advanced and exploded as to its origin and control, so that no one seems able to do more than suggest careful culture all along the line, from the seed pan to the planting in the field, and then to trust to luck to keep the blight away. A few things that seem to have been proven out are: See that your soil for the seed pan is sterilized. Do not allow the young plants to become potbound or starved. Be sure the soil in the field is not acid. Add what manure or fertilizer is needed early enough so as to allow it to become thoroughly incorporated with the soil before setting out the aster plants. These suggestions will assist you, but they will not guarantee you immunity from this disease. Purdue University has taken up the study of this disease and, considering the thoroughness with which things are done at this institution, some definite results are expected in due time. It has been suggested that a blight-resisting strain may be the solution. A. F. J. B.

TUBEROSES NOT BLOOMING.

We have Mexican and Double Pearl tuberoses in the field and we have watered them whenever it was dry. It has been a quite dry season here. We get a bloom only now and then. What would you recommend in this case?
F. C. P.—Ia.

The dry season is responsible for the paucity of flower spikes on your tuberoses. If rain comes, you will, no doubt, get a good many stalks yet. If frost threatens to intervene, dig such as are not developed fully, carefully plant them in boxes and flower them in the greenhouse. C. W.

ONIONS IN A DRY TIME.

When the tops turn down on onions in a dry time and there is a limp place just above the bulb, does the onion grow any more? If the onion is left in the ground and becomes wet, will it not start to grow again, throw up new tops and become soft and worthless?
A. F. E. W.—Minn.

When the stems on the onions wilt in the manner described, the bulbs will make little more growth and, provided the tops are pretty well dried, they had better be pulled up and laid in windrows to dry in the sun for a few days. Give them a turning over with a wooden rake after a couple of days and, if possible, house them before a soaking rain comes. This rain will not harm them nearly so much when they are out of the soil. If they are left in the ground, heavy rains will often start the bulbs into a second growth, in which case they keep poorly after being housed. C. W.

DAHLIA TUBERS.

I grow dahlias and never knew until this year why some of the large tubers did not send up sprouts. Will you tell me how to separate them so that they will all sprout? M. W. H.—Miss.

In making dahlia divisions use a sharp knife on the tubers and leave one eye or bud in each division. A little practice will teach you how to divide them. These divisions are far better than large clumps which send up a thicket of growth. C. W.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—The first meeting of the creditors of Mary E. Conrad, of Thermopolis, Wyo., adjudged bankrupt July 23, was called for September 8, at 502 Hynds building, in this city, before Clarence A. Swainson, referee in bankruptcy. Mary E. Conrad operated Le Chapeau Shop, at Thermopolis, and until June 1 of this year did business as the Thermopolis Floral Co. Three months ago a mortgage was foreclosed on the latter property and the Thermopolis Floral Co. was sold to Miss Claudia Leach July 1, who now conducts the business.

New York, N. Y.—Judge Mayer appointed Benjamin Bernstein receiver for Arthur T. Boddington & Co., in response to the petition in bankruptcy filed by H. Langeler. The receiver's bonds were set at $1,000.

Two Splendid Specimens of Evonymus Japonica Aurea.

TAKING CROWN BUDS.

Will you let me know if it is all right to take the crown buds off chrysanthemums? I have 2-foot stems on about all of them. If I do this, is there danger of the flowers becoming misshapen? I have six or seven varieties, with two stems to each plant. C. T. M.—Pa.

It is satisfactory at this time to take any bud that shows on your plants. Crown buds, taken August 23 or later, invariably produce perfect flowers.

C. H. T.

THRIPS ON MUMS.

An insect that works much like red spider is infesting our mums, but we know it is not red spider, because we can see a little, black sort of mite, smaller than an aphis, which humps up its back and jumps, when disturbed. Nicotine solution, smoke, arsenate of lead and lime mixed—these do not affect the insect. A leaf is enclosed for your inspection. H. T. O.—Wis.

The plants are infested with little insects called thrips. The simplest and most effective method of getting rid of them is to get a good hose, attach a fine sprayer to it and go over the plants, both on the top and under side of the leaves. If the first application does not give the desired result, give them a second and even a third application. Nothing is so effective as this for getting rid of thrips. Now, while the weather is hot and dry, thrips should be exterminated; otherwise they will disfigure the plants considerably.

MILDEW KILLING MUMS.

I am sending you a small box containing chrysanthemums which show symptoms of a disease that affects my entire house. About half my crop is dead. I have used Bordeaux mixture three times inside of two weeks, but this treatment does not check the trouble. The heat is great here, but I have the houses shaded and I spray every evening to freshen the foliage. I have grown mums successfully this way for the last fifteen years. Will you tell me the present trouble and suggest a remedy? H. M. A.—Pa.

It is simply mildew that is on the foliage of your mums and, as long as you keep the house shaded and spray every evening, you will be unable to get rid of it. A fine way to handle mums is to plant them in a house where they have air on front and sides. Spray in the morning and early afternoon in the hot weather, so the foliage will be perfectly dry by night. You say you have been growing mums in the manner described for the last fifteen years and have never been bothered with mildew before. It is surprising how you have been able to carry the plants along without their being attacked by bad doses of mildew every year. It is advisable to grow mums exposed to the fullest possible sunlight and air. This will avoid mildew. The only thing that can be done now is to dust the plants with lime and sulphur to prevent the mildew from spreading and to give the plants plenty of sunlight and air.

C. H. T.

SEPTORIA ON MUMS.

The leaves on my mums become spotted and dry up. This starts from the bottom and goes to the top in about a week. I am sending two leaves from Chrysolora. Will you tell me what the trouble is? C. M. R.—O.

The trouble with your foliage is septoria or leaf-spot, which usually occurs about this season of the year, when the plants grow up and begin to get crowded for light and air. If it is only showing at the bottom of the plants, it will not do any great harm, provided the plants do not become stripped too far up the stem. The only thing to do is to pick off the bottom leaves that are affected, but be sure the plants are syringed in time so that they will be perfectly dry before the sun goes down in the evening. If the weather outside is wet, dust the plants with lime through a bellows, especially the outer leaves and the under side of them, and this will retard the progress of fungoid diseases. If you will strip the center of the bench of plants, so they will get some light and air, you will be able to keep the disease fairly well in check. C. H. T.

MUMS THAT BUD.

All varieties of my chrysanthemums, except Bonnaffon, go into bud even if I pinch them; the next shoots go into bud again. Both those that are kept wet and those that are dry do this. Will you advise me as to what I can do for them? Will they bloom again this season? P. G. A.—Mo.

It is quite likely that these mum plants became too hard and woody in the pots, and after being planted into the soil in the benches they will make new growth and grow out of budding up before their time. M. P.

Saratoga, N. Y.—Henry J. Schrade was recently injured in an automobile accident. Mrs. Schrade, who was with him at the time, also received minor injuries.

Scranton, Pa.—Thomas J. Nolan, widely known in the trade as the representative of supply and construction concerns, is being proposed as Scranton's next mayor. He is seeking the nomination on the Republican ticket in the primaries to be held September 20.

McPherson, Kan.—Charles Simonsen has sold his business, which he has conducted for the last twenty-one years, to C. E. Charlton, of Kearney, Neb., an experienced florist. Mr. and Mrs. Simonsen are planning to take a rest of about a year, before making plans for the future.

Cromwell, Conn.—In celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of his having come to Cromwell to live, the Hartford Times, in its feature section of August 20, gave a half-page biographical sketch of A. N. Pierson, illustrated with his portrait and views of his residence and range. Mr. Pierson came to this country from Sweden in 1869 and, after living two years at Southington, came to Cromwell to live in 1871.

Painesville, O.—A beautiful display of flowers is now to be seen at the residence of Robert H. Botley. Tourists stop to admire them and all lovers of flowers comment on their beauty.

Fairbury, Neb.—The Fairbury Nurseries, conducted by C. M. Hurlburt, are fitting up a retail flower store on modern lines. An order has been placed with Buchbinder Bros., Chicago, for fixtures.

Springfield, Mass.—August 29 a fire of unknown origin occurred in the greenhouse of E. E. Clifton, at 35 Pleasant street. The fire was immediately checked by neighbors and little damage was done.

Batavia, N. Y.—One result of the display of the Thoro-Mix soil shredder by L. C. Stroh & Sons at the S. A. F. convention was an order from the United States Department of Agriculture, whose officials had opportunity to see the machine on the exhibition floor. Of course, a number of machines were sold to florists at the same time.

East Chicago, Ind.—The Mann Floral Shops, which operate here and in Indiana Harbor, report a good business last month. On account of the expiration of the lease and increased rent, the shop at Indiana Harbor will be forced to move. Mr. Mann has purchased a lot three doors south of the present location, on Cedar street, on which he will erect a salesroom, workroom and greenhouse for the display of pot plants. The lot is located in one of the most popular blocks on Cedar street.

NOT REAL BANDITS.

Though various members of the trade, in the recent era of high prices, have been characterized as "robbers" and their operations described as a "hold-up," it is not in the sense of admitting such charges and assuming the guises suitable for such activity that the four gentlemen in the illustration on this page donned the garb in which they are shown. The explanation of this photograph, taken on the border line between the United States and Mexico, is given by W. B. Clarke, of San Jose, Cal., in these words:

"I have just returned from a trip to southern California. During the trip I was joined by Edward H. Rust and Frank M. Warner on a week's trip to San Diego. While there we did the usual stunt of visiting Tia Juana, Mexico, and this photograph was taken while there. This bunch of 'bandits,' reading from left to right, are: W. B. Clarke, horticultural broker, San Jose, Cal.; Edward H. Rust, nurseryman, South Pasadena, Cal.; George F. Otto, florist, San Diego, and Frank M. Warner, bulb grower, Inglewood, Cal."

BORERS ON AMARANTUS.

We are sending you under separate cover a few stalks of amarantus, from which the roots have been eaten by a small maggot. Some of the maggots are, no doubt, on the stalks. We have tried lime and other remedies in profusion, but a whole bed of plants has been destroyed, nevertheless.

A. F. C.—Mo.

The stems are badly tunneled by borers, but none could be located when the former were cut open. I do not know of any remedy that will clean out these pests from the stems. You could pour some carbon bisulphide into holes in the soil, at intervals of twelve to eighteen inches, a teaspoonful to a hole, and destroy all soil pests. Cover the holes, which should be three to four inches deep, immediately after pouring in the liquid. Try spraying a nicotine solution on the stems, using a fine spray nozzle and directing it toward the lower parts of the stems. C. W.

CALLAS FROM THE FIELD.

We planted our callas in the field last spring. They have grown well enough, but they have not bloomed. Should we attempt to dry them off? If so, how long ought they to rest to give the best results for winter or early spring blooming in the house? What is the best fertilizer for callas?

T. C. P.—Ia.

It will not do to dry off your callas, when lifted, if you want them for winter blooming. It is customary to dry off tubers in pots or those which have been grown indoors in beds or benches for at least two months in summer before starting them up again. Your planted-out stock will probably be making an active growth and, if lifted and dried, will be, in a large measure, injured. It would be advisable to lift all your plants carefully, to preserve all the roots possible. Watch them carefully and shade as well as spray them until they are established. Then give them full sun. Treating them thus, you will get flowers reasonably early. Cow manure and fine bone are excellent fertilizers for callas. The last-named is particularly good to use as a top-dressing at intervals of eight or ten days right through the growing and blooming season. C. W.

AVIATOR'S BLOOMING TIME.

When should the carnation Aviator have its last topping in order to have blooms for Christmas?

A. R. S.—Mont.

Aviator is a free and early bloomer and comes into bloom quickly after being topped. We suggest that you top it rather closely about September 1 and then let it come. The main crop will come around Christmas, which is the time you want all the red carnations you can get. We are assuming that your plants are fairly well established in the benches at this time.

A. F. J. B.

FORCING PERENNIAL LARKSPUR.

Please give us the cultural directions of larkspur for winter flowering. Will it thrive in solid beds where lettuce has been growing? Will you state the temperature and the time of sowing seed? M. & M.—O.

Seedlings produced from seeds sown late last summer or early in spring under glass are better for forcing than larger and older clumps. I have at present a lot of plants from seeds sown last February. These are lined out in nursery rows and are flowering freely, with stalks three to four feet high. I look for them to make ideal clumps for forcing next season. They include both Belladonna and the later-growing Formosan hybrids. The plants should succeed well in solid beds where lettuces have been grown. It would not be advisable to lift them until they have had considerable frost. Run the house in which they are planted in quite low temperature until the middle of February for best success. Then give a little fire heat, enough to make the night temperature from 40 to 42 degrees, advancing to 50 degrees as the plants advance in growth.

Do not attempt to force the larkspurs any earlier than has been indicated, as it will surely result in failure; plants will suffer from rot and mildew, and you will be discouraged. Keep the temperature in your house low until forcing starts; if below freezing, all the better. Never attempt any hard forcing of larkspurs and always air them freely when they are flowering. You will get stalks five to eight feet high from plants started last February and in your territory wholesale prices should vary from $3 to $8 a dozen in a good market. Hardy larkspur is referred to. The annual larkspurs may be sown now, the seedlings potted off and benched before they become too much root-bound. These give an excellent spring crop, but they are less popular than the blue perennial varieties. C. W.

STOCKS FOR WINTER CUTTING.

I should like to know when to sow seeds of Beauty of Nice stocks for cutting through the winter. Is it too late now? I can maintain a temperature of about 48 degrees. Is that sufficient? How long will it be before the stocks flower? L. S.—N. Y.

It would have been better to start your stocks seed at the beginning of August. However, sow the seed at once and plant, preferably in raised benches for winter blooming, nine inches apart each way. Give a minimum temperature of 45 degrees and ventilate freely whenever weather conditions permit, and your plants should come along all right and commence to flower late in December, continuing to bloom for a number of weeks. A good soil, which suits carnations or roses, will suit stocks equally well. Avoid spraying the foliage as the season advances. As the flower stalks develop, a light mulch of old, well decayed manure will prove beneficial. C. W.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

NOBODY can make money on a customer who does not pay his bills.

THE outlook for an adequate supply of flowers next winter is not so reassuring as that for the demand for them.

FROM all reports there will be few lilies next Easter. It will be in line to make provision for "something just as good" to offer the public.

IF your stock includes something not offered in the Classified section of The Review by anyone else, there is a golden opportunity there. Countless buyers scan the Classified lists each issue, seeking stock they can use.

LOW prices are not to the interest of the trade, because low prices prohibit high quality and first-class service. But it is equally undesirable to maintain prices at a level so high that it curtails the volume of business.

THE dollar box, which either disappeared or became a $2 or $5 box, according to the locality, in the last few years, is again in much evidence in some places. The condition of the market of late has favored this Saturday feature.

RETAIL stores in this trade do not carry inventories of considerable amount and for this reason florists escaped the losses that hit merchants hard in some other lines, where stock on the shelves had to be marked below cost to move it.

IT is a mistake to limit the influence of the war in slackening the moral fiber to those who crossed the water to participate in it. Some of those who show the worst effects are business men who stayed at home. A few are in this trade, but ere long they must change their ways or get out.

WITH the advent of cooler weather, new names are added in greater numbers to the list of retailers represented in the Pink Part. As the telegraph business assumes greater proportions year by year, more and more florists are desirous of participating in the profits it brings. And no list of retailers handling telegraph orders is consulted by so many florists as is the Pink Part of The Review.

E. G. HILL will celebrate his seventy-fourth birthday anniversary at Richmond next Sunday, September 11.

TACT is a priceless asset in a flower store. Yet for so valuable a thing, how frequently is even the attempt at it lacking!

EVIDENCE of an upward turn to prices affecting this trade was contained in an announcement this week of an increase of ten per cent on all its boilers by the American Radiator Co.

FIVE double-page ads in last week's issue of The Review, six in this issue, one of them printed in colors. It is cheaper than circularizing, as well as more effective, also much less work and quicker.

IT'S the little things that count in floral arrangements. The florist who wishes to make a name for himself and his work must give increasing attention to detail and send out only what will satisfy his own taste and conscience.

PROSPEROUS times saved some mismanagers from the results of their recklessness. A change in the tide of business left them on the rocks over which they had been sailing all the time. The careful pilot is not in danger now because he steered wisely then.

CANADIAN florists will serve as hosts to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association for the first time next month. The convention at Toronto, October 11 to 13, is occasioning much preliminary activity there and a large attendance is expected to honor their efforts.

CUSTOMERS who wish to tell the florist how to carry out their orders should rather be listened to than rebuffed. First, they may give the florist some new ideas; second, they take an interest in the florists' wares and, with proper handling, will be back for more.

Ninety per cent of the big concerns of the country—the hardest hit by the business readjustment—have "turned the corner," in the estimation of a prominent banker. The small concerns, not having large inventories, recovered sooner. The better psychological feeling on the part of the buying public is believed to have already been felt.

ADVERTISING men have a method of computing a publication's rate by dividing the price per page by the number of thousand circulation. Various odd names are applied to the quotient, which do not matter. The point is, on such basis of computation, The Review's rates are by far the lowest of the mediums in this trade. Yet the returns, shown by frequent examples, are easily the greatest.

WHO KNOWS?

Please advise through your columns where I may obtain baskets of the Czecho-Slovakia styles. M. B.

Can you give me the formulas used in the preparation of leaves, ferns, etc., or put me in touch with someone who knows them? S. & M.—Cal.

UNUSUAL COMBINATIONS.

There are many men and women in the trade who have taken up the work because of their love of flowers and who have continued their other lines of business. The result is some unusual combinations. The Review would like to record a few. Readers please report.

Let's start the list with:

Herman C. Kroseberg, florist and furrier, 628 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.

BUY COAL NOW.

Those whose experience as large buyers qualify them to speak with authority advise all florists to take in at once as much coal as they can get or handle. Those who best know the signs say there will be a flurry in the fuel trade within the next few weeks, and that it may develop into a serious situation for florists who have no reserve stocks to carry them through the winter's pinch. It is quite certain that the usual quantities of coal have not been mined this summer and that the bins of consumers never have held so little coal at this date in other years. All those who want to play safe will stock up at once.

RETAIL SALES TELL STORY.

A spirit of pessimism too frequently exaggerates the effects of the present business readjustment, with consequent alarm when there is no occasion for such feeling. To restore the confidence of florists who may have succumbed to such anxiety, the report of the Federal Reserve Board regarding retail sales for the month of July does excellent work. Giving indication of the public's present buying power and attitude, it is as important for florists as any statistics that can be found.

The volume of sales during July, measured in dollars, was but fifteen per cent less than that of July, 1920, according to this report. Prices have beyond doubt fallen at least to a similar extent—probably in the stores included in the survey the decline has been measurably greater. The actual amount of goods moving over the counters, it is reasonable to infer, was therefore as great as, if not greater than, last year.

There is, of course, some variation from section to section, but no well defined tendency is discernible toward worse conditions in industrial centers, where unemployment would first make itself felt. The houses included in the list (354 in all) are department stores for the most part in the larger centers and may not for that reason be fully representative of retail trade as a whole. But the figures are, nevertheless, convincing evidence that both unemployment conditions and the decrease in purchasing power have been exaggerated in many current statements.

WHAT HAVE YOU TO OFFER?

Any florist who has good stock, much or little, not needed for his home trade will do somebody a favor by printing an offer of it in the classified columns of The Review. All kinds of plants are in demand among readers of The Review. Like this:

Please discontinue the ad, as we are sold out on the plants offered.—W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., August 29, 1921.

One insertion more than did the work.—L. N. Brown, Clyde, O., August 30, 1921.

Sold out stock three days after the ad appeared in The Review and am returning ten to twenty checks a day. Who says it does not pay to advertise?—Attica Floral Co., Attica, Ind., August 30, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

William A. Vining.

William Allen Vining, aged 82, a veteran of the Civil war, for twenty-five years in the florists' business at Hingham, Vt., died August 30 at his home, on South street.

He was born in South Weymouth. He enlisted from that town in Co. I, 1st Massachusetts Cavalry, September 1, 1861, and served for more than four years, receiving his discharge November 30, 1865. He was present at Lee's surrender at Appomattox. He belonged to Edwin Humphrey Post, G. A. R., of Hingham, and to Orphan's Hope Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of East Weymouth. He was past president of the 1st Massachusetts Cavalry Association.

He celebrated his golden wedding anniversary July 3, 1917. Mrs. Vining died a few months after. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. M. Lois Walker, who has kept house for her father and attended to his business for some years, and Mrs. H. K. Briggs, of White Plains, N. Y.; also by a son, Herbert A. Vining, of Dorchester, Vt.

The funeral took place at the Vining home September 2 at 2 p. m.

William D. Lockwood.

William D. Lockwood, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who retired from the wholesale florists' business twenty years ago, died August 24 at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Herbert S. Wilson, at 387 Ocean avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Lockwood was born at Stamford, Conn., eighty-four years ago and had been a resident of Brooklyn since 1868. In his time he was prominent on the New York Produce Exchange.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Business has been only fair the last week. Stock is coming in better, but the demand is not what it should be, and some is going to waste. Gladioli are about on their last lap and the few that are seen are of second-grade quality. Dahlias, however, have taken their place and are now coming in better and in larger quantities. Some of the fancy varieties are quite good and find ready sale. Recent rains have caused this improvement and if they continue, dahlias will be exceptionally good this season. Carnations are still in small supply. Roses are good and have been received in large quantities. Those with good stems and large flowers are bringing a fair price and are cleaned up well at all times. Asters are in ample supply, but are of second grade and only sell when the market is in need. Zinnias continue in large quantities, as well as buddleias, which are quite good. Delphiniums are in small supply. Some tritomas have been seen, but find little sale and are going to waste.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Iring, manager of the F. Walker Co., has suffered the last week with a bruised foot. She expects, however, to return to her duties within the next few days.

The Wm. Walker Co. reports business good the last week. Several large out-of-town orders have kept the force busy.

E. T. Wiggington has been cutting some fine dahlias and contemplates a good season. During the early part of the summer he cut what could be called the best gladioli in or around Louisville.

Louis Kirch has just returned from an extended trip through the east. Mr. Kirch attended the S. A. F. convention and enjoyed a visit to the large growers in Alexandria, Va., to Arlington cemetery and to the home of General Lee. He also spent a most enjoyable day with R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., at White Marsh, Md., and from there went to Philadelphia. He also took in Atlantic City, where he said a few days on the beach were most interesting.

E. G. Reimers & Son Co. has started work on the new boiler shed, which is to be 28x65. The concrete foundation has already been laid and M. A. Reimers, who is engineering the job, said that he expects to have the most modern and up-to-date place in or about Louisville.

G. M. Lewis, of Lion & Co., New York, was here last week with a line of ribbons and corsage accessories. E. G. R.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market has gone from bad to worse, and last week probably saw the bottom of conditions as they might be expected during the slowest month of the year. The holiday, instead of increasing business, at least to a slight extent, was, as usual, a deterrent, as everybody with the means was as far from home as possible. The 100,000 transient visitors per day in New York yield nothing to the florists, and when New York proper is holiday-bent, funeral orders are all that can be expected. Of late the death lists have been light; consequently, funeral work has not been heavy.

Roses, with the small demand existing for them, seem overplentiful, and clearances have been troublesome. The wholesalers' iceboxes at night have plainly told the story of the day. American Beauty is in supply plentiful enough for the small demand, and prices are unchanged. Hybrid teas arrive in quantity vastly in excess of movement, and congestion is the order of the day. Quality is generally good for the time of year. The price range for good stock continues as previously quoted, but inferior blooms move at as low as 50 cents per hundred, and to make clearances bargain lots work out even lower.

Cattleyas are a little more plentiful, but their season of demand is not yet; consequently, sales drag considerably. A few gardenias are arriving, but prices are unquotable. Bouvardia Humboldtii is in good supply, and is valued as a cheap item for wedding work.

White lilies cannot be said to be plentiful, yet are difficult to move, demands for funeral work not being particularly active. Lilies of the valley are in small supply, but arrivals clear slowly and prices are unchanged.

Arrivals of dahlias, gladioli and cosmos are heavy, but these items figure most largely in the trading. Retail florists must have something for window display and cheap decorations, and the subjects mentioned seem to fill the bill. Rudbeckia, delphiniums, phloxes, gaillardias, candytuft, calendulas, marigolds, centaureas, tuberoses and a few chrysanthemums form about the rest of the offerings.

Various Notes.

The executive committee of the American Dahlia Society held a meeting at the Grand hotel September 1, at which final details of the society's show to open at the Pennsylvania hotel at the end of the month were arranged. President Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., presided.

I. S. Hendrickson, president of the New York Florists' Club, invited the Long Island committee on membership to visit the Childs establishment at Flowerfield, L. I., Wednesday, September 7, to inspect the place and also discuss action for Long Island night, which is to feature the next meeting of the club, on the evening of September 12, at the club's quarters in the Engineering Society's building, 25 West Thirty-ninth street.

John H. Marsden, Far Rockaway, L. I., is confined to his home through a long spell of sickness. His son is looking after the business. Mr. Marsden is remembered throughout the country as the originator of the "green" carnation.

Robert G. Wilson, the Brooklyn retailer, is remodeling the interior of the conservatory connected to his store, installing plant tables of iron and slate.

The prospect for an early fall and demise of outdoor flowers received a setback with the torrid weather of the last few days.

George Ehrle, for a number of years with Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., has started in business for himself as a grower of hardy outdoor stock, perennials and roses, at Richfield, N. J., R. F. D. 2, Paterson service.

J. H. P.

A. Warendorff has rented the center store in the Hotel Astor, with a 20-foot frontage on Broadway, for a term of ten years.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

All things considered, September has started well. As one of the observing and thoughtful young salesmen commented: "There has been everything against us: Weather hot, stock overplentiful, many flowers showing the effect of the heat, vacation season continuing later than usual, other lines of business depressed, money tight, many people out of work and those able not spending because of the psychology of the situation; and still the flower business has been good, at least as good as in the first week of September last year." It is, indeed, remarkable how well sales have footed up, considering the many adverse influences. We, as a trade, may count ourselves fortunate. Not many lines of business in Chicago are doing as well as are florists.

Most of the market's troubles seem due to the heat. This has been largely responsible for the oversupply of roses, for the soft and open character of many of them, and for the low average prices. There have been so many good roses that there was small chance for selling the poorer ones in the trade. Florists have bought the best roses at reasonable prices and the accumulation has been sold off every two or three days to some department store, to be used for advertising purposes. Otherwise, the garbage man got them. The weather man has been promising an early return to seasonal temperatures. When they come, the rose market probably will improve, and not till then.

At present prices, and with Amling's well known standard of quality, there is every inducement for retailers at once to open active fall sales campaigns.

The gladiolus season has passed the peak and is on the down grade. The local cuts are dwindling, but in their place have come large quantities from Michigan growers. The average quality of the stock has gone down, as it always seems to at this season, and prices, too, are lower. The department stores also have been using these flowers. Asters are more numerous than heretofore and, unlike other outdoor flowers, the quality is the best of the season. Prices average low, but there are asters so good they sell by the dozen, like mums.

Carnations are more plentiful, but the quality, under the heat, has not been good enough to make them safe to ship. There are a few chrysanthemums, some locally grown and some from California, but the principal sale for them thus far is for show-window purposes. Sweet peas have arrived, but the weather still is too hot for them.

September has brought a run of weddings and the call for valley has been excellent. The supply has been adequate. Only a few lilies have been offered and it is not likely there will be many for a good while. Orchids have ceased to be a factor.

The market was open half of Labor day, some of the houses, indeed, having enough shipping orders to keep them busy until mid-afternoon.

August Business.

Taking August by and large, it must be classed as a not bad month. Reports, as always, depend on the point of view, but the commission houses, where things average up, say their sales were slightly ahead of those of a year ago. Most of them say they handled considerably more stock to make the same or slightly better total, from which it is deduced that the demand for flowers still increases and that an active market may be expected when cool weather comes. Many out-of-town customers who never did so before are reported as having been buying all summer, in spite of the unusual heat, or perhaps because of it.

August Weather.

The Weather Bureau reports a continuance of abnormally high temperatures during August, the twelfth successive month of unusual warmth. The last week of August was especially hot. The mean temperature was 72.8 degrees, or 1.6 degrees above normal. There was 4.92 inches of well distributed rainfall, or more than double the normal amount. But there was seventy-one per cent of the possible sunshine, against sixty-nine per cent as the average.

California Chrysanthemums.

The through refrigerator express has been bringing chrysanthemums from the coast, where the season is about six weeks earlier than at Chicago. The San Francisco growers have built up a big business, shipping large quantities of mums to buyers all over the western half of the continent. They have sent Chicago customers excellent Chrysolora, big, well finished blooms that were cheap at the 20 cents at which they were billed. But the express charged was 16 cents and P. & D. was 2 cents, making the cost $38 per hundred, on a typical shipment. As there always is some waste, the cost is at least as high as similar blooms cost in this market when in season here.

Collections Need Attention.

It is the general report among the wholesalers that collections have become extremely slow, some of the houses going so far as to say they never were slower than at present. The consensus is that large numbers of retailers have failed to use due caution in extending credit to the public and, now that money is circulating less freely, are without organized collection methods, their capital being tied up in slow accounts. There are two reasons why the subject must receive serious consideration at the hands of the wholesalers. In the first place, the turnover has grown faster than the capital of most of the houses, so that they must get their money in promptly if they are to maintain their own credit. Secondly, there is the feeling that retailers' margins of profit sooner or later must return to the pre-war level and that those who are not good managers will be poor credit risks. Consequently, the number of C. O. D. shipments is increasing.

Various Notes.

Our former associate, O. J. Friedman, has received much newspaper publicity in the last few days because of a 3-story business block he will erect on Upper Michigan avenue, opposite the Drake hotel. The building will be on land leased for twenty-five years with an option to purchase within ten years at $225,000. The unusual feature is that should Mr. Friedman exercise his option of purchase, which would represent a profit of about $150,000 to the seller, he contracts also to pay whatever income tax the seller is required to pay on that sum.

For many years Wietor Bros. have grown a part of their carnations under glass throughout the life of the plants. When weather conditions are favorable, the stock which spends two or three months in the field does as well, but in seasons that are wet or dry the stock under glass has an advantage. N. J. Wietor says the difference is especially marked this year, the plants which have never been outside being as good as he ever saw them at the beginning of September.

George Mohn, for many years with Vaughan's Seed Store and at one time with George Wienhoeber, September 6 joined the staff of the E. C. Amling Co. He will spend a considerable part of his time visiting retailers and growers.

Arthur Weatherwax, of the W. J. Smyth establishment, leaves September 9 for a fortnight's vacation trip to Detroit, Buffalo and New York city.

Carl Hausserman, of Melrose Park, probably was the first to ship sweet peas this season. He made his first picking about August 25 and now sends in several thousands a day. The quality is excellent considering the high temperature.

Joseph Foerster and George Asmus, with their wives, returned September 5 from the S. A. F. convention, having

WHOLESALE CUT FLOWERS and SUPPLIES

30 East Randolph Street CHICAGO

Review. The retail department is installing a large new Buchbinder display refrigerator in silver gray.

One by one the wholesale houses are buying motor trucks to handle their cartage to and from depots when express company service is not available, and for deliveries to customers. John Kruchten Co. recently has put a Reo speed wagon on the street, carrying the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," and presenting rather the niftiest appearance of any of the wholesalers' equipages.

P. C. Schupp says this autumn finds the J. A. Budlong Co. at the end of its best summer to date. He believes he has helped the trade in general by his efforts to keep business going full speed during the heated term.

Wendland & Keimel Co., at Elmhurst, made no fuel contract this season, but have been buying whenever spot coal of the grade they wanted was offered at an attractive price. As a result they have in storage on the place about 1,800 tons, which has cost all the way from $2.25 to $2.75 per ton, as against the declined contract price of $3.40. They use about 3,200 tons per season. Mr. Keimel believes there will be a fuel pinch in the next few weeks, but that the market will again be easy before he needs to reënter it.

Miss Nettie L. Parker, secretary and treasurer of A. T. Pyfer & Co., Inc., returned last week from an enjoyable vacation of three weeks and Mr. Pyfer took advantage of the opportunity for a three days' auto trip with his family, over the week end.

F. M. Johnson returned last week from a business trip by automobile which included the S. A. F. convention, New York city and numerous cities en route. He had one or more of the Randall men with him all the way.

The passing of Labor day brings W. J. Smyth, the trade's greatest treasurer, back from his summer home near Antioch.

John Healy, at 428 Austin avenue, in Oak Park, has prepared for an active season by installing a complete outfit of Buchbinder fixtures in ivory enamel, including a workbench Sidney Buchbinder says soon will be as indispensable to a florist as a kitchen cabinet is to a housewife.

Max L. Cohen, who runs the Jackson Floral Shop, at 748 East Sixty-third street, has become imbued with the spirit of progress, which is rampant in that neighborhood just now. He has increased the depth of his salesroom by moving his icebox back about ten feet, has put in a tile window and changed the lighting fixtures, to make his store one of the bright spots in a bright neighborhood. He is increasing his advertising and features the telegraph delivery service. He says business never was better at this time of the year.

There has been such a grand rush for Kroeschell boilers this summer, says Fred Lautenschlager, that he has been forced to cancel his plans for a vacation. He will stay at his post until the rush is over, which is indefinite, as the present outlook indicates that orders will continue to come in numerously for some time.

Visitors.

A. M. Terrill, of Calgary, Alta., was among last week's visitors. He had been on a long vacation trip, during which he visited no florists, but on his way home he stopped to look over this market, as he is a large buyer here.

The Market.

Business during the last week looked like old-time September. Stock can be had at a nominal figure and is in good condition. Most promising are the roses, of which there are plenty to meet all demands. They are in the pink of condition. Among the most popular is the new Angelus, which is a promising white and a good keeper. The other varieties are Butterfly, Premier, Ophelia and Columbia.

Gladioli are also arriving in plenty and are good. They move readily at prices up to $4 per hundred. Asters, which did not look so promising a few weeks ago, are now arriving so thick and fast that the wholesaler finds a considerable number on hand at the close of the day. Dahlias are making their appearance more and more as the season progresses, but they do not keep well, because of the hot weather.

A few short carnations move fairly well, because of their popularity here, and they look good. Miscellaneous stock, including buddleias, cosmos, feverfew, zinnias, physostegias and gaillardias, moves well. Last week was a good week for green goods.

Various Notes.

Mrs. H. W. Sheppard was operated on for appendicitis Wednesday, August 31, and Mr. Sheppard reports that she is recovering rapidly.

C. E. Critchell reports a good week in the sale of southern smilax, and also in the sale of supplies. He has been receiving some excellent roses from Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., and from E. A. Newman, of Centerville, O.

The William Murphy Co. has been receiving some fine dahlias of the Delice variety and some good America gladioli from William Taylor, of Price Hill.

Lee Witter, of the Wm. Murphy Co. during the winter and with the Syracuse ball club during the summer, is doing finely in his summer line.

E. A. Forter reports a good week in funeral work and also adds that a number of wedding orders have been booked for the coming week.

Irvin Gebhardt, of the Tromey, reports a good week in funeral work.

has been moving around the market lately at a gait which indicates that the company is doing some brisk business.

Ed. Buschle, shipping clerk at C. E. Critchell's, was married Wednesday, August 31, to Mrs. C. Piccard. They are motoring through the east on a honeymoon and they will reside at Oakley on their return.

Charles Murphy, of Price Hill, for a long time known as an excellent carnation and chrysanthemum grower, has now tried his luck at growing roses and his first shipment shows they are as good as any that are arriving in this market.

Among the visitors last week were M. Hiller, of Cohen & Hiller, New York; P. O. Coblentz and son, of New Madison, O.; Joseph H. Hill and Peter Bly, of Richmond, Ind., and Miss Hofe, of Honaker Bros., Lexington, Ky.

A new florists' supply house has been opened in this city at 311 Syracuse street by B. Fern, formerly of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. The firm expects to handle a full line of supplies and also has a patent on a refrigerator.

The Market.

There has been nothing unusual and practically no change in the last week. Roses and carnations have been so scarce that many out-of-town buyers cannot get their orders completely filled. This shortage probably will not be for long, however, as young stock must soon be producing. Local trade has been just

SCRANTON, PA.

The Scranton Florists' Club will hold a fall flower show November 8 to 11 at the Armory. Preparations for a splendid exhibition have been made and a large number of entries is expected. A summarized premium list has been sent out. There will be three prizes in each class. All the classes will be open to private growers, commercial growers and retailers. The secretary, Francis J. Moran, 302 North Main street, desires to receive as soon as possible the names of those intending to exhibit. The classes for which prizes will be given include those for single chrysanthemum plants in pots and tubs as well as groups, vases of cut chrysanthemums, groups and specimens of ferns, palms, orchids, cyclamens, cherries, begonias, peppers, primulas, carnations, roses, snapdragons, sweet peas, table decorations, baskets, bride's bouquet and corsages.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

August 29 to September 3 was the worst week of the season in the cut flower market. There were twice as many good flowers as could be sold to advantage. The result was a thoroughly demoralized market. The tough part about it was that the flowers were so good. In summer good flowers are often hard to get, but here was a wealth of good flowers begging. Take asters, for example. There were fine outdoor asters, there were wonderful indoor asters, there were those famous asters from New York state. Ordinarily such stock is worth $50 to $60 per thousand at the least. It could readily be bought for $20. The wholesalers felt dreadfully about it. They did not mind their own losses nearly so much as they did the losses of the growers, making such poor returns for such fine stock.

The facts are that more outdoor stock is being grown this season than for the last four years, that the weather has favored production at this time and that the demand has fallen off. The first two-thirds of August, business was excellent. The closing one-third of August, it was poor. Up to Labor day, September is always dull. Despite the heat, and it has been hot, dahlias are getting into form. The buyers say that the cactus dahlia is the type for warm weather because of its better keeping qualities. Attraction, Bianca and Princess Juliana are the varieties now most favored. There is a considerable number of wedding orders for the coming week. Lilies of the valley and Russell roses are in good demand and supply.

The Chair Carnival.

There was a rolling chair parade on the Atlantic City board walk September 7 and 8. For it J. J. Habermehl's Sons had a great deal of work that may be described as decorative. They decorated many of the chairs in competition for prizes. Think of the responsibility of decorating chairs that are to compete against each other. They decorated a section of the board walk itself and they decorated the ballroom on the million-dollar pier. Any one of these three jobs was a pretty big thing, but all three together were merely a little agreeable exercise to J. J. Habermehl's Sons.

Club Meeting.

The opening meeting of the season was held Tuesday evening, September 6, at the City Club. President Alfred M. Campbell was in the chair. The gifted L. K. Peacock, of Williamstown Junction, N. J., spoke on "Dahlias." There was a large exhibition of novelties and standard dahlias from the Peacock Dahlia Farms, of Williamstown Junction, N. J.; R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md.; Hugo Kind, Hammonton, N. J., and the New Jersey Dahlia Farms.

The following were nominated for office for the ensuing year: President, Alfred M. Campbell; vice-president, Fred J. Michell, Jr.; secretary, Robert Kift; treasurer, George Craig. The attendance was large.

Baseball.

The Robert Craig Co. was defeated by the Bickmore Greenhouses August 29 in a double figure contest. The score was 14 to 11.

The game, Bickmore vs. Rice, scheduled for September 1, was not played.

One more game, Bickmore vs. Craig, is scheduled for this week. This game will probably close the baseball season.

Edward Reilly, manager of the Independents, said that his team had completed its schedule. James Kilgallen, the hard-hitting second baseman of the Pennocks, said that shorter days and vacations made it unlikely that this team would be seen on the diamond again this season.

The standing of the clubs is:

	Won	Lost
Pennock	4	0
Independents	4	3
Craig	2	1
Bickmore	2	2
Rice	0	4

Two other games were played. One, Craig vs. Rice, was a tie. The other, Craig vs. Independents, was decided no game on account of poor grounds.

The Market.

The first week in September, 1921, will be remembered as one of intense heat and a thoroughly congested flower market. Business fell to the lowest level of the year. There was a fitful and feeble demand for the large shipments of seasonable flowers arriving and prices are almost unquotable. Business was dull until the heat wave struck us. A temperature of 93 in the shade on three successive days almost put a complete quietus on flower buying.

Gladioli continue to arrive in great numbers, in spite of the fact that many are unsold and that prices for what are sold are extremely low. Asters are in the same position. They are numerous and of superfine quality, in spite of all pessimistic talk about stem-rot and other affections. the great variety of other annuals coming in.

There are not many lilies apart from short-stemmed speciosums and they sell poorly. Carnations with short stems are arriving, mostly outdoor picked. They are small and of inferior quality, and few people want them while splendid asters go begging. Roses have had a hard time, but, thanks to the present cooler weather, are recovering a little. Prices last week fell to new low levels. A few montbretias, tritomas and aconitums are seen. Larkspur is abundant and sells poorly.

There are no cattleyas except a few hybrids, which realize high prices. Some bouvardia and poor quality valley are about the only choice flowers procurable. A little stephanotis this week, a one-time favorite, seemed something of a novelty.

Club Field Day.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club was favored with clear, warm weather September 3 for the field day at Framingham. The shade temperature of 93 degrees was tempered, however, by a pleasant breeze, and about fifty ladies and gentlemen spent a pleasant and profitable afternoon. The Framingham Nurseries and the nurseries of the American Forestry Co. were visited. Description will be found in the Nursery Trade department of this issue. Everyone enjoyed the field day immensely and those who failed to attend missed a great treat.

Seen at Cliftondale.

There is always much of interest at William Sim's well-kept Cliftondale establishment. The numerous greenhouses have all been planted some time with carnations to the total number of 200,000 and the stock looks remarkably good. This year Mr. Sim changed the soil in all his greenhouses for the first time in twenty years and it was a huge task, but, from present appearances, the added vigor of plants proves that it will pay.

A crowd of boys was busy finishing the second tier of strings to the carnations and quickly and deftly they worked. It takes two and one-half tons of galvanized wire each season to attach the cross strings to. No wire is ever used a second season—too much work to clean it. About all the houses have been painted inside and out this season and look spick-and-span.

Carnations here are planted 8x8 inches and pickings will commence about the middle of September. Pink Delight is heavily grown, some 40,000 being planted. Laddie is a great favorite and Morning Glow occupies much more space than it did a year ago. Hope Henshaw and Lassie are each being given a good trial. In whites, White Delight and Matchless are grown. Strange to say, Matchless, which usually makes such a large plant in the field, is here smaller than most of the other varieties.

Aviator is the favorite scarlet, filling one large house. It is quite free and was just coming into crop. After producing the holiday crop, these will be pulled out to make room for young stock. Smaller lots of Belle Washburn and Herald are grown. Benora and Coolidge are grown for variegated and Ward is the standard rose pink. For a dark pink, Rosette has entirely displaced Rosalia. Maine Sunshine is being grown as a yellow. One long bench is entirely devoted to seedlings.

It seems somewhat strange not to have a solitary plant but carnations at Cliftondale, where formerly were grown such wonderful tomatoes, polyanthus, sweet peas and violets, but carnations prove more profitable. A comfortable pile of coal, 1,000 tons, cost this season about $5.50 per ton less than a year ago.

It is a treat to look over the fields, many acres in extent, where truck crops are grown. Sweet corn was formerly a great specialty, but the attacks of the corn borer caused an abandonment of its culture. Now beets, carrots, cabbage, onions, string beans and spinach are chiefly grown and it was a pleasure to see the uniformity, general excellence and cleanliness of all the crops.

Mr. Sim leaves this week with his wife for a fortnight's rest on a quiet island off the Maine coast, where telephones and other modern institutions will not worry him. He can rest comfortably knowing that the Cliftondale range is in better condition than ever before.

At Framingham.

Cattleyas may be scarce, but they are never unprocurable at J. T. Butterworth's, at Framingham, where orchids rule the roost. Some fine hybrids are now in flower and many more in sheath. The big blocks of labiata, Trianæ, gigas, Mossiæ, etc., are in splendid shape and carrying swarms of sheaths, while Lælia anceps is sending up thickets of spikes.

A considerable number of cypripediums are in bloom and the big batches of insigne, including scores of handsome plants of Laura Kimball, Harefield Hall and Sanderæ, are just starting to push up their spikes. Vanda tricolor, Dalkeith form, was in good bloom and numerous spikes were carried. Some were already in flower on Oncidium varicosum Rogersii.

The erection of new stagings in a house now tenanted by mums shows that orchids will ere long drive out all other plants here. The great batches of cymbidiums, odontoglossums, miltonias, lycastes, dendrobes and zygopetalums never looked better.

It is a real delight to visit a commercial establishment where attractive flower borders, well kept, flank the approach. Here, thanks to the landscape abilities of Mrs. George W. Butterworth and Miss Rachel Butterworth, a charming and tastefully planted formal garden greets the customers, a garden in which verbenas, petunias, browallias, nicotianas and other annuals hobnob with perennials like Anemone japonica, Artemisia lactiflora, blue salvias, Michaelmas daisies and larkspurs. The absence of red flowers, notably scarlet salvia, was a welcome relief. Too bad that more florists cannot plant such a garden as this, restful, satisfying and charming in its simplicity.

Miss Butterworth is now visiting Philadelphia and Long Island, probably with the idea of getting new garden ideas for Framingham. In the former city, gardens seem to have a special attraction for her.

Various Notes.

F. E. Palmer has a grand lot of cyclamens this season at his Newton street greenhouses. There are 2,500 of them. Some are in 10-inch half pots, others mostly in 5-inch and 6-inch, with tough, leathery foliage and bristling with flower spikes. Begonias, hydrangeas, solanums, chysanthemums and other stock are coming along in fine shape for the coming season.

At the dahlia show in Horticultural hall, September 10 and 11, the Dahlia Society of New England provides seventy-two additional classes, all for the dahlias, with liberal cash premiums, in addition to the classes provided by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and a big exhibition is assured.

Miss A. E. Irby and Miss Kate Harris, of the Flower Shop, Memphis, Tenn., were visitors here last week, attending the wedding of a friend in Braintree. They visited the flower markets, commission dealers and leading retailers and were entertained with a dinner at the Copley Plaza hotel, and in spite of unseasonable heat, enjoyed their visit to the Hub.

August gave us but one temperature over 90 degrees, this coming at its close, when the temperature reached 92 degrees. While it seemed to be an unusually cold month, the weather bureau states that there was 23 degrees excess temperature over normal. This makes the fourteenth consecutive month we have had warmer weather than normal, with a total excess temperature amounting to 1,601 degrees. It was much drier than usual, no rain falling in the last half of the month at all.

Henry Penn, Elijah S. Gorney, Henry M. Robinson and nearly all retailers and wholesalers who have been away on vacations are now back at their posts, ready for the fall campaign.

Joseph Fuller, of Leominster, and his grower, W. Hollingsworth, were among those at the Framingham field day. Mr. Fuller says he has a splendid lot of cyclamens, begonias, ferns, Golden Glow and other mums, poinsettias, etc., for the coming season.

Duncan Finlayson, with his wife and family, is enjoying a vacation at Bar Harbor, Me. Peter M. Miller, of the T. J. Grey Co., is visiting the same picturesque Maine resort.

George E. Baldwin, Mamaroneck, N. Y., was a visitor last week. He made calls on the leading orchid specialists.

James Wheeler, of Natick, has half of his largest greenhouse, 60x300, devoted to Godfrey callas this season, as well as one entire, somewhat smaller house. Outdoors he has worked up fine stocks of pachysandra, Evonymus radicans and taxus.

Boston's big show of tropical ferns, with other seasonable plants, will open September 22. Many noted commercial firms, including the F. R. Pierson Co.,

B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, is growing about twenty acres of dahlias, in addition to gladioli, at Cedar Acres Nurseries, Wenham, this season.

Meetings of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will resume at Horticultural hall September 20.

Thomas Roland has over 12,000 cyclamens of grand quality at his Nahant greenhouses this season. W. N. C.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The supply of outdoor stock has been plentiful, to say the least. Roses have also been in heavy supply. The demand has been light, owing to the usual summer dullness. Funeral work has furnished most of this summer's business.

Publicity.

August 30 the Western New York Florists' Publicity Committee held a meeting at the Iroquois hotel. This was the first meeting following the summer recess. Plans were discussed for the fall publicity campaign. Many ideas were suggested and discussed, but definite action was postponed until the next meeting, when the members will report on what their investigation of conditions brings to light. It is expected that the campaign will be under way by September 15. Contrary to some rumors current, the Buffalo campaign is going on, bigger and better than ever, and has assisted the industry to a great extent.

Growers' Meeting.

The western New York district of the National Flower Growers' Association met September 1 at 8 p. m. at the store of the W. F. Kasting Co., the board of directors having held its regular monthly meeting at 5 p. m. on the same day. The meeting in the evening was well attended and by the spirit shown plainly demonstrated the rapid progress this organization is making at the present time. C. F. Treichler presided. After the minutes of the previous meeting and the intervening directors' meetings had been read and approved by the members, G. F. Wheaton, of the state department of agriculture, addressed the meeting on the European corn borer, its habits and the methods of controlling its spread. The address and the discussion which followed brought out many points on this problem and cleared the minds of many as to what should be done to prevent further spread of this pest.

H. B. Brookins made a report on the S. A. F. convention, paying particular attention to the reports and activities of the national publicity committee. The growers' conference was reported by E. M. Naukam and the members heartily approved of the action taken at the conference with reference to proposed changes in the national policy.

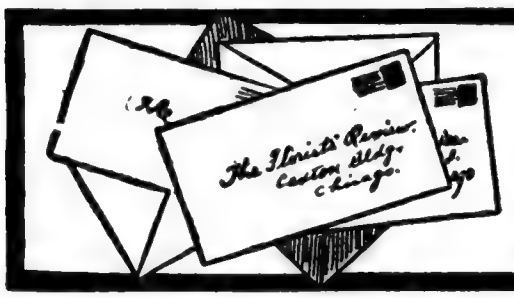
Many topics of local interest were discussed, to the advantage of all. A membership drive was inaugurated, with "Every member get a member" as the slogan. Communications were read from J. F. Ammann, secretary of the national organization, relative to national business and favorable action was taken. The members were asked to make more use of the secretary's office and the secretary was voted a salary. A credit bureau for the use of members will be established in the near future. The secretary is collecting, by the use of a questionnaire, data relating to the material used in the maintenance of greenhouses. These data, when tabulated, will be of great assistance to the members in ascertaining costs, etc. It is intended to have much of this statistical information at the local headquarters for future reference. It was decided to hold more meetings of the members, as it was found that we were all receiving a great deal of benefit from the friendly discussions held at these meetings.

Building.

C. F. Treichler reports the completion of the addition to his range at Sanborn. The new house covers about 13,000 square feet of ground and will be devoted to roses.

Schwerdt & Berner, at Forks, have erected a house, 24x100, which is a model in neatness and design.

Jerry Brookins & Son have been utilizing the good weather by overhauling their entire range at Orchard Park. H. B. Brookins, who has had charge of the work, believes he has eliminated all possibility of a breakdown in his heating apparatus. They are also erecting a small house, which will be devoted to the production of Francis Scott Key roses.



Barney Myers has been renovating the range of W. J. Palmer & Son, at Lancaster, and at present reports a heavy crop.

C. T. Guenther has rebuilt practically

SALESMEN

What would you do? [illegible]

A party who sold trees and shrubs for an eastern nursery for [illegible], visited our Nursery last week and told us, "If my customers can have their choice, strong and thrifty stock at the same price delivered by truck, and I can make the same commission, then I can do twice the business I did last year." He will sell our trees and shrubs. Are you interested in a larger income?

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

FROM a condition of world oversupply we seem to be swinging into a position where an active demand for seeds would create a condition of worldwide scarcity.

FRANK STEFFAN, formerly with the Livingston Seed Co., of Columbus, O., is now in charge of the seed department at the Wilson Seed & Floral Co., of that city.

AS receiver for Arthur T. Boddington & Co., New York, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed by H. Langeler, Judge Mayer appointed Benjamin Bernstein under bond of $1,000.

THE Lakeview Bulb Nurseries, of Kirkland, Okla., have been incorporated with a capitalization of $50,000. The incorporators are John Van Aalst, E. R. Peterson and Gertrude Van Aalst.

IN planning the 1922 catalogues, seedsmen find it possible to buy paper at lower prices than those paid last year, but other costs remain at the peak. Printing is not cheaper except where someone cuts prices for an immediate job to keep a plant running.

THE tomato seed crop on the Pacific coast is not so promising as it was recently reported. A. B. Haven, president of the Haven Seed Co., Santa Ana, Cal., states that it has gone off considerably of late and does not promise so large a yield per acre as last year. This year's acreage is half of last year's.

THE National Canners' Association announces the annual pea can as 8,207,000 cases for 1921, as against 12,317,000 for 1920. By states the record for 1921 was: Wisconsin, 4,063,000; New York, 1,382,000; Michigan, 317,000; Indiana, 182,000; Maryland, 533,000; Ohio, 241,000; Delaware and New Jersey, 345,000; Utah, 376,000; California, 84,000; Illinois, 331,000; all other states, 353,000.

THERE has been a free movement of crimson clover seed in Tennessee, Alabama and Maryland producing sections during the past three weeks, and only about ten to fifteen per cent of the supply produced is still in the hands of growers. The price being paid to growers, according to reports submitted to the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the Department of Agriculture about August 23, ranged from $8.50 to $9.50 per hundred pounds in Tennessee, $9 in Alabama and $10 in Maryland, basis clean seed, which is $1 to $2 per hundred pounds higher than three weeks ago.

THE total movement of cantaloupes from the Rocky Ford district of Colorado for this season was estimated August 31 at from 2,000 to 2,400 cars, compared with a total movement last year of 2,453 cars. After September 1 the movement is expected to decrease, although moderate shipments, including both Pink Meats and Honey Dews, are expected to continue throughout the greater part of the month. The original acreage this season was around 7,500 acres, but this area now is not over 6,000 acres, the decrease being due chiefly to floods, hail and rust. In most districts the rust is especially noticeable on Honey Dews, although in one or two districts the Salmon Tints are also affected. The prevalence of rust during August indicates a short season for this latter variety.

THRESHING of alfalfa seed was just beginning in the Pecos valley of New Mexico and Texas during the week ending August 27. The third crop instead of the second one will contribute the bulk of the 1921 production of alfalfa seed, not only in this section, but in Kansas and Oklahoma as well. The quality of the 1921 crop gives promise of being better than that of last year.

DURING the week ending August 27 about 104,000 pounds of timothy, 62,697 pounds of redtop and 33,000 pounds of alsike clover seed were exported from New York and Baltimore to Germany. There arrived during the same week at New York about 264,000 pounds of red clover, 66,000 of alfalfa, 278,000 of orchard grass, 54,000 of rape, 110,000 of canary, and 310,000 of sunflower seed.

THE Barteldes Seed Co., of Oklahoma City, Okla., has announced the sale of its retail store, at 320 West Main street, to the Batten Floral & Seed Co. The owners of the new store are C. E. Franke and C. A. Batten. Mr. Batten, who will be the manager of the new store, has been with the Stiles Floral Co. for the last fourteen years. Mr. Franke has been a florist and landscape gardener since 1880. The interior of the store will be remodeled and new fixtures will be installed in the flower department.

DICKINSON, AVIATOR.

Charles Dickinson, formerly president of the Albert Dickinson Co., is devoting his increased leisure to his latest hobby, aviation. Years ago, when the phonograph was young, Mr. Dickinson made it his plaything. Then it was the automobile, but neither of these has held his interest as the airship is doing. Mr. Dickinson, who was born May 28, 1858, is president of the Aero Club of Illinois and the oldest pilot in its membership and probably in America. Labor day the club held a race meet, in which nine pilots started. Mr. Dickinson came in fifth, only two minutes behind the winner, after having flown fifty miles and touched the wheels of his under carriage on four landing fields en route, without mishap.

VINE CROPS IN BAD SHAPE.

Advice received September 2 from the seed farms at Rocky Ford, Colo., by the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., is to the effect that the seed crops there are in critical condition. There is no available water in the Arkansas river for irrigation purposes, according to the report, and vine crops, especially cucumber, are said to be in bad shape. It is stated there is no chance for improvement and all districts are affected equally.

Before the above information was received the J. C. Robinson Seed Co. had issued its September report of corn and vine seed crop conditions, which described the situation in regard to these items as follows:

Field and sweet corn.—Eastern Nebraska has one of the finest corn crops in years. Plenty of moisture has developed a strong, sturdy plant that should produce healthy, normal ears of good quality. Conditions are about ten days ahead of normal.

Cucumber and muskmelon.—These vine crops are grown mostly in the Arkansas valley in Colorado and conditions affecting one affect the other equally. We believe the crop is not in as good shape as it was three weeks ago. Excessive rains have caused rust and some aphis has appeared. Crops not rusting and with no aphis are in excellent shape. The total tonnage harvested will be under normal.

Watermelon—The Florida crop is up to normal. Western and northern fields are in excellent shape. However, the western acreage is smaller than usual.

Squash and pumpkin.—The eastern Nebraska crops are in from fair to good condition. Central Nebraska has had drought, which will reduce yields. Colorado and far-west conditions are good, but many crops are late, owing to planting.

Seed beans.—The acreage is small and conditions are not so good as they were last month. We are of the opinion that many varieties of seed beans will be in short supply.

DUTCH CROP REPORT.

Under date of August, 1921, Sluis Bros., Ltd., of Enkhuizen, Holland, sent out a report of the crops in that country. "In general," states the report, "it may be said that early-maturing seed crops have yielded a fairly good crop of seed, while the later-maturing crops do not promise so well. We have had an exceptionally dry summer; week after week we have had splendid weather, but without rainfall. The early-maturing crops had sufficient moisture to enable them to develop to advantage, while crops which mature late have suffered partly through the drought and partly from insects, which have been numerous this summer. From present indications we expect that several of the leading varieties of vegetable seeds will be in short supply the coming season."

A general summary of the condition of flower seeds contains the statement that "generally speaking, the crops of flower seeds are all doing well, due to the fine weather we have had this summer. We expect to harvest a good crop of high quality seed. Nasturtiums have suffered somewhat from the drought and are expected to yield only a moderate quantity of seed. The acreage in most of the biennial and perennial flower seeds is still small."

Following is a detailed summary of the condition of a number of the various vegetable seeds, given by Sluis Bros.:

Broad beans.—The acreage is considerably smaller than usual. Several plots were badly infested with lice and had to be plowed up. The crop is expected to be rather light.

Table beet.—There is a small acreage out, but crops of this seed in general promise a good yield.

Stock beet.—We have a larger acreage of mangel wurzel and giant half-sugars than we have had the last few years and the outlook is for a fairly good crop of seed. The same applies to sugar beet seed.

Swiss chard.—The plants have developed well and promise a good crop of seed.

Brussels sprouts.—There is a small acreage. The seed will be threshed within the next couple of weeks and we expect that it will thresh out well.

Cabbage.—The acreage in cabbage seed this year was much smaller than it was in years past, due to the low prices which have prevailed during the last couple of years and which caused this to be one of the least paying seed crops. The seed will be threshed shortly and the yield is expected to be fairly good. Due to the fact that comparatively little cabbage seed has been grown this year, several of the leading varieties are expected to be in short supply. The outlook for the next year's seed crop of all cabbages is not promising. Due to the drought, the sowings in most cases have failed to come up and the acreage next year on this account, doubtless, will be still smaller than it has been this year.

Red cabbage.—What was written about white cabbage also applies to red cabbage. The acreage is small and the crop is light.

Savoy cabbage.—There is a moderate acreage and the yield is fairly good.

Cauliflower.—Due to the fine weather all summer, cauliflower has developed splendidly and we expect to harvest a good crop of highest quality seed. Especially the extra early varieties, such as Extra Early Snowball, Early Snowball, Extra Early Dwarf Erfurt and Dry Weather, have shown up beautifully this year.

Carrot.—The crops of carrot seed all look well and it is expected that a good crop of seed will be harvested. The acreage is only moderate.

Celery and celeriac.—Only a limited acreage is out. Plants have developed well and promise a good crop of seed.

Chervil.—This seed has been harvested. The acreage was smaller than usual and the yield is only moderate. It is expected that the supply of this seed will not be sufficient to meet the demand.

Chicory.—There is a fairly good-sized acreage of the large-rooted and the Witloof varieties this year. The plants have developed well and promise a fairly good crop of seed, but it is now too early to estimate the yield.

Cornsalad.—The acreage in cornsalad this year has been much smaller than it was last year. The seed has been harvested under favorable conditions and, contrary to most other years, the seed this year is of a bright color. The yield has been good.

Cress.—There is a normal acreage of cress and the returns are expected to be good.

Dill.—The crop of dill seed, both the common and the mammoth varieties, has developed well and promises a good crop of seed.

Endive.—There is only a small acreage out. The outlook is, however, for a good yield.

Herbs.—We are growing this year all the principal kinds of herbs. The annuals, such as borage, dill, summer savory, etc., have developed fairly well. However, a considerable acreage of borage has been lost. Some, such as hyssop, rosemary, rue, winter thyme, etc., promise a good crop of seed. Sage has not developed so well and it is expected that this seed will be in short supply again the coming season. The trouble with some of the perennial herbs is that it takes a few years before the plants really produce a good quantity of seed. We have increased our acreage of these kinds, however, every year during the last few years and it should not take long before we shall be able to meet the requirements of our trade, so far as these kinds of herbs are concerned.

Lettuce.—The crop has developed well, due to the fine weather we have had this summer. Neapolitan is again a failure with us.

Kohlrabi.—There is only a moderate acreage out. This, however, has yielded a good crop of seed.

Leek onion.—The outlook is for a good crop of seed. The crop is still free from blight and diseases, and we expect that we shall harvest a crop of seed of good quality. The acreage was only moderate.

Parsley.—There has been a fairly good-sized acreage of parsley this year. The crop has developed well and promises to yield well.

Parsnip.—There is a limited acreage and the crop looks fairly good.

Radish.—Radish, being one of the late-maturing crops, is one of the items which have not been doing so well, due to the drought, and we expect to harvest only a moderate yield of seed. The acreage is about the same as it was last year. The acreage in winter radishes, however, is small and the crop is in about the same condition as the other radishes.

Spinach.—There has been a normal acreage of spinach this year. The seed will be threshed within the next couple of weeks. Some farmers have threshed already, but most of them are delaying on account of the seed's not being sufficiently dried to be threshed and partly on account of the fact that they are busy at present cutting their grain crops. The yield is expected to be only moderate. The plants in the first part of the summer had developed well, but later in the season they were attacked by lice and this has prevented the top seed from developing. It is believed, therefore, that there will hardly be sufficient seed to go around, especially of those varieties which are used mostly.

Turnip.—The crop of turnip has been harvested, but the returns vary considerably. Several fields were badly infested with insects and the yields of those crops has been light, while others have produced a good crop of seed. We expect, however, to deliver in practically all varieties.

Rutabaga.—The acreage in rutabaga, due to the greatly reduced prices of this seed, has been much smaller this year than it has been normally in the past. The crop has also suffered from insects. We have harvested a moderate crop of seed.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Evergreen Nursery Co., Wilton, Conn.—A compactly printed folder, containing a wholesale list, principally of young stock for lining out in the nursery. As would be inferred from the firm name, evergreen stock has first place in the list, but deciduous shrubs, own-root roses and perennials also are offered.

Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.—A comprehensive and attractive catalogue of florists' supplies. It contains forty large pages, about 10x13½ inches. It is well illustrated, is printed on a fine quality of enameled paper and is bound in a tasteful brown cover. Christmas specialties are exploited in the first few pages; baskets and wire designs occupy a large part of the space. The other looked-for lines of supplies, whether purely ornamental or plainly useful, have their place in the book.

Sluis Bros., Ltd., Enkhuizen, Holland—"Preliminary Wholesale Catalogue of Vegetable and Flower Seeds," fifty-eight clearly printed pages, in a neat, cream-tinted cover. An introductory paragraph states that early deliveries of seed are possible, on account of recent favorable weather, but that "it is almost certain that several shortages will develop later in the season." The company announces that it now has "a direct service through the Panama canal to Pacific coast ports." The intention is that the "complete catalogue will be issued in the course of the month of October."

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

The W. H. Letton Seed Co., Atlanta, Ga., is well pleased with the season's average. It has been perplexing, but stocks running pretty even enables the company to meet unforeseen demands. The poultry department lends valuable aid to both city and country patronage.

"To get business, one must go after it," commented R. V. Harris, of the Harris Seed & Floral Co., Birmingham, Ala. The parking of cars has hurt the market garden trade in that our country patrons cannot bring Dobbin to town; so we have to go to them. Our grass seed end is booming; for instance, one order came in yesterday for 7,000 pounds of lawn grass to a landscape gardener. Our poultry branch is also productive. Just see this order for 1,700 pounds of poultry food." W. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Asters, though more plentiful than they ever have been before this season, are still scarcer than usual, and the prices are much higher than normal. Local retailers are paying 50 cents a dozen wholesale, which is high. Dahlias are beginning to come into the market, but they are not plentiful or of good quality. Indications, however, are that within a couple of weeks they will be coming into the market in considerably larger quantities and that the quality will be much improved. Cosmos is just appearing and it looks as if there would be a good crop, both as to quantity and quality. Gladioli are rapidly disappearing. Roses are beginning to come in more freely and are of excellent quality.

Various Notes.

Trauth the Florist, 475 Orange street, has just renovated his store, so as to have it in first-class condition for the new season.

Charles E. Maillard, 487 Orange street, reports that business is dull, excepting for funeral work. There has been considerable of this kind of work within the last few weeks. R. B. M.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

We have been having another taste of genuine summer weather, which has had its effect upon the buying public. The recent rains have revived the outdoor stock and the market gardeners are bringing quantities of gladioli, asters, snapdragons, etc., and leaving them with the florists for whatever can be realized from them. The roses from new stock are now arriving in abundance and are of excellent quality, with practically no demand, except for an occasional wedding or funeral.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Lanternier are spending a few weeks at Kenosha, Wis. Clem Lanternier has returned home from the sanatorium at Oxford, O., where he had been spending several months regaining his health. He is much improved and ready to enter into the fall work.

The Blossom Floral Co. has just ended its second year in the business. Records show for the second year about a twenty-five per cent increase in business over the first year and the company feels that the prospects for the coming year are good for an increase. The company reports business as mild now, with a few weddings to break the monotony of the funeral work.

Ralph Tinkham, of the House of Flowers, has been busy the last few weeks remodeling his store. It is all completed now and is an attractive room. The room was extended about fifty feet and a fountain was installed, along with a new office compartment. For the coming season Mr. Tinkham expects to have a gift shop in connection with his business, handling the line of goods that is usually carried in that business. Mr. Tinkham is spending the week-end at one of the lakes in Michigan.

The firms of W. J. & M. S. Vesey and the Flick Floral Co. have both been greatly inconvenienced by the paving of Thompson avenue, upon which they are located. The street was lowered in some places about four feet, which necessitated removing all the beautiful shade trees along the street, some of which were old forest trees. Judge and Mrs. Vesey have returned from an extended motor trip through the east. Fred Helgren, foreman for W. J. & M. S. Vesey, and Nelson Butler, the orchid specialist, spent a week-end at Morton Grove.

Among the trade visitors recently have been the following: C. M. Pletcher, of Wakarusa, Ind.; W. W. Dederick, of Warsaw, Ind.; Charles Treffinger, Van Wert, O.; Chas. J. Reeves, of the Nunnally Co., Atlanta, Ga.; Alex. Shawyer, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa. S. N.

Ala. The parking of cars has hurt the market garden trade in that our country patrons cannot bring Dobbin to town; so we have to go to them. Our grass seed end is booming; for instance, one order came in yesterday for 7,000 pounds of lawn grass to a landscape gardener. Our poultry branch is also productive. Just see this order for 1,700 pounds of poultry food." W. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Asters, though more plentiful than they ever have been before this season, are still scarcer than usual, and the prices are much higher than normal. Local retailers are paying 50 cents a dozen wholesale, which is high. Dahlias are beginning to come into the market, but they are not plentiful or of good quality. Indications, however, are that within a couple of weeks they will be coming into the market in considerably larger quantities and that the quality will be much improved. Cosmos is just appearing and it looks as if there would be a good crop, both as to quantity and quality. Gladioli are rapidly disappearing. Roses are beginning to come in more freely and are of excellent quality.

Various Notes.

Trauth the Florist, 475 Orange street, has just renovated his store, so as to have it in first-class condition for the new season.

Charles E. Maillard, 487 Orange street, reports that business is dull, excepting for funeral work. There has been considerable of this kind of work within the last few weeks. R. B. M.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

We have been having another taste of genuine summer weather, which has had its effect upon the buying public. The recent rains have revived the outdoor stock and the market gardeners are bringing quantities of gladioli, asters, snapdragons, etc., and leaving them with the florists for whatever can be realized from them. The roses from new stock are now arriving in abundance and are of excellent quality, with practically no demand, except for an occasional wedding or funeral.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Lanternier are spending a few weeks at Kenosha, Wis. Clem Lanternier has returned home from the sanatorium at Oxford, O., where he had been spending several months regaining his health. He is much improved and ready to enter into the fall work.

The Blossom Floral Co. has just ended its second year in the business. Records show for the second year about a twenty-five per cent increase in business over the first year and the company feels that the prospects for the coming year are good for an increase. The company reports business as mild now, with a few weddings to break the monotony of the funeral work.

Ralph Tinkham, of the House of Flowers, has been busy the last few weeks remodeling his store. It is all completed now and is an attractive room. The room was extended about fifty feet and a fountain was installed, along with a new office compartment. For the coming season Mr. Tinkham expects to have a gift shop in connection with his business, handling the line of goods that is usually carried in that business. Mr. Tinkham is spending the week-end at one of the lakes in Michigan.

The firms of W. J. & M. S. Vesey and the Flick Floral Co. have both been greatly inconvenienced by the paving of Thompson avenue, upon which they are located. The street was lowered in some places about four feet, which necessitated removing all the beautiful shade trees along the street, some of which were old forest trees. Judge and Mrs. Vesey have returned from an extended motor trip through the east. Fred Helgren, foreman for W. J. & M. S. Vesey, and Nelson Butler, the orchid specialist, spent a week-end at Morton Grove.

Among the trade visitors recently have been the following: C. M. Pletcher, of Wakarusa, Ind.; W. W. Dederick, of Warsaw, Ind.; Charles Treffinger, Van Wert, O.; Chas. J. Reeves, of the Nunnally Co., Atlanta, Ga.; Alex. Shawyer, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa. S. N.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"T'was the love for flowers and the joy they brought," observed Mrs. Robert Stiles, of Petersburg, Va., in her reason for entrance into the profession. That she has been eminently successful is evidenced in the inviting surroundings. Mr. Stiles is a valuable aid. Both agreed that the trip to the S. A. F. convention was well worth the effort.

* * * *

S. L. Coble, proprietor of J. L. O'Quinn & Co., Raleigh, N. C., found at the last moment he could not get to Washington to attend the convention and he expressed satisfaction with the able reports as conveyed in The Review.

* * * *

Richard Fowler, superintendent of the greenhouse branch of the J. Van Lindley Nursery Co., Greensboro, N. C., has added Crusader to the list of roses and he hopes it will prove as meritorious as Russell, Double Killarney, Hadley, Dunlop, Columbia, Premier, Mme. Butterfly, White Ophelia, Sunburst and Aaron Ward, now grown here, with Kaiserin the best summer-blooming variety. The entire output of 75,000 feet of glass is disposed of at the retail store, in addition to a fine lot of pot ferns and the usual forced bulbous stock.

* * * *

Samuel R. Aiken, of Scholtz the Florist, Charlotte, N. C., was decorating the window with ferns in baskets, interspersed with gladioli and asters, of which the company has a grand lot, and observed that it was the biggest mistake to allow the store window to rest at any time. He said, "It is just so much publicity and we figure upon a certain amount of expense in making a good show." A good season is reported, with every prospect of a continuance. W. W. Scholtz has charge of the greenhouses and is in line with a fine lot of carnations, ferns and blooming plants.

* * * *

Charles A. Moss, of Spartanburg, S. C., was caught on the fly, so to speak, for he had just returned from a vacation and had not had time to look around. Fortunate in having good help and a lucrative business, the result of hard work, Mr. Moss enjoys an occasional let-up, which prepares one for the season's long siege.

* * * *

Walter Lawrence, of the Lawrence Floral Co., Atlanta, Ga., observed that "there was so much to be seen at Washington, so many hustling salesmen to acknowledge, that he fairly tore himself away, before getting into too deep a hole."

* * * *

William Wainwright, of Mills, Inc., Jacksonville, Fla., happened in the capital city of the south on a vacation visit and mentioned that, while he noted advancement at Atlanta, progress is being made in the gateway to the land of Asparagus plumosus and the orange. He notes an increase each year of visiting fellow craftsmen from the north, expressive of prosperity. Mr. Wainwright extends a cordial welcome to all who, when passing by, will drop in on him. One of the sights is the grand lot of poinsettias in the city park, immense bushes, which do not affect the

The West View Floral Co., Atlanta, Ga., has the popular old mill scene arranged as a summer window display. This never seems to lose its attractiveness and furnishes ample opportunity for greenery or floral effects.

* * * *

Wachendorff Bros., Atlanta, are, as usual, to the front with a fine lot of carnations and chrysanthemums, in the face of counter attractions offered by the downtown stores. Remarkable progress has been made by the two brothers.

* * * *

J. P. Russell & Sons, Atlanta, Ga., are having big success with Rose Columbia. Three Foley houses, planted early, are in first cutting. The Stallings Flower Shop and Lawrence Floral Co. take the cut on alternate days and accommodate each other when necessity demands. The Russell establishment consists of seven acres of excellent land and more glass is contemplated.

* * * *

Logan D. Thompson, of the Dahl Co., Atlanta, returned from the S. A. F. convention, assured that this progressive city may be selected for 1923. Certain it is, it would be an eye-opener to those of the craft above the line who have never traveled below it. Business is opening up well. The store window carries some fine baskets of lilies.

* * * *

The Stallings Flower Shop occupies the smallest space on the busiest street and, possibly, pays the highest rent of any of its kind at Atlanta, but it gets the business.

* * * *

At the uptown station of the Southern railway, on Peachtree street, Atlanta, there is an enclosed flower garden attached. The ticket agent, W. E. Gaines, was gathering a bouquet of what he described as Henderson's Invincible

A Grip Story That Has A Grip

There recently appeared an advertisement in Printers' Ink, that kind o' set me to thinking. After which I stopped thinking, and commenced acting.

It seems the president of that company was passing through the Pennsylvania Station in New York, on his way to Chicago. He was met by the usual number of red cap porters, who offered to carry his grip.
He refused them all, saying he "needed the exercise."

Finally, just as he reached the gateway, and but a few steps from the train, a wide-awake porter held out his hand, and said: "Boss, I can carry your grip right on the train."

He gave him the grip before he had time to think, that so could the other porters carry it on the train.
When he sat down in his seat, started to figure out how that fellow got his grip and quarter.
Concluded it was because the others had simply offered their services; but the last one had told what his services would do for him.

It set me to wondering if we florists don't do a power of just offering, and a scant amount of telling what flowers will do? Don't we leave them to do too much of the selling talk? Flowers can be sold by real selling, just like anything else. Let's exchange ideas on the subject.

"How went the convention?" asked Hugh Seales, of the Seales Floral Co., Birmingham, Ala. "I had my grip packed and was all ready to go when I was stopped by almost an avalanche of funeral work and I have been kept busy ever since." Mr. Seales was working on a floral shield, a fine piece of work, especially when the shortage of flowers is considered. It was for one of our boys who had died in the service and the compliments paid the artist for the effort pleased him. The Seales greenhouses, some eighteen in number and under the charge of Hugh Seales, Jr., are in fine shape, overhauled and well stocked for a good season. Roses lead in cut flowers. Carnations and chrysanthemums follow in order.

Parker's Greenhouses, Birmingham, Ala., under the management of David Hope, are steadily increasing in productiveness. This season there was but a lapse of three weeks when carnations were not being cut. The plan of growing is first to pot into 2½-inch, then to shift into 3½-inch pots and then to bench. By this method, the plants are under control and allowed to bloom as soon as they can. A mulch of soot, sheep manure, phosphate and rotted cow manure is first applied; later there is given a top-dressing of bone meal. Chrysanthemums are grown for blooms of medium size. Poinsettias and begonias are grown for Christmas, but it is

There was a fire scare at the Tutwiler Flower Shop, Birmingham, Ala., when a large awning burned August 31. It was put out before much damage was done, so no interruption was caused to business, according to the proprietor, Mr. Fraser, of the Fraser Nursery Co., who commented favorably upon the pink section of The Review as a drawing card. Several appellate court decisions establish the proposition that the old mechanic's lien acts are not broad enough in their wording to give a lien for furnishing shrubbery, etc. For example, in the case of Eastern Arkansas Hedge Fence Co. vs. Tanner, 67 Ark. 156, the Arkansas Supreme court decided that one who planted a hedge fence was not entitled to a lien.

Supreme court ruled that a florist was not entitled under the then existent statutes of Tennessee to a lien upon a hotel and its adjacent grounds for his labor and materials, expended, under contract with the owner, in adorning and improving the property, by grading and graveling the grounds and walks, and by setting out flowers, shrubs, trees, etc. There the decision rested on the fact that the lien law was limited in its operation to such improvements as buildings, installation of machinery, etc. The court observed:

Shrubs as Improvements.

"In the case at bar the complainants 'improved' the property by putting on it flowers, shrubs, trees and by grading and probably graveling the grounds and walks, but they made no erections, structures, buildings, fixtures or machinery, unless the rustic bridge may be classed as such, and there is nothing to show how or out of what it was constructed, and it was plainly but a part of the grading and finishing the walks and drives, and an item of but little importance. If we should hold that a mechanic's lien exists for such work as this and such material and such improvements, we must also hold as a logical sequence that the person who, under a contract, fells the forest trees and turns the soil and puts the land in cultivation, and thus permanently improves it, has a lien for such services, and we must also hold that the dealer who furnishes the fertilizer to improve the ground also has a lien, and that the laborer who undertakes to do clearing, ditching and grubbing has a lien. Indeed, we can draw the line nowhere if it would include anyone who does any labor or furnishes any materials to permanently improve the land at any time. We think the statute refers to erections, structures, fixtures, machinery and buildings—things constructed upon the land—and not to the enriching of the soil and beautifying the grounds by planting flowers, shrubs and trees on it."

It will be understood that the Tennessee court was not criticizing the policy of giving a lien for landscape gardening, etc., but merely interpreted the provisions of the lien law. And it is probable that it is in response to such decisions that the legislatures of Illinois and other states have broadened the provisions of their lien laws. Perhaps a little activity on the part of nurserymen's associations would yield large results in the way of securing still more favorable amendments in different states, enlarging the scope of the lien laws.

California Cases.

In the case of California Portland Cement Co. vs. Wentworth Co., 16 California Appellate Reports, 692, the statute under consideration provided that anyone who should, at the request of the owner, grade, fill or otherwise improve a lot, etc., should have a lien for work done and materials furnished and was held to be broad enough to sustain a lien for grading hotel premises and for furnishing trees, shrubs, plants, flowers, seeds, bulbs, etc., in improving the premises. The California district court of appeals observed:

"The furnishing and planting of seeds, trees and shrubs, and the caring for the same for such a period of time as would insure that the seeds had become well started and that the plants and trees were thoroughly settled in the ground, would seem to be an improvement to the real estate which was among those intended to be included in the provisions of the lien law. It is probably not true that under the terms of this section, a gardener or tiller of the soil could claim a lien by reason of labor expended in the general care of trees and crops, but under the contract made by plaintiff it appears that he was only to plant the seeds, trees, flowers, shrubs, etc., and to see that they were well started after being placed in the ground. We think that the court properly allowed a lien for the amount hereinbefore mentioned.''

In the later case of Grom vs. Center, 26 California Appellate Court Reports, 198, the same court ruled that a lien could be enforced for planting a vineyard. After referring to an Alabama case, Donehoo vs. Johnson, 113 Alabama Reports, 162, holding that planting of an apple orchard was such ''permanent improvement'' of land as would support a lien claim, and other judicial authorities, the California court said:

''We can see no ground for holding that the planting of a vineyard is any less improvement to the land than the planting of lawns and shrubbery or of an apple orchard or of clover and meadow grass or the breaking and reducing of wild lands to cultivation. The planting of a vineyard is generally supposed to be not only an important and valuable improvement to the land, but one of a lasting and somewhat permanent nature. It is assuredly supposed to enhance the value of the land and the vines become a vital part of the realty. It is true that appellant did not furnish the vines, but the statute makes no distinction between the one who furnishes the material and him who performs the labor in effecting the improvement. The lien is granted for the 'work done and materials furnished.' '' bulblet formation, the latter being the most common and in middle latitudes the most practicable for the production of dormant bulbs.

At present it seems advisable for growers intending to produce dormant bulbs for sale to start their propagation from seed, because of the freedom from disease and the greater vigor and general cleanliness of such stocks when compared with abused imported bulbs.

A large measure of control can be exercised by the grower over the amount of propagation. If the stocks are set shallow, there will be less propagation by far than if the planting is deeper. In heavy, poorly aerated soils, however, there is a limit to the efficacy of deep planting, as the formation of bulblets is then mostly confined to the upper three or four inches of soil.

It is also feasible to increase the propagation by the addition of more mulch

Soil and Fertilizer.

The Bureau of Plant Industry is not in a position to discuss the subject of soil for Easter lilies exhaustively, for the reason that its stocks up to this time have been grown on only one type of soil. It can be said with confidence, however, that a clay loam is well adapted to the plants.

The soil on which these stocks of Easter lilies have been grown is basically a heavy, lean, bakey clay. This has been ameliorated with some sand, liberal dressings of rough manure, and cover crops. The response to this treatment has been all that could be expected. As already stated, the winter mulch has been left on during the summer, in order to prevent the soil from baking. Success has also been obtained with these lilies in a plastic clay fill, ameliorated with hard-coal ashes and rough organic débris.

The production of bulbs of the Easter lily is on a par with bulb production generally in so far as fertilizer requirements are concerned. The procedure is to have well fertilized soil and crop it to its limit.

Hearty Feeders.

knows that there is not much left in ordinary soil after a bulb has been grown in each 6-inch square. The plants are gross feeders and for good results must be supplied with an abundance of available plant food. A good market gardener's application of fertilizer will answer well.

The fertilizer used will be that which is most available. As already indicated, the experimental culture here described has been on poor soil fertilized with stable manure, and the ground has been covered with crops to turn under whenever the time during which it was not occupied would permit. Manures should be well incorporated and applied sufficiently in advance of planting to avoid the detrimental effects of raw fertilizers. Experience indicates that rots in the base of the bulbs are rather easily induced by carelessness in the use of manures.

Storage of Bulbs.

Bulbs of the Easter lily should be exposed to atmospheric influences as short a time as possible. Imported stocks are packed in pulverized, dry earth as soon as possible after they are dug. In this pack the bad effects of a bulb mass is avoided, the bulbs are kept dry and excessive desiccation is prevented.

Cold-storage handling has been developed to a high degree of perfection. The bulbs are held 2 degrees above the freezing point for a year, and in some cases for two years, and still they give results. They usually go into storage in the original pack.

The handling of home-grown stocks is, of course, a matter for experiment. There is much to learn about it. The temperature must be kept down, the atmosphere kept dry, and the ventilation controlled, so as to prevent the bulbs from wilting too much. These requirements are not difficult to fulfill in September or October in a reasonably well arranged building which is dry. The light on the bulbs should also be subdued, or they will turn green in a short time. It is particularly important that the atmosphere of the storage house be dry, because root action starts quickly in a moist atmosphere and blue mold is likely to cause trouble. If the bulbs must be kept out of the ground longer than a month, or six weeks at most, they are better packed in pulverized, dry earth, as are imported stocks.

Imperfect Storage Places.

Stocks of bulbs of the Easter lily have been carried by the Department of Agriculture on a basis not altogether ideal. The bulbs were out of the ground in 1920 from September 20 to November 1 and were somewhat wilted when planted, but not injuriously so. After digging they were worked over on the benches in a greenhouse, a bad place. They were then stored in a poorly ventilated half basement which was only moderately dry.

It is not a difficult matter to hold the bulbs over winter in the climate of Washington, D. C. They have been carried over for spring planting in almost perfect condition when packed, like imported bulbs, in dry sand in boxes and buried in dry earth under a porch of a dwelling. The boxes were put down in the ground one foot and had an added covering of another foot of dry leaves. These bulbs kept in good condition up to May 1.

Sizes of Merchantable Bulbs.

Imported stocks of Easter lily bulbs range in size from six to twelve inches in circumference, the price charged being roughly proportional to the size of the bulbs and indicating in a general way that there is merit in large size which is of advantage to the florist. There is a difference of opinion on this point, and some of the best growers use the smaller sizes.

Commonly, the prices quoted are the same per case for all sizes. In a recent quotation by one of the leading importers, five sizes of formosums, running from six to eleven inches, are advertised at the same price per case, but the number of bulbs in the case varies from 100 for the large size to 350 for the smaller. Here there is a difference of three and one-half to one when the number of bulbs is considered.

It is believed that the yield from the successful culture of imported bulbs is somewhere between three and five flowers per plant for all sizes. There are no comparative records of the performance of different-sized bulbs available, but practical growers express satisfaction with the yield mentioned.

Big Results from Small Bulbs.

Investigations by the Bureau of Plant Industry are not yet extensive enough to warrant more than partial conclusions with reference to these matters, but the few records which have been made seem to indicate that the performance of domestic stocks is superior to that of the imported bulbs; at least, results which are superior to those just mentioned are secured. This may be due to the better condition of the bulbs, owing to the short time during which the domestic stocks are out of the ground. It is not believed that the manner of handling accounts for the better behavior. Whatever be the cause, it has been possible to obtain an average yield of more than five flowers from bulbs only five to six inches in circumference, the smallest size that the florist uses, or smaller.

This in reality is a most important matter. It means that if satisfactory results can be secured under forcing conditions from domestic bulbs five to seven inches in circumference, they can be produced abundantly in one year from stem bulblets. This is not less than a year shorter time than is at present required to produce bulbs in foreign countries.

It should be noted that the best of the stem bulblets will bloom the first year of independent existence and grow to forcing size. In one test an average of more than two flowers per bulb was secured under forcing conditions from 110 selected bulblets, some producing five or six flowers.

Working Up a Good Strain.

But little has been accomplished in the segregation of uniform strains of Easter lilies. The seedlings are especially variable in form, and it is thought that selections based on individual performance will yield the best results. In seedlings in the vegetative condition upward of thirty more or less distinct types are recognizable. They have not been studied long enough to determine their relative qualities. This will take time.

The season at which distinctions in vegetative characters are most noticeable is that just preceding the formation of flower buds, strange as it may seem, but there are many characters which are quite pronounced even in the rosette stage. Selections can profitably be made before the buds show, and a reselection after the flowers open. It will probably be worth while also to make selections based on bulb characteristics.

Whether the early-flowered seedlings perpetuate the characteristic of early flowering in the vegetative progeny is not known. Some plants start into new growth early, i. e., the new crowns for the next year begin to grow even before the first flowers have faded. Fortunately, the percentage of these is small, and they probably should be eliminated. The desirable bulb is one that forms a large, promising crown for next year's performance which remains dormant during autumn if not disturbed.

Another aspect of the subject is the desirability of producing uniformity in seedlings, a much more difficult matter than to produce it in the vegetatively propagated progenies selected from these seedlings. This also is being attempted.

Easter Lilies in Beds and Borders.

No lily is more satisfactory for beds and borders than the Easter lily. It is also well adapted in our middle latitudes for permanent plantings. In spite of what has already been said about the necessity of making plantings so late that no top growth will take place, in a permanent planting there is a wonderful adaptation, and under ordinary conditions there is no more danger from forced early growth than with many other herbaceous perennials.

In permanent plantings the stems should be allowed to function until quite late in the autumn. If they do not die down naturally they can be allowed to grow until killed by frost. It is seldom cold enough for this, however, in the climate of Washington, D. C., before the regular time of planting, about November 1.

Seed on Border Plants.

In permanent plantings it is advisable to allow the plants to set seed. Observations seem to show that the stem functions longer in autumn when a crop of seed is being produced than when the pods have been removed. The late functioning of the old stem retards activity in the next season's growth until the ground becomes too cold for top growth to take place.

Late in the season, say about November 1, it is desirable to go over the beds and loosen the soil around the stems, being careful not to interfere with the bulbs. After the soil is loosened a quick jerk will remove the stem and its bulblets, leaving the bulb in place for next season's growth. It is desirable that this be done, in order to prevent the plants from becoming too crowded. Instead of jerking the stem out of the bulb, it may be cut off below the bulblets where the stem is bare. Deep planting—six to eight inches—is advisable for permanent plantings of this kind.

Outdoor Bloom from May till Frost.

Bulbs planted at the regular planting time, November 1, will bloom in the climate of Washington, D. C., in early July. If the bulbs are held over and planted as soon as the ground can be worked in the spring they will bloom a month later, and seedlings grown from sowings made January 1 will begin to open about the same time as spring-planted bulbs. These will continue to flower until frost.

To get blooms outdoors earlier than from normal stocks is a little more difficult, but still entirely possible. Bulbs can be put into 4-inch pots and set away at a temperature of 40 degrees early in the year. They can be kept in frames and brought to varying degrees of development by spring, when they can be knocked out of the pots and set in the open. It will make no difference except to slow up their growth if the temperature goes below the freezing point for short periods a few times after the plants are well rooted. Handled in this way, they can be brought to flower at least a month earlier than normal November-planted stocks, thus giving blooming plants outdoors from May until frost.

Reducing the Cost of Heat.

By a little maneuvering—and this is always necessary in getting a batch of lilies in bloom for any particular date—methods can be worked out for flowering lilies with much less cost for fuel than now obtains with imported stock.

Seedlings potted from the field in October, in various stages of development, can be put into groups according to size and held in frames until the first of the year if wanted for Easter. The most advanced of them will need no heat until a later date, and from that time they can be kept much cooler than is usual with freshly potted bulbs.

It is suggested that it may be entirely feasible to carry bulbs in ordinary storage so far into the summer that when planted out they can be repotted for winter flowering in the field after as much as a foot of stem has formed. With cold storage for a month or two, of course, this procedure would be possible.

It is thought that methods of timing stocks can be worked out for the warmer sections of California so that the plants can be brought into flower at almost any season with no artificial heat.

These possibilities, coupled with the further one of holding the cut flowers for two or three months in cold storage, suggest many modifications in handling and in supplying cut flowers for the market.

Resistance to Cold.

A light frost will not injure the Easter lily even when in flower. Plants in full flower and full bud have been known to withstand a temperature of 28 degrees at night with no permanent injury. A temperature of 26 degrees, however, killed all the flowers and buds except a few barely in view and amply protected by the surrounding leaves. On the gulf coast a drop from growing weather to 20 degrees is considered fatal to plants in vegetative condition.

The Market.

Last week was the dullest one in the entire past year; that is, taking from September 1, 1920, to September 1, 1921. There was nothing doing except a little funeral work. Stock was plentiful and of fine quality. So plentiful was it that Friday, the day when the street peddlers descend upon the market, they found all cold storage vaults filled to overflowing with as fine a line of stock as one could wish to see at this season. So great was the congestion that even these men, who are always ready to take a long chance, were unable to handle it, and they, like the regular retailers, would only consider the best grades and left the rest to be thrown on the dump, to which a great mass of it found its way. It was simply a case of entirely too much stock to supply the natural demand, or the demand that could be created by the street men. This is one of the emergencies that are bound to occur in any business handling a perishable product and there is nothing in this situation that should discourage anyone. In a few weeks business will be back to normal.

The six years' experience of the Bureau of Plant Industry has proved that this crop, when properly handled, is safely hardy in the climate of Washington, D. C. Proper handling means simply that the plants are set late, so as to insure dormancy during the winter. There are no data which enable one to judge just what the limiting temperatures are, but it has been amply demonstrated over a period of six years that the strains of the Easter lily worked with are hardy in the climate of Washington, where the normal minimum is 10 degrees and the temperature commonly goes to zero at some time during the winter.

Never have I seen better roses at this season than those offered last week, and it was certainly a great pity to see them get no farther than the wholesalers' icebox. Gladioli were splendid, nothing but the best commercial varieties, of unsurpassed quality. The man who had them just a little better was the man who was lucky; that is, to the extent of at least getting something out of his cut. Late asters were also good, but aside from funeral work there was no demand for them. When the street men can stock up on gladioli they will not touch asters.

The Big Street Pageant.

One day last week J. J. Perry called up and said, "Tate, we are going to have a meeting of the pageant committee Monday evening, August 29. Do you want to be there?" After assuring him that I was deeply interested and certainly wanted to keep in touch with everything the committee did, he said: "Be at the Pennock warerooms at 7:30 o'clock." I was on the job and am not sorry that I accepted Mr. Perry's genial invitation. There are times when a correspondent gets discouraged; when in reply to his question, "Anything new this week?" he continually gets the reply, "Not a thing that I know of," one is apt to get the blues and come to the conclusion that the florists' industry is dying a slow death. But after we all were seated in Mr. Perry's comfortable office and he had called the roll, to which every member answered present, the writer soon realized that he had made no mistake in calling it a pageant instead of a parade. Mr. Perry briefly stated the object of the meeting in the following words:

"The Florists' Club, at its last meeting, decided to hold a street pageant of flowers during the first part of October. The entire arrangements have been placed in the hands of this committee. We have met here tonight to outline tentative plans, that will be submitted at the club meeting September 12, and I want the ideas of every man here on this subject.''

It was then that any trace of blues left the writer. I think when President Graham appointed that committee he had in mind the promise that was made to the mayor personally and the public through the press that the street pageant would be a yearly feature. Space will not permit me to go into detail, but every man had been studying the question and was ready to express his views. The first thing decided was the date; this was fixed for Saturday, October 1, when dahlias and other outdoor flowers will be at their height and there will be no danger of frost. Then it was decided to have the pageant in three sections, a section for the florists, one for the outside commercial houses and one for the amateurs, with three substantial prizes for each section. One idea which was brought out and which is being worked upon is that every float entered by the florists should have a distinct meaning. For instance, one may be a bridal bower, with everything complete—the kneeling stool, background of palms, and boys and girls for the wedding party, each with the usual bouquet. In other words, the florists' floats will constitute a great flower show on wheels. On our smooth streets this can easily be done. All of the usual functions can be arranged, the dining room scene, the reception; in fact, every way in which you "Say It with Flowers." The next question taken up was the route. This was not definitely settled, but it was agreed that it would be longer than last year, taking in the Roland Park and Guilford sections, as well as the downtown section. To sum up, the committee means business; it is going to stage a pageant in which no man in the business can afford not to be represented. The com-

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The last week in August was reported by all branches of the trade as an exceedingly dull one. The weather was hot all week and caused the market to slump badly.

The retailers, who reported nothing doing except funeral work, bought sparingly. The result was a great surplus of stock in the iceboxes of the wholesalers after the morning sales were over, and prices had to drop several points in order to move it.

Roses are exceedingly plentiful in all varieties, especially Columbia. The jobbing of many thousands of them at as low as $10 per thousand to the downtown stores relieved the market greatly during the week. Gladioli are nearing their end. Still the supply is equal to the demand daily, and these alone held up in the price of first quality stock. Asters have been in excellent demand all through the season until the last week, when the demand slumped. Carnations are scarce at present, as the growers are disbudding them as long as asters can take their place.

Clematis paniculata is now coming in and first consignments always sell well. Single tuberose stalks, too, have been more plentiful than the demand calls for and are down to $2 per hundred spikes. Dahlias are in, but have not been in oversupply. A great crop is expected in the next few weeks.

Easter lilies are in good supply and the demand has been good. There is also an abundance of outdoor flowers in many varieties coming into this market daily, with little demand.

Greens of any kind sell well, especially asparagus and fancy ferns.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held its regular outdoor meeting September 4 in Webster Groves, at the United States entomological laboratory. The study of insects was up for discussion and proved an interesting feature.

Joseph Frank, who has spent the summer in the east, has returned and with his brother has opened his outdoor floral place at Sixth and St. Charles streets. During the cold weather months his business is done indoors in the 5 and 10-cent store.

L. P. Jensen, Fredrick W. Pape and Ernest Strehle composed the party from St. Louis that attended the park superintendents' convention at Detroit. They have returned home after visiting other points of interest near Detroit. They report a splendid meeting and a most enjoyable time.

All members of the executive board of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association are requested to attend the meeting of the board Tuesday, September 20, at 1316 Pine street, at 2 p. m.

The stork paid a visit recently to the home of Fred Michel, president of the George Waldbart Floral Co., and left a fine baby girl, the first-born.

The St. Louis Seed Co. has received its fall bulbs and the force put in a busy week filling many advance orders.

Vice-president A. H. Hummert says the outlook is excellent for a busy fall season.

Fredrick W. Pape, park commissioner, announced last week that, owing to a shortage of funds, 200 employees of the various parks throughout the city will be laid off until a new appropriation of funds is made.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its annual picnic September 15 at Little Creve Coeur lake. Arrangements will be made at this week's meeting to complete the program. Everybody in the trade is invited to come out and spend a day with the county growers.

The old as well as the new officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club met in conference September 1 at Treasurer Smith's home and arranged an interesting program for this week's club meeting.

Albert W. Gumz, who had been vice-president of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. since its organization, has resigned as a member of the firm. His resignation took effect September 1. Mr. Gumz will head a new wholesale house, which will open at 1314 Pine street sometime this month. Other members of the new company have as yet not been announced.

Blair Impson, of the Waldbart Floral Co., the last of the company's staff to take his vacation, has returned and is again on the job as buyer in the wholesale market.

William Dee, of the C. Young & Sons Co., who married Miss L. Lammers September 5, 1913, celebrated their eighth wedding anniversary on that date at their home in Olivette. Mr. Dee has charge of the company's range.

Grimm & Gorly experienced a busy day September 2, when the firm announced in the daily papers a special sale on roses at 25 cents per dozen. Manager Duernberg says the force was not equal to cope with the demands of the customers who crowded the store all day long. The 15,000 roses they disposed of greatly relieved the market.

The new range of houses that is being erected by the Bourdet Floral Co. and those of George B. Windler are nearing completion and will be glazed before Jack Frost's first visit. The H. J. Weber & Sons Co., which contemplated building a large range of glass this summer, will not begin until next summer.

J. F. Ammann met with a committee consisting of L. Jules Bourdet, W. A. Rowe, W. J. Pilcher, Julius Schaeffer, H. G. Berning, Oscar Ruff and J. J. Beneke at the office of the Bourdet Floral Co. September 2 for the purpose of perfecting an Allied Florists' Trade Association. J. J. B.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Business continues at a standstill. Stock is exceptionally plentiful, especially asters and gladioli. Dahlias have made their first appearance in this market, but the quality is not good. The better grades of American Beauty roses are being received in this market, but are in short supply. The shorter grades are plentiful in the market, but the quality is not high. Aster and gladiolus arrivals are the heaviest of the season. Most of the gladioli are small and not of much account. The supply of lilies is small and they are the only item that cleans up daily. Lilies of the valley also move slowly. Golden Glow chrysanthemums continue to make their appearance, but the supply is light.

burgh district, the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club and the Sewickley Horticultural Society at the Fort Pitt hotel, in the English room. Speakers will talk only on subjects that are of vital interest to the florist, whether he be a store man or a grower. The committee in charge has worked hard to obtain only high-class, representative speakers and after months of effort along this line announces that the speakers will be Albert Pochelon, of Detroit; Herman Knoble, of Cleveland; Prof. Wilde, of Pennsylvania State College, and J. H. Weisman, of Pittsburgh. The banquet at 6:30 will precede the addresses. Every florist, whether a member of the clubs or not, is invited and is requested to bring the ladies. Further particulars concerning this meeting can be obtained at the wholesale houses.

R. E. Wyland, of the H. V. Swenson Co., Chicago, visited this city last week.

William Turner, one of the prominent retail florists of Wilkinsburg, is running for the office of burgess of Wilkinsburg.

The Randolph & McClements store has been undergoing some extensive alterations. Among other things, they are installing a new refrigerating system. H. J. H.

Elmira, N. Y.—The greenhouse recently erected by Robert Klebert, on McCann's boulevard, is now open for business.

Dover, N. H.—Herbert E. Meader, known widely as a grower of gladioli, is planning to build a new greenhouse, which will contain 8,000 feet of glass.

Louisville, Ky.—The firm of Edith V. Walker & Bros. has been incorporated. The capitalization is $10,000 and the incorporators are Edith V. Walker, John David Walker and William G. Walker.

Sharon, Mass.—The firm of the Sharon Gladiolus Gardens has recently purchased the well known Tudor farm. The soil of this farm is particularly adapted to the growing of gladioli and the purpose of the firm is to establish a business on an extensive scale.

North Adams, Mass.—C. Quadland & Sons have obtained a permit for the erection of a greenhouse to enlarge their establishment on Houghton street.

Hoboken, N. J.—The Biot & Mouquin Co. has been incorporated to do a retail and wholesale business. The capitalization is $5,000, divided into fifty shares of $100 each. Peter E. Biot holds twenty-four shares. The other incorporators are Charles A. Mouquin, Elmhurst, L. I.; Gertrude L. Mouquin, Elmhurst, and Charlotte Biot.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

There are plenty of flowers here, but business has fallen into the dull summer stride and only a few funeral designs and a few decorations are to be had. Such flowers as gladioli, dahlias, asters, roses, etc., are in great profusion. These are to be had in many colors and are of good quality. The prices are becoming moderate and the sale of the flowers must soon improve. Practically the whole trade here complains of poor business at the present time, but it is enthusiastic about future business. A large funeral order now and then causes a spurt, but this soon dies down again to a slow pace. Things are looking good for a busy fall and winter. Many are preparing for it.

Various Notes.

The state fair brought many out-of-town visitors and was considered a great success. Among the exhibits of interest to florists, seedsmen and those in the pet business were the exhibits of the Wilson Seed & Floral Co., the Columbus Bird Store and the Fifth Avenue Floral Co. They had attractive booths, which were of great interest to the many who passed them.

James McKellar is about again after a short siege of illness.

Frank Steffan, formerly with the Livingston Seed Co., is now in charge of the seed department at Wilson's.

The McKellar Floral Co. is now running two stores, both within a few doors of Broad and High streets. The windows have been attracting much attention, due to the beautiful decorations and new color lighting system which have been recently installed.

Edward Hedges has left the Fifth Avenue Floral Co. and now has charge of the flower department at Wilson's.

Rolf Zetlitz was in Columbus last week inspecting his greenhouses here.

John Clark, formerly with the Munk Floral Co. and more recently with a Charleston florist, is now with the Fifth Avenue Floral Co.

The store of the Wilson Seed & Floral Co. is quite attractive since the remodeling of the front of the building and the installing of flower boxes on the window ledges.

Leo Miller is cutting some nice Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty roses.

M. C. Kent, of Newark, O., was in Columbus last week.

Another new flower shop will soon open in the Medical Arts building in the east end. The store will handle nothing but cut flowers and will make no designs.

Mrs. John W. Thompson has returned from Parkersburg, W. Va., where she has been spending her vacation. She was accompanied by her son, Richard, and Mrs. David M. Rees.

The Rolf Zetlitz Co. is cutting some fine Premier and Columbia roses.

The death of W. A. Miller, a millionaire shoe manufacturer, created a great demand for funeral designs the early part of last week.

Carl Block is talking of starting in business again near his old stand in the north end.

Many florists are inducing people to buy through the medium of a special Saturday box of flowers. These boxes are a good value and retail at $1. They are heavily advertised in the daily papers. J. W. T.

The Market.

The month of August holds the record for weddings, as there were numerous weddings with large decorations. Other business was rather slow and there was a large supply of stock, especially outdoor flowers. Roses are now of much better quality, with long stems and solid heads. There are no carnations yet. Asters are plentiful and good. Gladioli are in full cut and are good sellers.

Various Notes.

J. J. Le Borious had the Collins wedding, which was a large affair. St. Paul's church was decorated with tamarack and gladioli, with a candle effect. The decorations were well arranged. The bride's bouquet was made of valley, with a ribbon shower. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas, with a blue shower. Two bridesmaids carried arm bouquets of pink peas; another bridesmaid bore a bouquet of lavender peas, snapdragon and blue larkspur.

The Dahl wedding was an imposing one, conducted at the home. The altar, placed in the living room, was made of southern smilax and white sweet peas. In the other rooms gladioli were used with good effect in large basket vases. The bride carried a shower bouquet of valley and peas. Four bridesmaids carried shower bouquets of red peas and the maid of honor had a bouquet of lavender peas. The work was done by the Duluth Floral Co. This company also had the O'Gorman wedding, another home affair, with an altar arrangement of smilax and sweet peas. Three bridesmaids carried lavender peas.

The Market.

Another week of excellent business has to be recorded. Retailers report a demand far in advance of the average for the season and look forward to still better business when school vacations are over and patrons return from the beaches and mountains. Already the wholesalers say that shipping is improving, showing that in other places business is also looking up. Regarding the stock, there is little change from last week, except that really good asters are more scarce. There is plenty of second-grade stock. Sweet peas, too, are scarce and bring good prices. Mums are improving and some good shipping stock is now coming in. Plants are scarce, outside of ferns, palms and coleus. Greens are plentiful and of good quality.

American Florists' Exchange.

A meeting of the stockholders of the American Florists' Exchange was called for August 27 at 8 p. m. and a fairly good attendance was the result. H. N. Gage was in the chair, and Albert Goldenson, secretary; T. H. Wright, John Bodger and Roy F. Wilcox, directors, were present. Mr. Wilcox, having to leave early, gave proxy to C. E. Gutting. The question of space allotment was up for discussion and in place of auctioning the best positions a rental value was decided on and the places balloted for, this meeting with unanimous approval of all the stockholders present. The sale of stock on commission by the Exchange having been objected to by renters of space, it was decided for the present to discontinue this until a better method of handling it can be evolved, T. Wright, the managing director, being anxious, as always, to avoid friction. Secretary Goldenson's reading of the financial statement showed money matters in excellent trim, with rents well paid up, bills paid and a satisfactory balance in favor of the corporation. John Bodger brought as visitors Messrs. Renard, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., and Gloeckner, of the H. F. Michell Co., both of these Philadelphians being interested in the ways of the wild west. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that these gentlemen are looking over the seed farms in this locality. Before leaving, Mr. Wilcox gave a hearty invitation to all present to a meeting, September 6, in the interests of the coming big show. Light refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

Various Notes.

Victor Swanson, of the California Floral Co., has long been known for his aptitude and success in packing and shipping flowers, and in all other matters connected with a wholesaler's business, but he has already made a fine record in cultural matters, too. Without in any way wishing to be invidious, it may be said squarely that no better Golden West dahlias have ever been seen in Los Angeles than those he is bringing in to his firm. They are exquisite and of magnificent size. Pride of California, crimson, and Snowdrift, white, are two others of which he is growing perfect flowers that would be a credit to any exhibition stage.

R. G. Fraser & Son have about fifteen acres near El Monte where they grow their specialties in flower seds. About three acres are devoted to asters, including five breadths of the various colors of American Beauty. This is an excellent shipping aster, with substantial stems, clean and non-lateral. The dahlia-flowered zinnia is making a grand show, while several blocks of African marigold, in both lemon and orange, show a magnificent strain, with large, solid, ball-like flowers, a splendid shipping zinnia. Red Monster and Buttercup are two exquisite types, the latter a clear yellow that is most attractive. The harvesting and threshing of a fine crop of giant mignonette are going on. The whole place is in fine order and speaks well for the care and attention given by Donald Fraser, who personally superintends this end.

A. Twitchett, of San Francisco, was in the city last week, looking over the dahlia growers. Mr. Twitchett visited the sunken garden in Exposition park, where the dahlia plantings for the big show are coming in.

Nick Gondolfa returned last week from a well earned vacation of two weeks, spent in the northern part of the state.

The H. N. Gage Co. reports a number of good advance orders for the September fashion show.

A look through the new store being fitted up by Herbert Bateman, near Seventh and Grand, shows preparations well advanced. He intends opening September 15. The scheme of the rear of the store is a Spanish house with balconies, awnings and everything in keeping, while the front portion will be treated as a Spanish garden in a novel

The letter below is from one of the most famous florists of Houston, Texas, and will show that our packing methods and choice of stock insure arrival of flowers in good condition over the long distance route.

HOUSTON, TEXAS, August 16, 1921.

S. MURATA & Co.,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Attention Mr. Murata

Dear Mr. Murata:

I am writing you personally to thank you for the excellent manner in which you have handled our orders. The Asters are arriving in very good condition and we believe that you have solved the problem of packing for long distance shipping. You will probably be interested in knowing that while I was in New Orleans recently I had two hundred of the deep pink and purple Asters reshipped there and they arrived in very good condition.

Very truly yours,

What we do for others we can do for you if you will give us the opportunity.

WE NEVER MISS

"Dog-gone-it-all, that old hose is busted again!"

(or words to that effect)

Ever hear anything like this at your place? Did you ever notice that a little thing like the bursting of a hose will start the whole day wrong? Before the man finds his pliers and hose menders, the chances are he has lost his temper.

We handle a hose guaranteed to stand 200 pounds air pressure and last a year. Likely as not it will last five years with ordinary wear. The price is 27c a foot. We would like to sell you a piece if you don't live too far away from us.

But the main thing we want to talk to you about is the lesson that bursted hose taught us. It is the little annoyances that make you tear your hair—bursted hose—pots broken when you unpack your shipment—a crate twice as heavy as it need be—a cleat not properly nailed—a box not clearly marked. These are the things that we are working hard on this summer. We want to make trading with us a real pleasure, as well as a good way to make money.

We are not forgetting our Roses, Greens, Cyclamens, and Supplies. Our stocks will be bigger and better than ever before. We are shipping out quantities of Asters, Marigolds and Statice. Are you getting yours? Chrysanthemums are coming in, but they are still soft and the price is high. We don't think you can make anything handling them yet. We'll have lots of them for you just as soon as the quality and price are right.

and effective way. A pool will be in the central foreground and judicious use will be made of vases, ollas and lanterns. The practical side has not been forgotten, fine display and work rooms being included in the rear, as well as the necessary offices. It will be a most complete and up-to-date store in every way, and success for this well known and clever artist seems assured. Carl Brose will be on the staff, the Nimrod of the local florists.

J. Rolleri, of the Athletic Club Florist, is out with a new 7-passenger Fiat, and Anton Graalfs, of that store's staff, with an Auburn, in which he made a trip last week to Sacramento and San Francisco. Alphonse Souberin has just bought himself a new home; so it appears that everyone connected with this house is prosperous. Some beautiful basket displays were made last week.

Roses are cleaning up well at the store of the E. C. Amling Co., where shipments of strawflowers, asters and other summer specialties are being made. A new sprinkling system is being put in at the firm's lath houses, at Sawtelle. E. C. Amling and Mrs. Amling are looking forward to a trip to Chicago in the near future.

S. Murata has returned from his San Francisco trip to find everything coming on well at the big store. The finest mums so far seen this season were noted here, excellent Chrysolora. Shipping is keeping up well.

Carl Brose and R. Overstreet had a pleasant time, getting limits of doves, while Frank Lichtenberg and C. E. Gutting are on a hunting trip to Marietta.

W. M. Williamson is back on the job at the store of W. Armacost & Co. and is busy now picking up the loose ends of business accumulated while away. The rose cut now is not heavy, but the quality of the flowers is exceptionally good for the season.

Tom Wright is putting in a good deal of time at the greenhouses. The new addition is all planted.

John Gordon is back from his honeymoon trip and wearing his usual smile at Darling's Shop. The store has an attractive and busy appearance.

some of the biggest landscape jobs around Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and other nearby towns have come from this nursery, which was established in 1896. The soil is excellent here for balling stock, transplanting well and safely. A large block of roses for cut flowers and other roses in the greenhouses are specialties here.

F. R. Hills and Mrs. Hills made a week-end trip to Santa Barbara. At Alhambra an attractive small park has been laid out and is being improved by landscaping and lawns. The ground for the park was given by E. Huntington, the plans being made by W. Hertrich, the well-known superintendent at the Huntington place. Walter G. Martin has been employed by the city to finish the work begun and although he has only a small force at present, owing to scarcity of funds, he is doing good work. A fine plunge bath is one of the attractions here, and, needless to say, is well patronized during the hot weather.

there are still plenty of gladioli. Carnations are more numerous than they have been for some weeks past and there is an ample supply of roses for all demands. Violets, while not plentiful yet, are quite enough to satisfy the local demand, and such flowers as delphiniums, Iceland poppies, pompon dahlias, zinnias, etc., are good and plentiful. Large crops of strawflowers are coming in and the retail trade is selling them both green and dried. Gardenias are fairly plentiful, but the new crop of orchids will not begin arriving from the growers till about September 21 and orchids, at present, are quite scarce. The chrysanthemums now on the market include Chrysolora, Golden Glow, Early Frost, October Frost, Monrovia and Unaka.

Coöperative Market.

The San Francisco Coöperative Flower Market, 430 Bush street, opened "with a bang," as those present enthusiastically declared. Promptly at 6:45 on the morning of September 1, the gates were rolled back in the presence of the directors, and the first wagon, heavily laden with flowers, drove into the market amid the cheers of a large crowd. Other wagons followed, in a long procession, and florists flocked in to buy. The market was opened without further ceremonies. The only festivities were those occasioned by the entrance of the "hot dog" man, who was at once surrounded by a hungry crowd. The first day's business is declared to have been excellent. The directors, consisting of four retailers and four growers, are: P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co.; Charles Brown, of Brown & Kennedy; B. Joseph, of Joseph's, and Frank Thatcher, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co.; H. Plath, of the Ferneries; Joseph T. Hayward, Dave Arata and M. Rolleri. K. Cannon is assistant attorney. Miss Elizabeth G. Walsh is the bookkeeper of the company.

Various Notes.

The directors of the Coöperative Market have adopted the San Francisco fashion of having business luncheons together, at which matters of interest and problems that arise from time to time are discussed.

H. A. Avansino, who recently purchased a rose nursery at San Leandro, has space in the new Coöperative Market. He was formerly manager for the E. W. McLellan Co. and still devotes a portion of his time to that firm. The E. W. McLellan Co. is handling a great many gladioli at present and some espe-

J. A. Axell was expected back at his Bush street establishment early in September, having made his last stop-over at Portland, Ore. P. B. Norton, Mr. Axell's partner, had a visitor last week in the genial Walter Buttle, yardmaster for the Southern Pacific depot at Pacific Grove, Cal. Mr. Buttle's roundhouse garden of dahlias is one of the show places of Pacific Grove.

The first refrigerator car left San Francisco for the east September 1. Among those making Chrysanthemum shipments were J. A. Axell, F. C. Jaeger & Son, Darbee, Enomoto & Co., Domoto Bros., the United Flower & Supply Co. and the Growers' Floral Co.

I. Inque, of the United Flower & Supply Co., left August 31 for Chicago, where he expects to spend about three months, attending to business for his firm.

Enomoto & Co. have disposed of all the mats they received recently from Japan. Another large shipment of colored mats is daily expected.

Domoto Bros. have a large stock of potted plants coming from their nurseries.

Podesta & Baldocchi have noted that few San Franciscans care for violets in the early fall. They prefer them after a touch of frost has given a wintry impression.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is an enthusiastic booster for the dahlia shows. He will have large exhibits both at Oakland and San Francisco.

General and Mrs. Gooch, of Darbee's, are heading homeward after a long automobile trip in the northwest. When last heard from, they were at Salem, Ore.

F. C. Jaeger & Son have just had a novel window display, consisting of a beautiful revolving basket of red-flowering eucalyptus, yellow mums and blue delphiniums.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. has one of its windows filled with gladiolus blooms. The purchaser of bulbs can then select the flower that appeals most to him and purchase accordingly. The other window is at present given up to dahlias. Arthur Cowdray, the designer, has arranged a frame, with white tissue paper where the picture should be. An especially fine dahlia is placed close to this and a strong electric light behind the tissue paper gives the effect of a painting. All the dahlias on display have been raised from hybridized seed, planted in February of this year.

The Market.

General trade activities for the last week have been such that there is little change to report in the local situation, although the trend of business can be reported as distinctly upward. There have been no notable additions to the stock deliveries at this time, and on a number of items the supply has lessened as the result of late weather conditions. Sweet peas have about run their season Some increase is to be reported in the cut of carnations, and the growers generally advise that the prospects for the fall yield are as good as has ever been reported for this season of the year. The cut of roses has also registered a gain, with Butterfly the leader in this respect. There has been almost an oversupply of orchids, and only the use of these flowers in several large decorations saved the day. Lily is in lighter supply, with plenty of bouvardia and stephanotis.

The first potted pompons of the season were shown during the week, and there is also a heavier cut of early mums. Gladioli continue heavy and of fine quality, while dahlias are plentiful. Golden Glow is passing in a small way, and most growers advise that snapdragon is about done. The cut of asters is steadily increasing.

Various Notes.

Wendell Lenchner, formerly with the Hollywood Gardens and more recently with Clarke Bros., Portland, was a visitor last week. He and Mrs. Lenchner were on their way to Alaska, where they will look after their mining interests, he having given up his position.

The first of the season's supply of potted pompons were shown last week by Felix Rosaia, and this novelty met with instant favor among the buyers.

A heavy cut of orchids is reported from the greenhouses of Rosaia Bros., and these were used heavily in one of the largest of recent wedding decorations. This shop has set a gilt frame backed by a black box just in front of the entrance for the display of fancy made-up baskets, and in this way secures the attention of those who may be entering the store.

Mr. Herbert, of Rahn & Herbert, and Gus. Weinstein, of the same firm, stopped off in Seattle last week on their way home to Portland. They had been on a motor trip which included Spokane, Wenatchee, Vancouver, Victoria and other northwestern cities, and reported some increase in business prospects in practically every city visited.

The Seattle Dahlia Society, at last week's meeting, discussed preliminary plans for the annual fall dahlia show, which will be a feature of the next few weeks. Definite plans for financing have not been settled as yet, but a large entry list has been assured.

Eugene Lamble, of McCoy's, spent several days last week on a short vacation trip to Mount Rainier.

A. B. Matthiesen and Mrs. Matthiesen have returned from an extended motor trip through California, although their traveling was limited by the unexpected illness of Mrs. Matthiesen in Los Angeles. The return trip was made by the coast route, and only fair road conditions were encountered. A big crop of mums is coming along for this grower.

The City Flower Shop has taken advantage of the heavier cut of Butterfly roses to feature these flowers in the late window displays. The demand for medium-priced funeral pieces has shown some increase, but that for larger items is still below the normal.

Tom Luke, of Smith's Flower Shop, Portland; W. Wallmark, of the City Floral & Seed Co., Everett, and Mrs. Howard, of Los Angeles, are among the florists who have called on the Seattle trade lately.

W. J. Lake & Co. have been appointed exclusive northwest agents for the Chicago Printed String Co., according to an announcement made here last week.

According to J. O. Hankins, of the Seattle Pottery Co., there has been a good increase in the recent demand for pots. He has made arrangements this season for a suitable supply of clay for winter use and in this way expects to avoid any delays caused by the bank caving in again, as was the case last year.

The Market.

Roses and carnations are starting to appear and give promise of being excellent stock as the season advances. Asters are arriving on the market of good quality. Gladioli are still the foremost flower and some fine stock is being offered.

Little in potted plants is to be had, ferns and palms being about the only choice.

Various Notes.

J. A. Axell, of San Francisco, Cal., was a recent visitor to the city. Mr. Axell expects large crops of mums, roses, etc., in and around San Francisco to care for the wants of the coast.

A trip to the various greenhouses finds them all in good shape, with excellent prospects for the winter wants. The tomato houses have all given way to the mum crops. A number of the growers here plant a few houses of tomatoes and find them a most profitable crop.

H. Hill, of Hoyt Bros. Co., has returned from his vacation, spent at the coast. Among the towns visited was Vancouver, B. C., during fair week.

The interest taken by the florists of that city in the display of flowers and plants is commendable. Brown Bros. & Co. had a wonderful display of gladioli, dahlias and perennials, carrying off many of the first prizes. The firm was followed closely by Brand & Co. and Ritchie Bros. The amateur displays of flowers and table decorations were also of high standard. The first prizes in designs and wedding bouquets were awarded to Brown Bros. & Co.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

NURSERYMEN will find a valuable discussion of the law as affecting a phase of their business in the article, "Getting Pay for Planting," on a forward page of this issue.

E. S. WELCH, president of the Mount Arbor Nurseries, at Shenandoah, Ia., visited Boise, Idaho, recently with his friends, E. W. Paulson and family. Mr. Welch spent a great part of his time at Boise in an automobile, viewing the trees and shrubbery of the vicinity.

The exhibition to be held under the auspices of the California Association of Nurserymen at Los Angeles October 20 to 23 is drawing much attention to nurserymen in that locality. The noted Armstrong Nurseries, at Ontario, Cal., are described in this connection on page 23 of this issue.

THE annual meeting of the National Association of Gardeners will be held at the Park Avenue hotel, New York, October 11 to 14. The officers of the organization are : President, William N. Craig, Brookline, Mass.; vice-president George H. Pring, St. Louis; treasurer, Peter Duff, Orange, N. J., secretary, Martin C. Ebel, 286 Fifth avenue, New York.

THE heat and drought in some parts of the state, coupled with the lower prices obtained for farm products, will decrease the farmers' purchases of nursery stock, in the estimation of L. J. Tucker, secretary and treasurer of the McKay Nursery Co., Madison, Wis. Favorable rains have produced a splendid stand in the nurseries of the company, which are at Waterloo, Wis.

THE summer meeting of the New York State Nurserymen's Association will be held Saturday, September 10, at the Rod & Gun Club on Seneca lake, Geneva, N. Y. Prominent speakers are on the program. Light lunch at noon and dinner at 6 p. m. will be served. Tickets for the day, $2.50, are procurable from Secretary C. J. Maloy, 209 Linden street, Rochester, N. Y.

PACKING PERENNIALS.

Many times nurserymen send orders for perennials, requesting that they be sent by freight, not thinking of the possibility of loss from receiving the shipment in bad condition. Of course, express rates are much higher than freight rates, but, even so, comparatively they are cheap, for the order of perennials will arrive in first-class condition when shipped by express.

Most perennials should not be shipped by freight, especially those varieties with green, fleshy foliage, which will heat if kept packed too long a time. Some varieties, such as herbaceous peonies, German and Japanese irises, etc., may be shipped by freight and will arrive all right, but the safest and surest way is to ship them by express.

Packing perennials for shipment is just as important and essential as growing stock of high quality. The painstaking grower will always make it a point to see that all shipments are securely and properly packed. Perennials, after being dug, should not be allowed to stand too long, for these plants are susceptible to dryness and soon become shriveled. Plenty of excelsior, placed between the layers, and damp sphagnum moss, not too wet, will go a long way toward getting the stock to the customer in good condition.

T. J. M.

NURSERIES AT FRAMINGHAM.

Richard M. Wyman, proprietor of the Framingham Nurseries, and Edmund W. Borst, of the American Forestry Co., Framingham, Mass., were hosts to a party of fifty, September 3, when the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston spent a day of inspection at these two places. The visitors saw two spendidly kept places that well repaid their tour.

The Framingham Nurseries were first inspected. Here over 200 acres are planted, chiefly with evergreens. Over 200 acres additional land is owned, which may eventually be turned into nursery land. Evergreens are the great specialty and are grown in immense numbers, a great many being of large specimen size. Grand blocks of blue spruce, concolor, and Engelmannia were noteworthy. Taxus cuspidata, brevifolia and canadensis were to be seen by the acre in all sizes; so were the juniperus family, in many varieties, retinisporas and arbor-vitæs.

Quarantine 37, which debars so many desirable plants formerly imported from Europe, is stirring nurserymen here and Richard M. Wyman, the proprietor of these well kept nurseries, is propagating azaleas and rhododendrons from seed by the tens of thousands in greenhouses and frames. Grafting of rhododendrons is being tried on a variety of stocks, so far with rather indifferent success. Mr. Wyman says he lacks the European climate for this work, but intends to persevere with it. For some time ahead he thinks seedlings of certain colors of rhododendrons will have to be sold in place of named hybrids such as were formerly imported. He and other nurserymen had made considerable investments in efforts to produce debarred stock at home. The expense, he hoped, might be justified.

After a long walk and car ride over the Framingham Nurseries, a collation was served at Mr. Wyman's home, which was greatly appreciated. William H. Judd voiced the thanks of all present for courtesies extended and wished Mr. Wyman success in his big enterprise. Mr. Wyman suitably responded.

Leaving Framingham Nurseries, cars were next run to nursery No. 2 of the American Forestry Co., better known as Little Tree Farms. The latter title is something of a misnomer. Some years ago small pine and other seedlings were handled exclusively, but now big blocks of quite large-sized evergreens, all raised from seeds, are to be found. Evergreens are the great specialty, but a lot of maples, oaks and other deciduous trees are also grown. Deciduous shrubs are not yet grown, but these and perennials will later be added. Nursery No. 2 contains splendid soil, with scarcely a stone in it, ideal for nursery stock, and the great blocks of pines, spruces, junipers, etc., were all in splendid shape.

There is an attractive roadside stand here, where a heavy automobile traffic passes and many evergreens in tubs and boxes are sold. A space, 50x200, will another season be devoted to a garden with appropriate plantings of evergreens and deciduous trees and shrubs, herbaceous perennials, lilies, rock plants, etc. This should prove a great drawing card and a splendid advertisement for selling stock. Edmund W. Borst supplied everyone with delicious cold drinks here before a start was made for nursery No. 1, where great stocks of evergreens were also seen. About 225 acres at Little Tree Farms are devoted to nursery stock, and millions of pines and other seedlings are raised annually. W. N. C.

CULTIVATING BARBERRIES.

We should like to get some information on the propagation and culture of Japanese barberries, Berberis Thunbergii. We know little about nursery stock and yet we have a steady call for ornamental shrubs and hedges. Is there any book covering this subject? We have Scott's Manual and Bailey's nursery book, both of which have been helpful, but not specific. G. F. S.—Mo.

Collect the fruit of Berberis Thunbergii in the fall, when it is fully ripe. Stratify or macerate the fruit in dry sand. The seeds can be sown either in flats, coldframes or beds outdoors in the fall and a better germination will be had than if the sowing is delayed until spring. Put a mulch over the outdoor beds and also over the sowings made in coldframes, when severe weather sets in, to prevent freezing and thawing from heaving the soil. If you have a greenhouse, it would be advisable to sow a number of flats of seeds during the coming fall. Give them a cool temperature and towards spring you will have a good germination. The seedlings can be carefully lined out in beds for one season and the next year put in nursery rows, where they will make plants of salable size. Barberries grow rapidly, especially if given frequent cultivation and kept clear of weeds.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business is beginning to show a tendency toward stabilization and last week was one of the best there has been for two months, several small weddings and funeral work keeping the store keepers from idleness. Most of the vacation periods are over and everyone is now preparing for the opening of the new season, which at this early stage appears to be promising. As yet there is little to say concerning stock. There is sufficient for all demands and several of the growers announce that they are all ready for whatever comes.

Various Notes.

Much interest was manifested last week in the annual statement of property valuations made by the board of tax assessors to the city treasurer of Providence for the assessments for 1921 for collection. Included in the list of those having a property valuation of $50,000 are the following allied with the florists' business: The W. E. Barrett Co., $96,100; the J. A. Foster Co., $229,700; Joseph E. Koppelman, $104,300; Elizabeth O'Connor, widow of Timothy O'Connor, $212,220.

John Cross, of Fall River, R. I., was a business visitor in this city last week.

Peter S. Byrnes, of the Homogansett Greenhouses, Wickford, was one of the judges at the hand engine tournament at Wakefield on Labor day.

Cohen Bros., of the Lowell Avenue Greenhouses, have added a new automobile to their delivery department.

report an unusually active funeral demand for last week, as well as several wedding orders.

Samuel Reisnick, of W. A. Bowers, Inc., of this city, made a business trip to Boston last week.

William Doel has completed the overhauling of his range of houses at Pascoag and is preparing for the winter work.

Swanson Bros., Stenton avenue, are erecting a new house in addition to their range. They report that all their plants are looking good, with the promise of early cuts.

F. H. Cole, of the Still River Gardens, 228 Warwick avenue, Edgewood, reports a big call this fall for evergreens.

SEATTLE NOTES.

some increase in the general run of funeral work of late, so that current stock deliveries are kept well cleaned up. This shop continues to show some of the finest marigolds being cut at present.

Edward Sceery, of Passaic and Paterson, N. J., and J. A. Axell, of San Francisco, have been calling on the northwest trade of late.

The Seattle Fern & Moss Co. reports a nice increase in business for the last six months, with all shipping lines more in demand. The middle western trade has been responding especially well.

H. P. Anderson, of the University Floral Co., has reopened his shop on University way after his usual vacation closing.

The Orpheum Floral Co. advises that home owners are exhibiting more interest than ever before in dahlias for planting in their yards, but that there is a tendency noted to buy more variety than quantity this season.

The Pinehurst Floral Shop secured most satisfactory results from its sale of pottery last week.

J. O. Hawkins has completed the laying of the concrete floors at his three new greenhouses beside Washelli cemetery, and will soon have these ready for use.

William Goldsbary, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, has left for Spokane, after which he will make his regular trip, calling on the trade in the intermountain territory.

Montgomery's Priscilla

That's the name of the new pink rose! The name will be Priscilla probably after the public has had it a while, but we have had to add the prefix to cover the rules of nomenclature.

In order to get someone who knows more about roses than we do to give an unbiased, honest opinion on the merits of this rose, we have placed 12 plants of it with each of the following rose growers:

and plants of every variety.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Trade in cut flowers was extremely quiet all last week. The market offered good supplies of roses, asters, dahlias and gladioli. Home yards are in such good shape that the flower shops are not called on, except for funeral work. There was not much of the latter last week. Hospital work is not on a liberal scale at this season, except in rare instances. A well arranged bouquet of garden flowers, even if nothing more pretentious than zinnias, strikes the average person favorably and saves the donor at least a couple of dollars.

Various Notes.

While running for a street car, Miss Robena Faulkner fell and dislocated her right shoulder. She goes to the shop every day, but has to do her work with her left hand.

Miss Hayden has returned from a visit of five weeks in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lacey are visiting friends at Leavenworth, Kan.

Fred Horst is at Monegaw Springs, Mo.

Ray Blessing, shipping clerk for the T. J. Noll Floral Co., is back from his vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Greene, of Salina, Kan., have returned from Palm Beach, Fla., where they spent several months. They drove from Salina to Kansas City last week and Mrs. Greene remained several days visiting her sister, Miss Bernadetta Lucier.

Arthur Mohr has returned from St. Louis.

Harry Blake, secretary of the Pinehurst Floral Co., has brought his family here from Pleasant Hill, Mo. Mr. Blake will be in charge of the Kansas City branch of the Pinehurst company. Hillard Brewster, of Boonville, Mo., will be his assistant. William Wade, who was formerly manager, has resigned to go into business.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting 200 tritomas a day. Several shipments have been made recently to St. Louis, Mo., and to Topeka, Kan. This company is the only local one that grows this flower for commercial purposes.

Miss Jean Murray has returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. James Hays on their farm near Topeka, Kan.

Among the recent visitors were C. C. Summerfield, Springfield, Mo.; C. B. Bell, Lawrence, Kan., and P. A. Manson and C. W. Chick, Pleasant Hill, Mo.

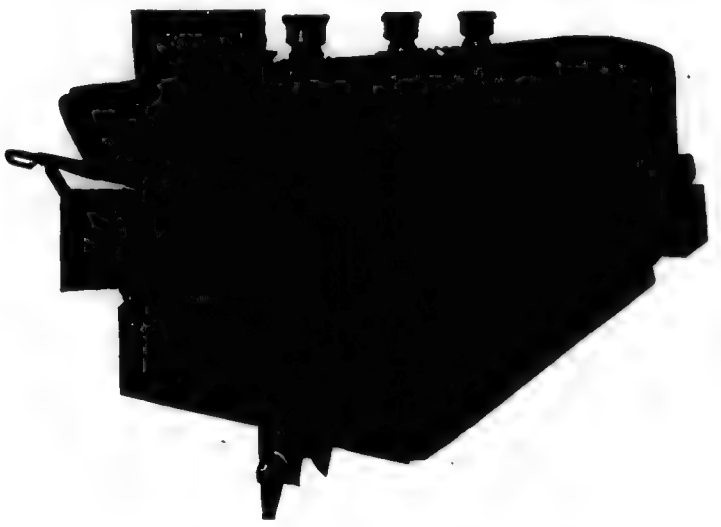
Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

BOILER AND PIPING.



I have a greenhouse 20x75 feet. It is ten feet to the ridge and has 4-foot side walls. There is two feet of glass in the south wall. On the west side is a basement, 24x26 feet, where I am planning to place the boiler, which is for hot water. Over the basement are the storeroom and offices, which I want to heat at the same time. I desire to heat the greenhouse to 60 degrees. The outside temperature drops sometimes to 40 degrees below zero. What size of boiler will be needed and how shall I arrange the piping? I shall burn soft coal. I am planning on one more greenhouse, 34x100 feet. Would it be wise to install a boiler large enough to heat both houses? P. V.—N. D.

It would be advisable to use about 4,000 square feet of radiation to heat the two houses described, together with the store and offices, and unless the second house is to be built within a year or two, it would be well to put in a boiler only large enough to handle one house, adding the other when the 34x100-foot house is constructed. For use with soft coal, it would be advisable to use a boiler rated for at least 3,000 square feet of radiation for each house. During the spring and fall and during mild weather in the winter one boiler would answer for both houses and the other could be held in reserve for use when the mercury drops to the extremely low temperature mentioned.

For piping the house that is 20x75 feet, it would be well to use five 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one on each side-wall plate, one three feet under the ridge, and the others on the purlin posts. To serve as return pipes, provide five coils, each containing four 2-inch pipes, each coil to be supplied by one of the flow pipes. One of the coils can be under each of the side benches, one on each of the purlin posts, and the other on the posts which support the ridge. If these posts stand in the walks, the returns may be on the sides of the beds. For the other house use five 3-inch flows and thirty 2-inch returns.

INSTALLING A SYSTEM.

My greenhouse is 18 x 100 feet and faces east and west, with no windbreak at the north. The side walls are six feet high, with three feet of glass. What arrangement of pipe would it be advisable to use to heat this house with hot water to a temperature of 60 degrees when the temperature outside is 10 degrees below rezo? I should like to have the return pipes underneath the two side benches, if it is practical. I am extending the boiler shed to the

This Winter?

This winter when the wind whistles around your glass and the thermometer outside falls away down low, will you be able to sit back in your easy chair with your mind free of all worry about the temperature in your greenhouses? They say it's going to be a mighty cold winter, so if your heating system isn't in tip-top shape you better do your worrying right now and get prepared.

If you are not sure about your boiler, don't take a chance on trying to make it pull through this winter. Get a new one and save yourself a lot of trouble and money.

A Kroeschell Boiler for Hot Water or Steam will protect your stock in all kinds of weather. It will always maintain growing temperatures without wasting any coal. It can be depended on to keep your houses properly heated without fear of breakdown.

Protect yourself against trouble in the coming cold weather. Install a Kroeschell Boiler and enjoy the same satisfaction as hundreds of other growers who are using Kroeschells.

DON'T you want to know the best methods of installing and repairing any type of boiler —front arches, side walls, bridge walls, back arches, baffles?

Then send for our book, shown above, same width as that of the greenhouse. What part of the building would be best for the smokestack and boiler? Will you state the rating of boiler and the amount of radiation required for this house? A. F. L.—Ill.

To heat the house described, it would be advisable to use about 900 square feet of radiation. This would mean that the boiler should have a rating of about 1,200 square feet if hard coal is to be used and 1,500 square feet with soft coal. So far as the heating system is concerned, it is preferable to have the heater about opposite the center of the house, but in order to provide for the storage of coal it may be advisable to locate the boiler toward one end of the cellar. Whether it should be on the east or west end may be determined by conditions.

For heating the house it would be advisable to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and eleven 2-inch returns. Place one flow pipe on each side wall plate and the other under the ridge, and connect each flow with a coil of return pipes, using four pipes in the outside coils and three in the one under the middle bench.

ADDING A NEW HOUSE.

I have a house, 21x51 feet, which runs east and west. There is glass in one gable and three feet of glass and three feet of concrete in the sides. The steam enters at the west end near the roof, through 1½-inch pipes. These run to the opposite end of the house and are there connected to the returns. The pipe on the north side is connected to three returns near the roof and there are three returns of 1¼-inch pipe under the benches. The flow pipe on the south side of the house is connected with seven returns of 1¼-inch pipe, with four under the bench and three near the roof.

I now desire to put a house south of the present house and to connect to the glass gable in the end. The sides of the new house will have three feet of glass and three of concrete. How many returns will be required and what size of flow pipe? The night temperature must be around 55 degrees. The new house will be seventeen feet wide. Will the four returns on the south side of the present house help to heat the north side of the proposed house? I have a quantity of 2-inch, 1¼-inch and 1-inch pipe. P. W. S.—Can.

If properly arranged and if the boiler is of ample size, there will be no difficulty in securing a temperature of 63 to 65 degrees when it is 10 below zero outside with the piping described. By removing the glass in the north wall of the house some of the heat would be available in the new house when it is constructed. It should be possible to heat this house to 55 degrees in zero weather by using one 1½-inch overhead main and eight 1¼-inch returns, placing five of the returns on the outer walls or placing four returns on the outer wall, two under the middle bench and two under the inside bench.

THE PIPE ARRANGEMENT.

My greenhouse is 18x80 feet and runs east and west. The west end is of glass, as is one-half the east end. The boiler room will be at the northeast corner. The boiler room floor will be twenty-six inches below the grade line of the greenhouse. There will be two side benches, each three and one-half feet wide, and one middle bench six feet wide. Will you advise as to the amount of piping necessary, size of the boiler required and the size of the brick stack necessary? There are no high buildings near. C. V. L.—La.

For a temperature of 55 degrees it would be advisable to provide three 2½-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns. This will require something more than 600 square feet of radiation, in addition to the connecting mains, and if soft coal is to be used, the boiler selected should have a rating for 1,000 to 1,200 square feet of radiation. With a good grade of hard coal, the rating need not be more than 750 to 900 square feet.

It would be advisable to use a brick chimney measuring twelve inches square inside. There is some variation in different boilers in the size of smoke pipe, but it is generally eight, nine or ten inches for boilers rated for 1000 square feet of radiation.

In arranging the piping the main returns should be of the same capacity as the flow pipes. It will make little

Take the "Sting" Out of Winter

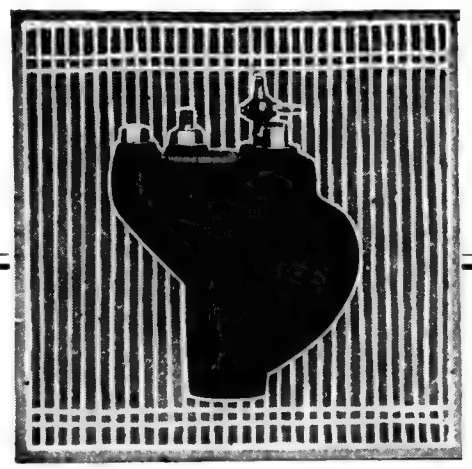
All florists are concerned about their heating systems as cold weather approaches. They know that heat—steady abundant heat, is absolutely essential to the proper nurture of growing plants. Every precaution should be taken to keep your range warm—always at the temperature best suited to your plants.

If you use the hot water system of heating you must keep your mains free from all air. You can do this easily with a

FISHER AIR TRAP
(TYPE 30)

It expels air—drives it out—gives your range the full measure of heat it needs. Keeps the entire system circulating efficiently.

Fisher Air Trap is positive acting—prevents all air pockets and all hammering. Gives hot water a clear track to the very end of your runs.



It is a simple trap—needs no adjustment. Construction is such that valve and nozzle can be removed at any time without disturbing pipe connections.

Actual satisfactory operation in thousands of greenhouses has made the Fisher Air Trap standard equipment. Let us show you why YOU should rely on it for better, cheaper heat.

Black Coal

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

difference whether one 4-inch pipe is used for the main flow or the three 2½-inch supply pipes run direct from the heater. One should be carried on each side wall plate and the other three feet below the ridge. Each flow pipe should be connected with a coil of 2-inch returns. There should be three returns in the coils under the side benches and four returns under the middle bench.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Three weeks of almost a constant whirl of social events have given the florists one of the busiest spells that they have experienced this summer. As a whole, the season here has been an exceptionally active one, with a larger number of the prominent families here than there has been in several years. While there have not been so many large entertainments as there were during former years, still there has been a more general series of entertainments that has kept things on the move. And the season has by no means come to the end yet.

John T. Allan, who recently returned from the hospital, where he underwent an operation, is convalescing.

Leiken's had the floral decorations at the Newport Country Club last week for the ball by Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont. In the alcoves at the entrance to the ball room were groups of palms and ferns and red and white flowers, red dahlias and white hydrangeas being used principally for the colors. On the mantles were pyramids of ivy, with the same colored flowers, and the corners of the ballroom were decorated the same as the alcoves. The side walls were covered with oak foliage brightened here and there with wall baskets of red and white flowers, while electric lights shone through the foliage.

By the will of the late Andrew K. McMahon, which was admitted to probate last week, the widow, Mrs. Lydia M. McMahon, is made the residuary legatee. W. H. M.

The Market.

There is a glut on the market of almost all kinds of flowers, and poorer qualities abound. The demand has been only fair, so there has been a great surplus. Roses are especially abundant and can be had at just about one's own price. The quality has been good for this time of year. Asters are also plentiful, especially the poorer qualities. Good ones have been in fair demand at $2 and 3 per hundred.

Carnations are appearing regularly and bring $2 and $3 per hundred. Larger lots are sold at reduced prices. A great many dahlias are available at from $2 to $4 per hundred. Rubrum and Easter lilies sell at $2 and $2.50 per dozen. The quality is good and they move fairly well for funeral work. Plenty of garden flowers are to be had, but they are not wanted. The heavy supply of fine flowers has made garden flowers undesirable. In this latter class are zinnias, phlox, hydrangeas, etc. Gladioli are not so numerous as before and are clearing better.

Various Notes.

All the wholesale and retail florists closed at noon Labor day.

Bertermann Bros. Co. has a clever display at the state fair as an advertisement. This is a floral arrangement featuring a fountain and goldfish.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lawrenz have returned from Lake Manitou, where they spent their vacation. Edward McDuff has also returned from his vacation.

Mrs. Edward Reinkin, of the Circle Flower Store, has returned from her vacation. She spent five weeks traveling and visiting in the east.

There will be a larger floral exhibit at the Indiana state fair this year than in the last few years. Various specialists in certain lines, such as gladioli, zinnias, dahlias, roses, etc., will exhibit some of their choice blooms. Besides these, there will be four or five florists competing in the general display.

The Market.

Business continues quiet, with all the trade praying for a frost in order to stimulate business a little. The last few weeks have been exceptionally dull, but the trade is looking forward to a splendid business this winter.

The supply has been a little heavier than usual. Dahlias are arriving now in quantity, while gladioli are not quite so good, but nevertheless are moving fairly well. Roses are better, both in quantity and quality, and are moving well, considering the condition of the market. Good roses are bringing from $3 to $10 per hundred at present.

Asbestfalt

(REG. U. S. PATENT OFF.)

An Elastic Cement That Expands and Contracts With the Weather

Make your greenhouse weather-tight with Asbestfalt, the elastic cement that never gets hard, cracks or peels in cold weather or runs in hot weather.

You can't get anything better no matter how much more you pay. The ingredients are of the purest; weighs but 10 pounds to the gallon.

With the scarcity of coal and its high prices, the careful application of Asbestfalt will more than pay for itself by keeping your greenhouse air-tight.

To insure best results, apply Asbestfalt with our Liquid Putty Machine, price $2.00. With every barrel purchase of Asbestfalt, one machine free.

The Market.

Business has been quiet. The death rate in Hartford for this summer is the lowest on record, causing no demand for funeral pieces. Asters are plentiful, selling for $2 per hundred, while quantities of gladioli are coming in at $4 to $6 per hundred. Good roses are scarce.

Various Notes.

V. H. Olmstead, at Coombs' Asylum street store, reports two weddings in Hartford and one at Stafford Springs, for which he will supply the decorations. Joseph Coombs, on his annual vacation, spent one week at camp and one week touring Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire. At his Main street store an interesting window display is featured, with quantities of quartz arranged as a rock garden, with water slowly running through the crevices, and with nicely arranged begonias, crotons, ferns, etc. The quartz gives a rather glittering effect, with several goldfish swimming through a pool of water in the electrically illuminated window. This display attracts the crowds of people who pass daily.

Everett P. Jones, of Caldwell & Jones, spent a few days in New York city and a week in the Adirondacks recently. Marion Denison is back at his desk, after a two weeks' vacation spent at Plymouth, Mass., with Mrs. Denison, viewing the pageant of the landing of the Pilgrims and visiting other historical places there. The first consignments of Dutch and French bulbs are being unpacked and are being arranged ready for sale.

J. A. Brodrib is making a special offering of baskets, which are displayed in his window.

Extensive alterations are being made at George F. Lane's, 180 Asylum street. A new ice chest is in course of construction and the store effect will be amaz-

Gentlemen:

Find enclosed check covering the last shipment of Pulverized Poultry Manure. We think very well of this fertilizer; getting extra good results wherever used. We have been feeding the rose beds in the greenhouses and like it better than any fertilizer we have ever used.

Yours Respectfully,
W. J. PALMER & SON.

A SPECIAL PAINT for GREENHOUSES

SOLD BY DEALERS IN FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

From 1-gallon cans to 50-gallon barrels in bulk.

When we started making paint in 1875, a conversation with Mr. John Hoag of Ossining, N. Y., brought out the difficulty of getting paint to hold on and look well on his hothouses. The result was this Original Greenhouse White Paint, which after several years of test by various people was registered under the above trade mark as the original greenhouse paint. If you need paint use it and you will make no mistake.

ing, when the many mirrors have been placed, extending completely around the store. There will be added needed store space and extra window space. Fifteen extra large wooden tubs made from George F. Lane's scientific designs will be used in displaying large specimens of palms and one particularly fine cibotium. Mr. Lane is chairman of the publicity committee of the Hartford Florists' Club on the coming convention of the American Carnation and Rose societies, to be held here next winter.

Opening of the new $1,000,000 Bond hotel Thursday evening, September 1, was the occasion for some good business. Aside from its natural beauty and richness of tone, the lobby was aglow with more than a score of large flower baskets, filled with magnificent bouquets, and numerous flower pieces. Coombs and George F. Lane furnished fifteen or more baskets. Others who furnished baskets were Spear & McManus, and Welch's Flower Shop. Coombs had the decorations for the ballroom, furnishing palms and other plants. Coombs has the contract for keeping boxes and tubs of plants in first-class shape at this up-to-date hostelry. C. B. TORONTO, ONT.

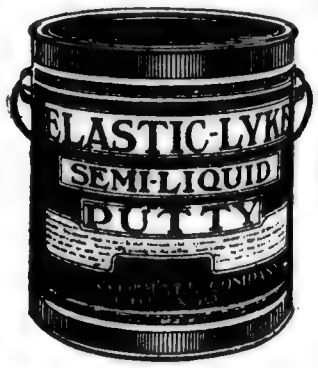
The Market.

Business has been rather slow during the last week, but now that the people are returning from their summer cottages we can expect it to take an upward turn. The continued warm weather has kept the people away from the city longer than usual this year.



There are plenty of flowers, and some choice specimens of gladioli and asters have been shown, in spite of the fact that the early aster crop was a failure.

Various Notes.

Arrangements have been completed with the King Edward hotel reserving the whole mezzanine floor for the F. T. D. convention. Twenty small rooms and one large room will house the exhibits. The convention hall is on the same floor, but separated from these rooms by a wide corridor, so that there is no chance of any of the meetings being disturbed. Permanent offices are now located at the Toronto Retail Florists' Club rooms, at 12 Adelaide street, west, and any correspondence regarding exhibition space, souvenir program or hotel reservation will receive a prompt reply. All attending the convention are requested to buy a one-way ticket and get a certificate, to obtain advantage of the reduced fare for the convention.

The chairmen of the F. T. D. committees met at the summer home of J. J. Higgins, at Long Branch, August 30. There was a full attendance. Following the meeting Mr. and Mrs. Higgins entertained the members at a corn roast.

An Ontario Gladiolus Society is being formed by lovers of that flower in Ontario. Dr. Bennett, of St. Thomas, is one of the prime movers. It will be along the line of the American Gladiolus Society. J. J. H.

"A Stretch of Mine Sure Looks Fine"---Jim

Yes, sir! A stretch of JIM'S ELASTIC means a tight glazing job, as the best part of my formula is that it's a STRETCH THAT ACTUALLY STRETCHES.

I tried about every glazing putty on the market and the fact is that Jim was almost discouraged as to whether or not he would ever make a putty that would please everybody. Folks, when you can turn out a piece of goods, day in and day out, and PLEASE EVERY GREENHOUSE MAN, then the thing to do is to find out just how much goodness there is to Jim's talk and JIM'S ELASTIC glazing putty.

If you want to see a sample of a real honest to goodness real glazing putty that is made in a beautiful GRAY COLOR and a piece of goods that will be a credit to your houses, fill in the coupon below or write the old boy a letter.

Respectfully yours,

AMERICA FOR THE AMERICANS!!

You need no longer be dependent on The Netherlands for your Tulip supply.
Since 1914 we have raised Tulips in Michigan with great success and we are strong for them. You, too, can raise your own supply of Tulips. (See official report by the Department of Agriculture in the Florists' Review of April 28, 1921.)
If you are alive to a paying proposition, act at once and take advantage of this.

Owing to limited space on our farm at Grand Rapids, we are forced to sell the following named varieties at a sacrifice:
Early Tulips, Yellow Prince and Artus.
May-flowering, or Cottage Tulips, Caledonia, Gesneriana Lutea, Gesneriana Spathulata, Golden Crown, Ida and La Merveille.
Darwin Tulips, Clara Butt, Gretchen and Inglescombe Yellow.
Planting stock, 2-year-old ..... $6.00 per 1000
Planting stock, 1-year-old ..... 3.00 per 1000

Grasp this: Next year you will pay $4.00 per 1000 duty on Tulips. Please send cash with order.

POINSETTIAS

TRUE CALIFORNIA POINSETTIAS.

This stock is grown from stock plants grown in California. They can be grown quite different from the old variety of Poinsettias. Last winter at times we would grow them real dry, then real wet, then in a 70 degree temperature, again in a 50 degree temperature to try them out.

After such treatment, we grew them with beautiful foliage from the ground up, and with an extra large bloom of the most dazzling splendor.

We are offering 2-in. stock of this same variety, as we grow no other, at $10.00 per 100.
Cash with order.

BUFFALO NOTES.

his entire range at Hamburg, having made many innovations. This range is devoted chiefly to the production of Columbia roses.

It will be noted that growers in this vicinity are convinced that they must progress with the times in order to do business.

Various Notes.

W. J. Palmer has left for a month's vacation at his camp in the Canadian woods.

Marc Palmer has just returned from a two months' stay in northern Canada.

J. H. Rebstock is building a new store, on Elmwood avenue, which will be ready for occupancy about October 1.

Louis Neubeck has been making extensive alterations for the fall business.

Among the Buffalonians attending the Washington convention were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sievers and William Sievers, Jr., W. J. Peake, S. A. Anderson, W. J. Palmer, William Kasting, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kost, the Grever brothers, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Brookins, Mr. and Mrs. John Galley and son, Mr. and Mrs. George Reichert, the Galley brothers, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Forbach and daughter, and Eugene M. Naukam.

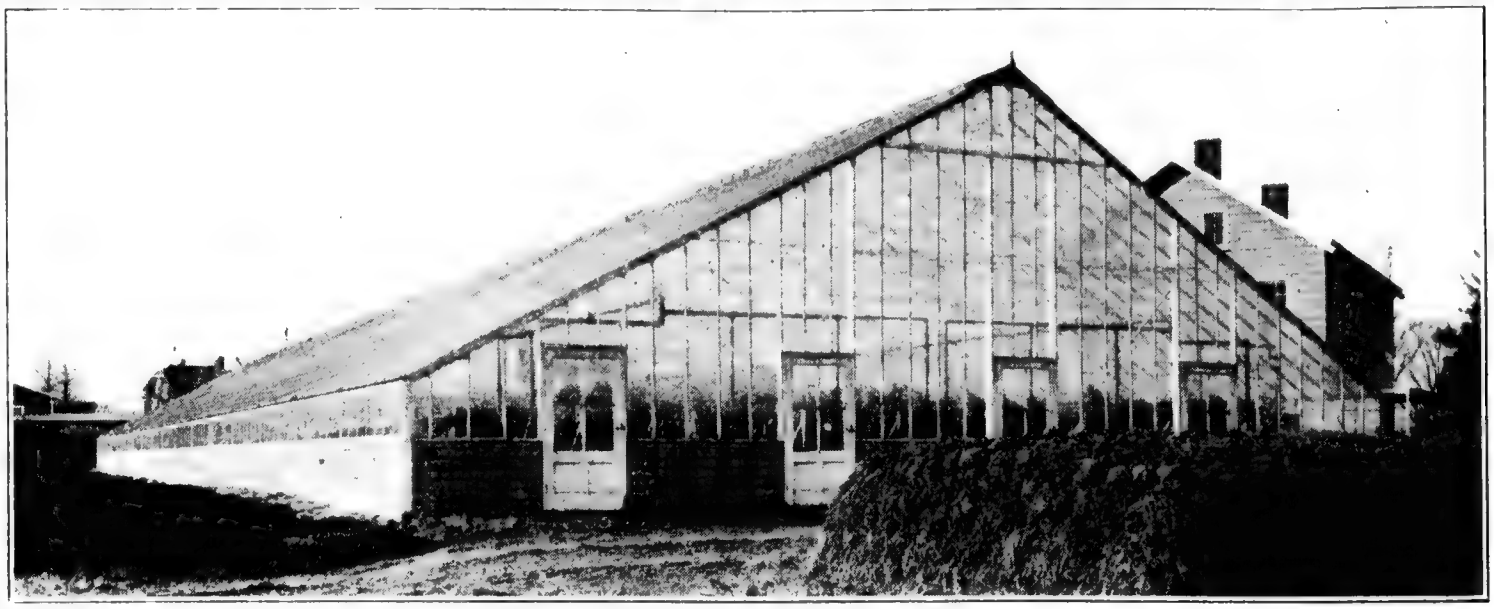
WILT ON CUCUMBERS.

Will you tell me what to do for wilt on cucumber vines? I can grow them finely until they start to bear. Then, one by one, they die off from wilt and in a short time they are all dead. Any advice you can give will be much appreciated. S. M. R.—Pa.



It is presumed that you refer to the wilt attacking cucumbers and melons outdoors. This usually starts with the first cool nights in summer and torrential rains preceding these nights will cause it to spread rapidly. I do not know of any real cure for this wilt, which has made outdoor cucumber culture much of a lottery for some places over a large part of the country. Even persistent spraying with Bordeaux mixture does not prove to be a cure.

C. W.

Martins Ferry, O.—Charles O'Beirne has constructed two small buildings to house his equipment and is considering the erection of a store room.

Palmyra, N. Y.—The Hilldale Flower Shop has just been opened by J. A. Cleary, who purchased the property upon which the store is built some time ago. He will conduct a wholesale and retail business.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The Flower Houses, with a modern shop at 1503 Hertel avenue, are erecting greenhouses and a retail shop at 3026 Delaware avenue, at Kenmore. With these ideal locations and facilities for growing their own stock, they are prepared to render service to all parts of Buffalo, Kenmore and Tonawanda. Of this company Raymond W. House comes from the establishment of S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo, having previously served with J. Breitmeyer's Sons, of Detroit, in a managerial capacity and with W. J. Palmer & Son, of Buffalo. Robert K. House has served with the Wrege Floral Shop, of Jersey City. August Schreiber, who has been engaged as foreman, comes from the greenhouses of S. A. Anderson.

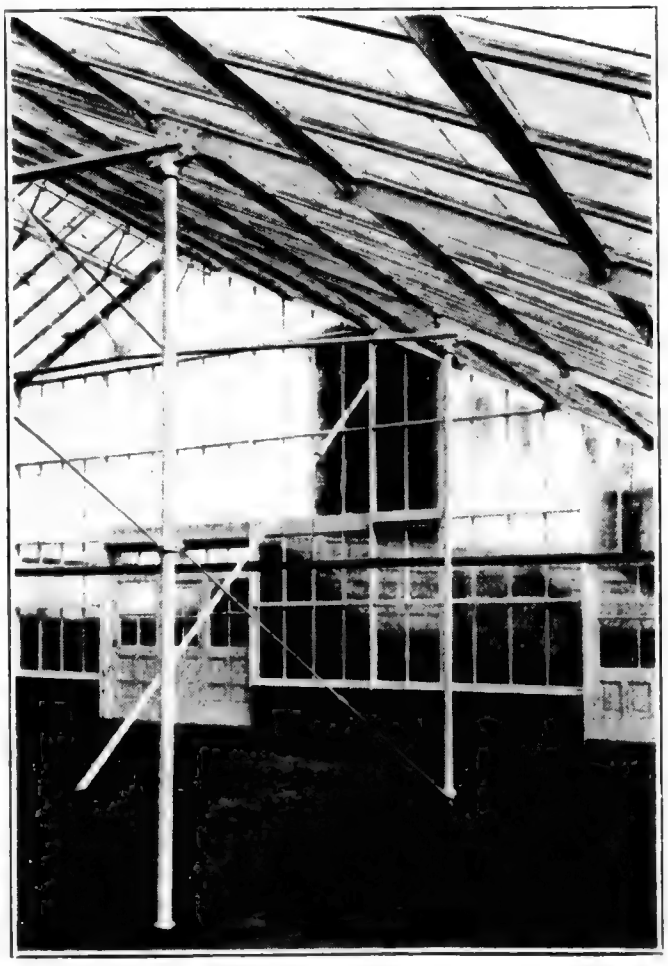
9 benches and 10 walks in the one house.
Three of the old houses could snuggle nicely inside this big one. Call around half a century or so from now and you'll find the house still sturdy and strong.

The First House of Noe's New Range

A while back, you and I sat down and had a good talk together about L. A. Noe's new heating system he installed last Summer, on the home range at Madison, N. J.

You'll recall how we never g t any farther than just a mention of his new house.

Sorry we didn't have time then; but now that we have, let's have a chat about it.



You will recall that Mr. Noe's father, before he died, had built some 34 or so narrow rose houses, none of which was more than 20 feet wide.

Some of them got so old, it was a waste of money to put another cent of repairs on them.

So he ripped down 3 and put up one house 55 feet w de and 204 feet long.

You and I remember when the Noe houses were looked upon as being the last word in point of construction, width and arrangement.

But when you compare this new house with them, it shows what rapid strides have been made in greenhouse building in the last few years.

Words can recommend our houses; but it's our construction that holds them up.
Some of the upholders for the roof and the sti eners for the gable, show up plainly in this glimpse.

For the ground space covered, these big houses actually cost less.

They heat easier and stay heated l.nger on the same heat.

All that big air space above the plants, which the high ridge makes possible, acts as a regular cushion against sudden changes.

As for the ventilation; the air in these wide houses has a wonderful buoyancy, which is particularly noticeable in the early morning, when narrow houses, as you know, are apt to be heavy and rather lifeless.

Whenever I get started talking on the strong point of our big houses, am worse than a Big Ben clock, the way I tick along.

However, Big Bens get a lot of folks up and doing.
So when you call me Big Ben names, feel rather complimented.

If you want to hear some more big house tickings, drop us a line.

This Extra House Will Increase The Profits
WHY NOT BUILD ONE NOW?

Erected for Aug. Priebs & Sons, Park Ridge, Ill.

THINK THIS OVER

Present evidence shows that the decline in commodity prices in general has about culminated. For the first time in nearly fifteen months the index of wholesale commodity prices shows a reversion in the steady decline, an advance of 2½% being recorded in July on some materials.

We believe the above indicates that price declines show signs of coming to a halt.

It is therefore advisable that you florists who have been waiting for lower prices on greenhouse materials should decide to build now, as there is still time to have your greenhouse completed before cold weather.

Even if you build only one additional house, AS MR. PRIEBS HAS DONE, you will cut down your overhead expense, thereby increasing your profits.

Greenhouse Builders

Built The Unit Way

What queer things ideas are! So often you get one and don't know how you got it. Then again you just start to put to practical use one idea and without rhyme or reason, up pops another. That's exactly how our unit way of building happened.

Mr. Burnham was passing a furniture window one day several years ago, and stopped to look at the display of sectional book cases. The sign told how you could buy one or more sections at a time, and add others as you needed them. There were sketches and photographs showing different arrangements of the sections from just the usual two sections and base, up to a large group combined with a writing desk.

Fifteen minutes afterward he came into the office, all smiling and told us what he had seen and how it was exactly the same principle on which we built and planned our Iron Frame greenhouses, whether for growers or private use. Then he said let's call it "The Unit Plan." So we did. Each house in this Unit Plan is made up of sections either 8 feet 4 inches long or 12 feet 6 inches. The length of the house depends on the number of sections used. A range, in turn, is only a group of houses or units.

When we plan a layout, ALWAYS it is done unit by unit. This means that each house is directly considered in direct relation to each other. Or if but one house or unit is to be erected, then we so plan it that other units can be added economically, while at the same time giving the best growing conditions. Done this unit way of ours, you know when you start, exactly where you are started for; and, therefore, where you will eventually land.

Take this layout below, for example: the workroom aud left hand unit was first erected. Two years afterward the right hand one was added. The first unit was complete unto itself and decidedly attractive. The adding of the second unit simply completes the front or ornamental part of the group as originally planned. Later a connecting passage can be added on the rear of the workroom and a one-unit house full length of the front ones, divided into as many compartments as practical. Still another unit house can then be added back of that, and so on. Done this unit way, every move is complete unto itself. The layout can always be practical and attractive.

Let's sit down together and talk over and lay out a unit plan of a range for you. Prices are down. Say when and where and we'll be there.

Builders of Greenhouses and Conservatories

IRVINGTON, New York — NEW YORK, 42nd St. Bldg. — PHILADELPHIA, Land Title Bldg. — CHICAGO, Continental Bank Bldg.

BOSTON-11, Little Bldg. — CLEVELAND, 407 Ulmer Bldg. — TORONTO, Royal Bank Bldg.

Eastern Factory, Irvington, N. Y. — Western Factory, Des Plaines, Ill. — Canadian Factory, St. Catharines, Ont.

Think you will agree that this first and second unit with workroom, makes a decidedly attractive layout.

Greenhouse Builders

Built The Unit Way

What queer things ideas are! So often you get one and don't know how you got it. Then again you just start to put to practical use one idea and without rhyme or reason, up pops another. That's exactly how our unit way of building happened.

Mr. Burnham was passing a furniture window one day several years ago, and stopped to look at the display of sectional book cases. The sign told how you could buy one or more sections at a time, and add others as you needed them. There were sketches and photographs showing different arrangements of the sections from just the usual two sections and base, up to a large group combined with a writing desk.

Fifteen minutes afterward he came into the office, all smiling and told us what he had seen and how it was exactly the same principle on which we built and planned our Iron Frame greenhouses, whether for growers or private use. Then he said let's call it "The Unit Plan." So we did. Each house in this Unit Plan is made up of sections either 8 feet 4 inches long or 12 feet 6 inches. The length of the house depends on the number of sections used. A range, in turn, is only a group of houses or units.

When we plan a layout, ALWAYS it is done unit by unit. This means that each house is directly considered in direct relation to each other. Or if but one house or unit is to be erected, then we so plan it that other units can be added economically, while at the same time giving the best growing conditions. Done this unit way of ours, you know when you start, exactly where you are started for; and, therefore, where you will eventually land.

A Trip to Randall's Always Pays

What They Say

During the past month a host of florists from all directions have "headquartered" at Randall's. Here they have transacted their business, received their telegrams, their letters, and their 'phone calls, and they have done their buying. THEY ARE ALL GETTING READY to hustle for fall business.

Some spent several days going through Randall's complete line, buying everything from Toothpicks to the most modern Refrigerators and Store Fixtures. They bought it all at RANDALL'S, all under the same roof, and they were helped in their selections by EXPERTS in charge of each DIVISION.

ONE enterprising florist from Michigan said to us the other day:

"You are too modest in your advertising.

"I never dreamed Randall's had so many attractive money-making items for the Florist.

"Why don't you shout more about them in your advertising?

"Everybody knows you have Toothpicks, Crepe Paper, Chiffon, etc., but only those who have visited you know how many wonderful things you make for Florists.

"This trip has paid me well. I bought enough novelties to more than pay all expenses."

This same man bought three of Randall's Electric Fountains some time ago. His investment was about $150.00. These fountains were rented out 75 times at $10.00 per rental. FIGURE THE PROFIT.

PLAN YOUR TRIP RIGHT NOW TO RANDALL'S!

Do You Receive What You Pay For?

Consider the different price lists published in the Florists' Review of September 8th, 1921. Read any four of them and note, if you will, the first Roses listed. One calls for Select, 12 to 15 cents; another, Select Long, 12 to 20 cents; another, Fancy Long, 20 cents; another, Fancy Long, 10 to 12 cents; another, Special, 25 cents.

WE ASK A QUESTION: Do any of them give you any idea as to the exact length of these so-termed grades? One does not know if these Roses are fifteen inches, twenty inches, or thirty inches. It is pot luck what will be given for any of these grades.

A retail florist, when ordering, knows what length is wanted and is disappointed if his order is not filled as anticipated.

Consider our system of grading. It cannot be more explicit. It is not necessary to order by inches, since, for the sake of brevity, we have employed a code to indicate lengths. For instance, when a customer desires 30-inch Columbia, the order would be written thus:

"100 COLUMBIA, FIRSTS"

It is understood that 30-inch—not 24-inch or 20-inch—stock is specified (which might be received when ordering one hundred Long Fancy, or Selects, or any of the various terms used).

If you want 24-inch Roses, why pay for 30-inch stock? Difference in length means difference in price. WITH OUR SYSTEM WE HAVE BEEN ABLE TO BRING A CONSIDERABLE SAVING TO FLORISTS. We have had many new satisfied customers. ORDER ROSES BY CODE. Try it for a time and note the advantages it gives you.

Royal Fern Extension Corporation

FROM CONSERVATORY TO FLORIST

Twenty-five Acres Asparagus Plumosus Nanus

Altamonte Springs, Florida

September 1, 1921

TO THE RETAIL FLORIST TRADE:

It is not necessary for us to tell you anything about the ASPARAGUS FERN--you know it is more perfect and beautiful, and therefore better adapted to your use than any other fern grown. We believe that the ''ROYAL FERN''--grown out in the open under half shade--is superior in every way to that grown in the North; it is more hardy, luxuriant, of a deeper, richer color, and is of finer texture and body than any greenhouse-grown fern can be.

For ten years this firm has been growing the ROYAL FERN, and during that time we have enjoyed the patronage of a selected line of customers whom we are still shipping, and practically all our output has been taken by the retail trade.

We especially cater to the RETAIL FLORIST; our packing, refrigerating and shipping facilities are especially designed to meet his needs and to put the ROYAL FERN into his store in first-class condition. Our price of $4.50 for a minimum box of 300 assorted ferns, or $9.00 for a box containing 600 sprays, F.O.B. Altamonte Springs, is the same the year around, and to all alike.

We have recently added 15 acres to our original 10, and now have 25 acres devoted exclusively to the growing of the true ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS NANUS. But even with this increased output we can take on only a limited number of additional regular customers, as with us the demand has usually been greater than the supply.

We suggest that if you have not heretofore bought your plumosus direct from the grower, or if you have not already arranged for your supply for the fall and winter trade, you investigate the ROYAL FERN and the ROYAL SERVICE by writing or wiring us to ship you a sample box at above prices. We guarantee that our ferns will reach you in good condition, and that your shipments will be made on the day you order them made. We shall never attempt to handle more business than we can do with absolute satisfaction to our trade; therefore if we accept your orders for shipment on stated days you can count on their being made.

Soliciting a trial order, which we are sure will convince you it will pay to get your supply of plumosus satisfactorily arranged for the coming season, and that the ROYAL FERN offers the highest possible grade and service, we are, Yours very truly,

ROYAL FERN EXTENSION CORPORATION,

W. I. LYMAN, Manager.

150,000 NEPHROLEPIS

(In variety.)

We are the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country. In fact, we are headquarters for them.

Nephrolepis Norwood

The most beautiful form of Nephrolepis to date; graceful, compact and symmetrical, a vigorous, healthy grower. All growers are invited to inspect it at our Norwood greenhouses.

Strong Plants

2¼-inch pots, $3 per doz., $12 per 100, $100 per 1,000.
4-inch pots, $6 per doz., $45 per 100.
Orders filled strictly in rotation.

Nephrolepis Verona

Makes a good plant in all sizes. Much finer frond than any crested sort outside of N. Smithii. The fronds are carried on a heavy, wiry stem. We consider it one of the best of the newer introductions.
2¼-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1,000.
6-inch pots, $12 per doz., $90 per 100.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima Compacta

A dwarf, compact form of Nephrolepis Elegantissima, each plant making an ideal shape.
2¼-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1,000.
4-inch pots, $5 per doz., $35 per 100.
6-inch pots, $12 per doz., $90 per 100.

STRAWFLOWERS FOR CHRISTMAS SALES

Florists who have grown crops of strawflowers will utilize their spare time between now and Christmas in arranging them in wreaths and baskets. How to do this is here told by one who has carefully studied the retailer's art for the purpose of imparting the best methods to students.

By H. B. DORNER.
Chief in Floriculture,
University of Illinois.

CHRISTMAS wreaths of strawflowers may be made up in two ways. The simplest form is a wreath of green with a cluster or clusters of flowers for color or accent. The second form is made up with flowers throughout, the green being used merely as a background. This second form may be made up with the flowers as the major part or with scattered flowers on a mass of green.

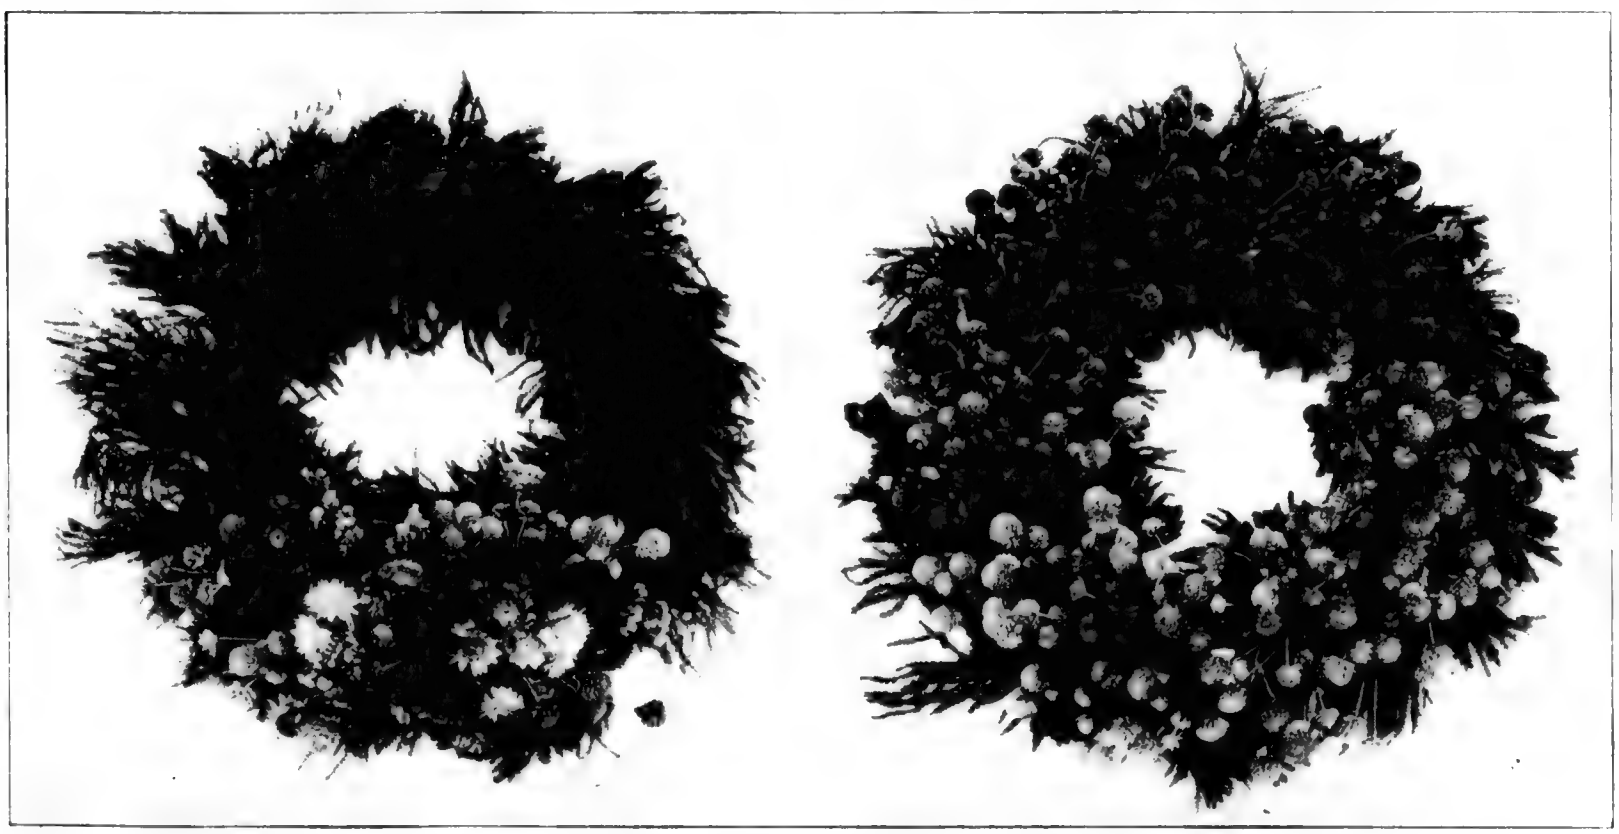
For door and window wreaths lycopodium is one of the best forms of green to use. It may be used in the fresh state if the wreath is for temporary use, or of the prepared form if the wreath is to last indefinitely. Boxwood may also be used. Prepared oak and beech leaves may be used, but the foliage is somewhat large for best effects. Ruscus dyed or painted in suitable colors is also satisfactory.

Work on Wire Rings.

As wreaths for the window or door should be made comparatively flat, they are best worked on wire rings. These may be secured from the florists' supply houses or may be made of No. 15 or 16 wire at home. To prepare a wire ring or hoop, use a piece of wire a little more than twice the circumference of the ring desired. Make a loop of the size desired, in the middle of the piece, and then twist the free ends about it. Fasten by bending the ends over with a pair of nippers. This gives a ring of double wire, which makes it stronger and prevents the foliage from twisting about on it.

Florists' green thread is much superior to raffia for wrapping, as it is much stronger and the spool is easier to handle. Many florists prefer wire for this purpose, as it does not loosen as the wreath is being wound and it does not need tying. No. 26 is a good size to use.

Wreath with Cluster.



The first type of wreath is prepared by wiring the sprays of lycopodium in place, extending them on both sides to give the desired width, and then filling in between. Care must be exercised that the wreath is the same width throughout and that the opening in the center is in the proper proportion. The green wreath is completed before any flowers are added. The flower cluster is then prepared, placed on the green wreath and fastened securely.

The flowers for the cluster are best prepared by shortening the stems to an inch or two (depending upon the size of the wreath) and wiring. The larger flowers may be wired singly and the smaller ones in clusters. For this purpose use No. 25 or No. 26 wire. It is better to use two or three wires of this size than a single large one of the same strength, for the resultant stem is more flexible and there is less danger of breaking the brittle flowers. Flowers may be used on their natural stems, but are arranged with greater difficulty, on account of the thickness and stiffness of the stems. The cluster should be worked from both ends and finished at the center.

Wreath with Flowers Throughout.

In the second type of wreath the flowers are fastened to the frame with the lycopodium. Here also it is better to wire the flowers, as they can better be placed in any position desired.

Strawflowers, if carefully selected as to color, may be used with lycopodium or other green as accents for "frieze" wreaths. Red cape flowers, immortelles and ruscus, used with the green lycopodium, also make good Christmas wreaths.

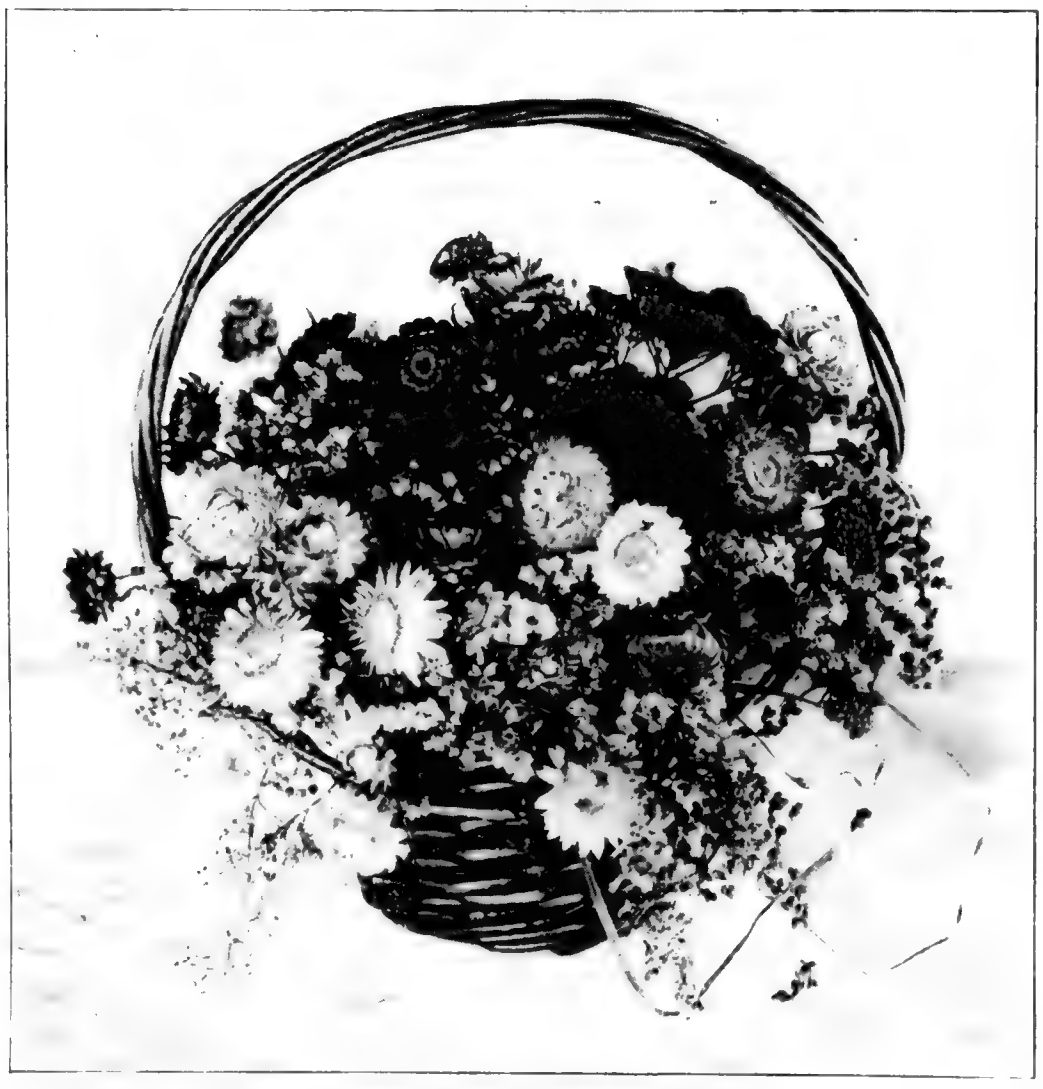
Baskets Are Better.

The best use for strawflowers is in baskets. With a careful selection of baskets and different varieties and colors of flowers, and by variation in the grouping, hundreds of arrangements may be had without duplication. Low baskets carefully filled with selected flowers make beautiful centerpieces for the dining table, to be used when no fresh flowers are accessible. Taller and more loosely arranged baskets make suitable decorations for the living room. Small baskets daintily filled are also suitable for bedrooms.



For this purpose baskets of all kinds may be used, but the smaller sizes are best for helichrysums, gomphrenas and acrocliniums. Tumbler baskets of all materials, birchbark baskets and boxes, and the smaller, lower willow baskets are all ideal.

Filling the Basket.

The basket is first filled with moist sphagnum, which is firmly wired down to prevent its shaking loose when the moss shrinks. The moss may then be covered with lycopodium and the basket filled with flowers. The lycopodium and the weaker-stemmed strawflowers may be wired to toothpicks and the picks inserted in the moss. The picks should be set firmly in the moss, to prevent their loosening and falling out. Flowers with stiff stems need not be wired. The ends of the stems may be sharpened and inserted directly into the moss.

Here, again, the large flowers may be stemmed singly and the smaller ones arranged in clusers. Where arranged in groups, use stems of different lengths and keep the flowers spread to make open clusters. Where the flowers are bunched it requires more to fill the basket. Using flowers with varying lengths of stem also makes the basket more irregular and natural looking.

The quantity of flowers required will depend upon the amount of green used. Where no green is used the flowers must be set closer together to hide the moss and toothpicks. Where strawflowers in their natural colors are used, many prefer to have them arranged without the vivid green-dyed foliage.

GUDE RANGES DIVIDED.

Adolph Gude Withdraws from Firm.

Adolph Gude, vice-president of the S. A. F., announces his withdrawal from the Gude Bros. Co., of Washington, D. C., his connection with that corporation terminating September 5. He held the offices of vice-president and general manager, devoting his attention exclusively to the producing branch of the business and operating the two big producing establishments located in Anacostia and northeast Washington. Mr. Gude has purchased from the corporation the Anacostia range. This occupies thirty acres of ground and there are 200,000 feet of glass, which make this the largest growing establishment in Washington.

A new corporation is being formed to take care of this huge establishment, Mr. Gude being its president. He will have associated with him his three sons and his daughter. Adolph E. Gude, who, during the war, was in the aviation service and since that time in charge of the wholesale department of the Gude Bros. store at 1214 F street, northwest, will be vice-president. The twins, Edgar R. and Edwin N., who have been with their father at the Anacostia houses, become general manager and secretary, respectively, and Miss Esther C. N. Gude will be treasurer.

Founded in 1887.

Adolph Gude was the founder of the present Gude Bros. Co., starting in the buying and selling of flowers in 1887. The following year he purchased four acres of land and personally erected his first three greenhouses, thereafter selling his own grown flowers.

In 1889 he took his brother, William F. Gude, into the business with him, giving the latter a third interest in the venture, later giving him an equal share, whereupon the business became known as A. Gude & Bro. William F. Gude took charge of the selling end of the business, while Adolph Gude continued in charge of production. For seventeen years the business remained a partnership. The present existing corporation was formed in 1906.

Adolph Gude is one of the foremost business men of Washington. He has held the office of director in a number of commercial associations and in banking institutions. Last year he was vice-president of the S. A. F. "Dolph," as he is familiarly known by thousands of people all over the United States, was never known to violate the golden rule and those friends of his who have heard of the change wish him all kinds of luck in his new venture.

The new corporation has secured the property at 1318 I street, northwest, where, after extensive alterations have been completed, it will engage in a wholesale business. This will be in charge of Adolph E. Gude.

The Gude Bros. Co., with William F. Gude at its head, will continue the operation of the retail establishment at 1214 F street, northwest, and the greenhouses on Bladensburg road. He will have associated with him his two sons, Ernest and Granville, and his daughter, Amelia Gude. It is understood that he will make extensive changes in the greenhouse range, including the early erection of a palm house. A. E. G.

THE TORONTO MEETING.

Those desiring exhibition space at the meeting of the F. T. D. at the King Edward hotel, October 11 to 13, should write the committee at once. Address all letters for information to the Retail Club rooms, 12 Adelaide street, west, Toronto, Ont. There is a staff on hand to make replies immediately.

There will be a window-dressing contest during the convention, which will be judged by a committee appointed by President Breitmeyer. In this contest 40 points will be given for attention compelling, 30 points for quality of stock exhibited and 30 points for the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association idea. The committee in charge of the contest consists of Henry Penn, Ira C. Harper and H. P. Knoble.

September 6 Mrs. Percy Waters entertained the chairmen of the local committees at dinner, following a business meeting. The chairmen of the local committees will meet at the club rooms of the Retail Club every Tuesday night from now until the convention. They are greatly encouraged with the enthusiastic support being given from all over Canada, and the welcome given the visitors will be a real, hearty Canadian one.

Visitors from both the United States and Canada are reminded that there will be reduced fares to the convention. Secure a one-way ticket and a certificate for each one of the family. Register at the convention, where an order for a return ticket will be given by representatives of the railways, who will be on hand during the convention. Make a point of registering early.

CLEVELAND IS PUSHING.

After the lapse of six years since the last national flower show, the trade is looking forward to the big exhibition in Cleveland next spring. That the Cleveland florists recognize their responsibility, as well as their opportunity, is indicated by the energetic manner in which they are undertaking preparations. One of the most assiduous of the committees is that on publicity and much material is being published in the Cleveland newspapers. Last week appeared in the Plain Dealer the portraits of S. S. Pennock, who will be president of the S. A. F. at the time of the show; Thomas Roland and Adolph Gude, president and vice-president of the society now; James McLaughlin, newly elected president of the Cleveland Florists' Club; F. C. W. Brown and H. P. Knoble, heads of the two largest florists' enterprises in Cleveland. At the same time half a column of material concerning the show was printed.

The following committee under Herman P. Knoble, chairman, is engaged in preparing for the big exhibition: Timothy Smith, admissions; F. C. W. Brown, advertising; Ella Grant Wilson, publicity; Robert P. Brydon, aquarian; Fred C. Witthuhn, bureau of information; Walter E. Cook, concessions; William H. Temblett, exterior decoration; A. D. Taylor, interior decoration; George E. Carrothers, lectures and school garden; Carl Hagenburger, local exhibits; Charles J. Graham, music; E. B. George, nurserymen; George Bate, out-of-town exhibits; George L. Mercer, printing; Charles E. Russell, retail exhibits; James A. McLaughlin, special premiums; Albert Barber, special features; Charles F. Bastian, transportation.

ROSE PRISCILLA.

In 1922 a new Montgomery rose will be given to the trade, a rose about which florists have heard much already through the novel method of introducing it which has been adopted by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. A dozen plants of this rose were sent to each of approximately fifty growers, a list of whom has been published and all of whom are recognized as particularly expert in the culture of this flower. Upon the reports of these growers, who are scattered from coast to coast, the introducers will be able to base their assertions regarding the performance of the variety under widely different conditions.

Montgomery's Priscilla, as it is called to accord with the nomenclature rules, is a seedling by Ophelia and is particularly a winter-flowering rose. It has a big bloom, though not overpetaled, and is said to be open at all seasons. The bud is long and the outer petals do not reflex so as to bruise easily in shipment. In color it is midway between Columbia and Premier; the outer petals are somewhat lighter than the deep pink of the center of the flower. The color is said to hold well, particularly if the rose is not cut too tight in bud and is not grown in too high a temperature.

Rose Montgomery's Priscilla.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., states that Priscilla does well on Manetti and on own roots, being a robust grower. It breaks freely from the bottom, making strong, heavy canes. It grows freely from the hard wood and the breaks are large, strong shoots. The introducers state that Priscilla can be pinched, but need not be, except for a holiday crop, for the strong-growing habit makes ample stem without the double growth. It makes little blind growth and the flowers produced are practically all perfect in form.

Priscilla is a winter-blooming variety. From 140 plants at the range of the Montgomery Co., at Hadley, Mass., 3,824 grafting scions were taken January 10 without cutting below the pinch; from this performance may be deduced the easy growth of the variety in winter and its heavy winter production.

Of Priscilla 4,000 are growing at the range of the Montgomery Co., at Hadley, Mass., and 11,000 are at Cromwell, more than 1,000 being in each of the rose ranges there, under different growers' care, to test it thoroughly. Besides, as has been said, each of about fifty growers in various sections of the country are trying a few plants for their own observation and report. These so far are quite favorable and would seem to go toward substantiating the introducer's assertion that it is the best Montgomery rose to be put out —not a small statement, by any means.

As growers of over 1,000,000 roses annually for the greenhouse trade, A. N. Pierson, Inc., is widely known. This big range is the product of fifty years' constant and zealous effort on the part of A. N. Pierson and of a shorter period of just as unremitting and devoted interest on the part of his son, Wallace R. Pierson, whose authority in rose matters and growers' affairs is witnessed by the position he has attained in the organizations representing those two interests of the trade.

GERANIUM CUTTINGS.

By potting my field-grown geraniums in good-sized pots after the cuttings have been removed, can I get enough cuttings as a second batch to make it pay and can I flower the same plants in the spring? Any other information on the subject will be appreciated.

H. E. W.—N. Y.

Both of the questions as regards the geranium plant may be answered in the affirmative, but the plants must be given good care to obtain the best results. As a cultural method, the following is a good plan to follow: Remove the cuttings from the plants any time after September 15. Then allow the plants to remain in the field for about ten days after the cuttings have been taken from the plants, before lifting them for potting. Do not cut the plants too severely when removing the cuttings, but let the surplus wood remain on the plants until they have commenced to take root in the soil after potting. Then the shoots can be trimmed back to where the growths are beginning to break out. Reasonable caution must be taken to guard against the plants becoming badly frozen while in the field. Some seasons heavy frosts will come late in September and again it may be late in October before we get any frost to injure the plants, but this must be taken into consideration, because, when the stock plants are allowed to get badly frozen, the loss of the shoots from rotting reduces their value as cutting producers.

Do not use an extra rich soil for potting. Ordinary soil, such as is generally used for benching carnations, is best suited for geraniums. The inquiry mentions good-sized pots for potting the field-grown plants. This is a broad question and should be governed by the size of the plants, but it is best not to use pots that are extra large for the plants to start out in, the better plan being to use as small pots as they will stand comfortably and to repot as they grow and become in need of it. They will require good, light quarters in the greenhouse during the winter and will need a temperature close to 56 degrees at all times. The watering of geraniums during the winter months is one of the most important parts of their culture. They do best when kept a little on the dry side, both at the roots and in their surroundings. Careless watering, together with damp, close quarters, is the principal cause of geranium diseases. Cuttings can be taken from the plants up to February 15 and still there will be time to grow the original plants into fine specimens in bloom for spring sales. Do not attempt to take cuttings after the date mentioned and then expect the cut-back plants to make good plants in bloom for spring sales. It cannot be done. M. P.

ASPARAGUS FOR MAY.

Will you give me some information as to how I may grow Asparagus Sprengeri for about the first week in May? I have grown it for some time, but I am not satisfied with the quality. What age should the plants be at this date? D. R.—Neb.

I do not know what size of plants you desire to sell. It is assumed that you want 4-inch stock. In this case it would be advisable to sow the seeds now. Then you will be sure of plants of ample size. Sown in January, you could get nice 3-inch pots. However, the earlier sown stock might suit you better. C. W.

HOW A SIGN CAN TALK.

If you were to go speeding in your automobile up Grand avenue, that automotively busiest of St. Louis thoroughfares, and to hold your course past Charles Beyer's store, your attention would be arrested by one of those slogan boards which admonish the public to "Say It with Flowers." And as if practicing what it incessantly preaches, this sign speaks eloquently, for over it, about it and in front of it are vines, plants and flowers. Four large vines, one on each side and two in the center of the large signboard, suspend themselves from the top, while cannas and other plants bloom at the base in front. This sign successfully teaches the worth of flowers, for many stop in their swift course up the avenue to gaze at the unusual piece of publicity.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Cleveland, O.—George Bate, receiver for the Smith & Fetters Co., appointed last May at the instance of one of the company's creditors, has distributed a first payment to creditors amounting to thirty per cent of their claims. Inasmuch as the assets were found to be approximately $10,000, as against liabilities of about $13,000, it is expected that further settlement will be made.

Wichita, Kan.—Voluntary bankruptcy proceedings were filed in the court of Referee Paul J. Wall by the Ross Bros. Seed Co. September 6. Decline in the value of large stocks on hand and differences of opinions among those concerned in the company, are ascribed as the reasons for the action. The Ross Bros. Seed Co. has been in business in Wichita nearly forty years and generally the firm has been regarded as a successful and financially strong one.

Seattle, Wash.—A receiver has been appointed to handle the affairs of the Randall-McLoughlin Co.

Cleveland, O.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by the Heights Garden & Flower Co., 12431 Cedar road. The referee in bankruptcy, C. D. Friebolin, will hold a hearing September 20, when the creditors will meet to decide upon the disposition of the property.

Newark, N. J.—S. A. Rogers & Co., seedsmen and nurserymen, at 453 Broad street, Newark, N. J., have been sold out by order of the United States District court to satisfy the creditors. The sale was made under the direction of William A. Hurley as receiver. Bilder & Bilder were the attorneys.

Memphis, Tenn.—E. E. Hughes, W. O. King and J. E. B. Harris, who have been doing business under the partnership name of the Memphis Floral Co., went into chancery September 2 with an application for the appointment of a receiver for the concern to wind up its business for the benefit, first, of creditors and then the members of the firm. While they also are the main if not sole owners of the Memphis Floral Co., Inc., that corporation is not affected by the proceedings. At the request of W. P. Metcalf and E. B. Klewer, who filed the bill, Mr. King was named receiver, with a bond of $5,000. There seems no doubt that the debts of the concern will be paid in full and that in a short time. The bill lists them at $12,204.43, exclusive of the claims of the members of the firm. The assets are given as far in excess of that. The last appraisal of the range of the company at Walker and College was $64,024.16, but since that time much of the material there has been sold. The bills receivable amount to $6,382.65. Under various ownerships there has been a greenhouse range at the south gate of Elmwood cemetery for many years, and most of the time it has been a good one. The lease on the land there to the present firm will expire in July of next year.

PALMS AT SIERRA MADRE.

Replacing Imported Stock.

"The palm nursery of Bassett & Washburn, situated at Sierra Madre, Los Angeles county, is about sixteen miles from Los Angeles and only a few blocks from the terminus of the Pacific Electric car line. Electric cars run to the terminus every hour, leaving Los Angeles on the even hour and making the trip in forty-five minutes.

"These nurseries were started by Bassett & Washburn about seven years ago. The company imports the palm seeds from Sydney, Australia. Three greenhouses have been especially erected with seed propagation benches for the germination of the seed. The temperature of these houses is kept at an average of about 90 degrees. As soon as the seed is germinated, it is potted in 2-inch pots and placed in houses having glass roofs, but heavily shaded. The temperature in these houses is kept close to 65 degrees. After standing for a year in 2-inch pots, the plants are repotted into 3½-inch and 4-inch pots and are allowed a slightly cooler temperature. After another year the plants in the larger-sized pots are planted out, under lath, in ground specially prepared and fertilized.

"The plants are watered by overhead sprinklers and the feeding of the plants is accomplished at regular intervals. Of course, the ground containing the plants is kept cultivated and entirely clear of weeds. Also the plants are given careful attention to protect them from scale, etc., and they are sprayed with rosin spray whenever necessary. After four years in the ground, the plants are potted into 6-inch pots for the single plants and into 8-inch pots for the made-up plants. The plants are then left in the pots until they have become thoroughly established. This takes from one to two years, so that the interval from the time the seed is first planted until the time the plants are ready for sale varies from eight to ten years, according to the size of the plant.

"It requires a great deal of patience to grow palms successfully. A visit to this nursery will prove interesting and the proprietors extend a cordial invitation to all to come and look over the place. The Pasadena office is located at 611 Central building."

What Modesty Omitted.

The above note, kindly sent by C. L. Washburn, is indicative of the great care taken by the firm of Bassett & Washburn to have everything it sends out of a character that is bound to give satisfaction to the customer. But, with characteristic modesty, Mr. Washburn has omitted to give any idea of the size of the company's model place at Sierra Madre. The three greenhouses which he mentions are each 20x128 and are used entirely for raising seedlings. No less than 300 bushels of seed were sown this year, while the place in all covers sixteen acres.

Walking through these immense lath houses, one cannot help being struck by the cleanliness, thriftiness and good color of all the plants, no matter in what stage of growth. Everything has an orderly and tidy appearance. Consider, even, the matter of commercial fertilizer. This is not allowed to lie about exposed to the sun and air, but a large warehouse has been built purposely for the fertilizer. Everything, in short, is along the best and most up-to-date lines and proves a credit to this famous firm. No better advice can be given than that you accept the invitation so cordially tendered, for the visit will prove more interesting than many papers of writing about it.

The exhibition features being prepared for the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen are expected to draw many trade visitors to Los Angeles October 20 to 23. Additional interest will be found by them in a number of establishments in the vicinity which occupy a prominent place in our industry. Some of these are described in current issues of The Review, one on this page.

FLORICULTURE AT CORNELL.

A Short Course Offered.

Floriculture, or the growing of flowers and plants under glass, which was originally a luxury of the wealthy, has developed into a profession which is now one of the most important of the agricultural specialties. Today, floriculture is a profession based on scientific knowledge. There is not a town of importance in New York state which does not have one or more floral establishments. In fact, New York is distinctly a flower-growing state and the glass area devoted to the culture of flowers amounts to something over 13,000,000 square feet.

Competition is becoming keener among flower growers and progressive young men now engaged in the business should realize that they owe something to themselves in the way of self-

Both of the questions as regards the geranium plant may be answered in the affirmative, but the plants must be given good care to obtain the best results. As a cultural method, the following is a good plan to follow: Remove the cuttings from the plants any time after September 15. Then allow the plants to remain in the field for about ten days after the cuttings have been taken from the plants, before lifting them for potting. Do not cut the plants too severely when removing the cuttings, but let the surplus wood remain on the plants until they have commenced to take root in the soil after potting. Then the shoots can be trimmed back to where the growths are beginning to break out. Reasonable caution must be taken to guard against the plants becoming badly frozen while in the field. Some seasons heavy frosts will come late in September and again it may be late in October before we get any frost to injure the plants, but this must be taken into consideration, because, when the stock plants are allowed to get badly frozen, the loss of the shoots from rotting reduces their value as cutting producers.

Do not use an extra rich soil for potting. Ordinary soil, such as is generally used for benching carnations, is best suited for geraniums. The inquiry mentions good sized pots for potting the field grown plants. This is a broad question and should be governed by the size of the plants, but it is best not to use pots that are extra large for the plants to start out in, the better plan being to use as small pots as they will stand comfortably and to repot as they grow and become in need of it. They will require good, light quarters in the greenhouse during the winter and will need a temperature close to 56 degrees at all times. The watering of geraniums during the winter months is one of the most important parts of their culture. They do best when kept a little on the dry side, both at the roots and in their surroundings. Careless watering, together with damp, close quarters, is the principal cause of geranium diseases. Cuttings can be taken from the plants up to February 15 and still there will be time to grow the original plants into fine specimens in bloom for spring sales. Do not attempt to take cuttings after the date mentioned and then expect the cut back plants to make good plants in bloom for spring sales. It cannot be done. M. P.

ASPARAGUS FOR MAY.

Will you give me some information as to how I may grow Asparagus Sprengeri for about the first week in May? I have grown it for some time, but I am not satisfied with the quality. What age should the plants be at this date? D. R. Neb.

I do not know what size of plants you desire to sell. It is assumed that you want 4 inch stock. In this case it would be advisable to sow the seeds now. Then you will be sure of plants of ample size. Sown in January, you could get nice 3 inch pots. However, the earlier sown stock might suit you better. C. W.

HOW A SIGN CAN TALK.

If you were to go speeding in your automobile up Grand avenue, that automotively busiest of St. Louis thoroughfares, and to hold your course past Charles Beyer's store, your attention would be arrested by one of those slogan boards which admonish the public to "Say It with Flowers." And as if practicing what it incessantly preaches, this sign speaks eloquently, for over it, about it and in front of it are vines, plants and flowers. Four large vines, one on each side and two in the center of the large signboard, suspend themselves from the top, while cannas and other plants bloom at the base in front. This sign successfully teaches the worth of flowers, for many stop in their swift course up the avenue to gaze at the unusual piece of publicity.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Cleveland, O. George Bate, receiver for the Smith & Fetters Co., appointed last May at the instance of one of the company's creditors, has distributed a first payment to creditors amounting to thirty per cent of their claims. Inasmuch as the assets were found to be approximately $10,000, as against liabilities of about $13,000, it is expected that further settlement will be made.

Wichita, Kan.—Voluntary bankruptcy proceedings were filed in the court of Referee Paul J. Wall by the Ross Bros. Seed Co. September 6. Decline in the value of large stocks on hand and differences of opinions among those concerned in the company, are ascribed as the reasons for the action. The Ross Bros. Seed Co. has been in business in Wichita nearly forty years and generally the firm has been regarded as a successful and financially strong one.

Seattle, Wash.—A receiver has been appointed to handle the affairs of the Randall-McLoughlin Co.

Cleveland, O.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by the Heights Garden & Flower Co., 12431 Cedar road. The referee in bankruptcy, C. D. Friebolin, will hold a hearing September 20, when the creditors will meet to decide upon the disposition of the property.

Newark, N. J.—S. A. Rogers & Co., seedsmen and nurserymen, at 453 Broad street, Newark, N. J., have been sold out by order of the United States District court to satisfy the creditors. The sale was made under the direction of William A. Hurley as receiver. Bilder & Bilder were the attorneys.

Competition is becoming keener among flower growers and progressive young men now engaged in the business should realize that they owe something to themselves in the way of self-development and knowledge of what is going on in this progressive industry.

In order to assist the young men who cannot come to the university for the regular four-year course, the department of floriculture of Cornell University is prepared to give a short course, covering a period of about twelve weeks, along professional lines.

The Subjects Covered.

Two highly specialized courses will be offered this winter. The first will be known as "Commercial Floriculture" and will consist of a study of the culture of greenhouse plants and cut flowers for wholesale and retail markets. Floral decoration will also be considered to some extent in this course. The second course will deal with "Commercial Greenhouse Construction and Heating," and will include studies in the design, location, cost and maintenance, and the drafting of specifications. In addition to the courses mentioned, "Agricultural Chemistry," "Soils," "Plant Diseases" and "Injurious Insects" are required subjects and the student may elect "Gardening and Garden Flowers," "Landscape Planning and Planting" or "Plant Breeding."

Upon the satisfactory completion of his course and after a student has subsequently spent a year in practical work the college grants a certificate of proficiency, on the approval of the professor in charge of the course and the proprietor of the establishment in which the student has been employed.

The department is making every effort to make the courses more practical and more interesting than ever and this work offers a rare opportunity for the sons of florists and others employed by commercial florists. As usual, some of the best florists in the country will be called upon to give lectures on special subjects while the course is in progress.

A booklet descriptive of all courses given during the winter months in the College of Agriculture will be sent upon request by addressing the Department of Floriculture or the Secretary of the College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"I wish that we had known it," commented R. H. Smith, of the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn.; "we hate to throw away a block of chrysanthemums like that, but no one seems to need them." "Nil desperandum," said we, "David Hope, of Atlanta, Ga., was looking for just such a lot and if you write him now, he will doubtless buy what you have." Observed Harold Joy, "Now, if we had only advertised in The Review, who knows what results we might have obtained?" The stock at this place certainly shows the careful attention given it. Of course, Carnation Thomas C. Joy heads the list and those who are familiar with the success here in growing White Wonder will admit that here is another acquisition. There is a pink of the same character, which will be sent out next season, if it meets all the requirements. Here it is already meeting them. Two new rose houses are looking fine with Columbia and Premier, the latter somewhat preferred in production. American Legion and Priscilla are among the newer aspirants for fame. Milady is well liked. Russell, Premier and Butterfly about complete the list. Chrysanthemums, both for cut blooms and in pots, are in prime shape. Cyclamens in 8-inch azalea pans show what may be expected for the holidays, to supply the needs of three stores and to cater to the wholesale trade also.

* * * *

"What can I do for you?" sunnily asked a saleslady at the Joy Flower Shop, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and the information cheerfully given, when she found that I was not a customer, convinced me that careful selection had been made of this one of several who, with the handsome store and excellent equipment, must appeal to the most exacting. This is a store that appeals to the finest taste. The store window is appropriately staged with the never-tiring water wheel and some goldfish. This miniature scene carries out the idea of a lake and its accompanying scenery. Special attention must be called to a vase of Mrs. Francis King gladioli and to the asters at this store, which are also fine.

* * * *

John Karsten, Chattanooga, Tenn., is proud, and deservedly so, of a batch of cyclamens, now mostly in 6-inch pots, growing in coldframes. "My first attempt," explained our old-time friend, who was one of the pioneers in the business and who has gladdened the hearts and cheered the spirits of thousands with the floral productions of this range of glass. He proposes to retire soon on a comfortable competency, a bachelor on the sunny side of fifty years.

* * * *

Admiring a group of fine specimens of Latania borbonica, Areca lutescens and Kentia Forsteriana in a private yard at Evansville, Ind., we were informed that the Niednagel Floral Co. took especial pains in housing them through the winter, on the theory, apart from the pecuniary return, the publicity was worth far more. Doubtless the company is right, for 'tis a lamentable fact that this class of plant has been almost completely banished, from purely a shortsighted economical viewpoint, and 'twill be a job to get it back.

* * * *

George Blackman, of the William Blackman Floral Co., Evansville, is a judge at the Indianapolis state fair. Walter Blackman and the ladies are holding things down at the store in his absence and report no big rush, but steady business.

* * * *

George E. Schulz, of the Jacob Schulz Co., Louisville, Ky., commenting upon the value of the dahlia at this season, called attention to a rose pink seedling which is almost as large again as King of Autumn. He suggests the name of "Kentucky Wonder," it being in the same class among flowers as its namesake is in the bean family. The growers believe it will create a big impression when it is sent out. Dorothy Peacock is considered one of the best in its class today. "See you at Toronto," said Mr. Schulz, at parting.

* * * *

E. T. Wigginton, of Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville, Ky., grows dahlias as a hobby, having some 300 varieties under cultivation, including some remarkably fine seedlings suitable for florists' use. This locality seems well suited to the growing of this popular flower.

* * * *

William Walker, of the William Walker Co., Louisville, Ky., was reminiscent. "Forty years right here on the job and had anyone long ago predicted that we should be found, at this time, in this elegant store, putting in a hustling day with my good wife and my able manager, David E. Weller, what do you think I should have said?" Commenting upon the news item of Norfolk's being a likely home for roses outdoors, Mr. Walker, who has made the growing of roses a specialty, predicted success because of the entire absence of fog there.

* * * *

It was Labor day. Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., was found resting at his palatial hilltop home amid thirty-five acres of rolling land, listening to the strains of Sullivan's "Lost Chord," being played upon the grand organ in this mansion. Going over the greenhouses alone, we saw what convinced us that all here is "rosy." In passing, a noble pair of sycamores were noted at the entrance; this tree, with the oak, seems to have withstood the long drought in the south best of all.

FROM DYE TO FLOWERS.

Hornell Florist's Change.

From the dyeing business to the florists' business seems like a long jump. About the only similarity between the two is the fact that there is a variation in color in both of them. Yet that is just the extent of the jump that C. G. James, of Hornell, N. Y., took. He worked in the dye shops of the car works at Buffalo for years and became unusually proficient in the knowledge of that business. But the dyeing business was not congenial to him, so he sought out one that would be, and he chose the florists' business.

He was born at Wells, England, in 1866. He arrived in America in 1883 and stopped a while at Detroit. From there he went to Kansas City, where he worked in the car shops for a few years. Later he drifted to Buffalo and found work in the car shops there. There he picked up the art of dyeing and, although self-taught and starting from a crude beginning, he became somewhat of an authority on the subject. But he did not like the business. So in 1912 he began his career as a florist by erecting his first greenhouse. It was extremely small, 9x12 feet in size, but it was a start. He then began to learn the florists' business as he had learned the dyeing business, alone and thoroughly.

Additional Assistance.

With the assistance of a local capitalist, he built another house in 1913.

This time the house was 23x60 feet in size. About two years later, F. P. Merrill, a well-known silk man of the country, became interested in the growing business and he offered Mr. James unlimited assistance. It was accepted on a purely business basis, with the result that the range was enlarged in 1916. When this addition was completed, there was a range of about 10,000 feet of glass. He also started in to do a retail business at that time. In July, 1919, he opened a store in the business section of Hornell. In April, 1920, he purchased a range of 20,000 feet of glass at Wellsville, N. Y., which is now proving an extremely useful addition, especially in the growing of roses and carnations.

The small greenhouse, 9x12 feet in size, has grown, in the relatively short time of nine years, to a retail store at Hornell, and the two ranges, having a combined glass area of over 30,000 feet. In keeping these various activities going, Mr. James is ably assisted by his two sons. Mr. James feels happy and fully repaid for having shifted his plan of living at the age when most men think they are too old to do any changing, and he is duly thankful that he moved from the dyeing business into the florists' business. And the florists who are his stanch friends are glad, too.

C. G. James.

TO WINTER COLEUS.

I have enough Trailing Queen coleus to make 50,000 cuttings next spring if they will do well, but I have been told that they will not keep through the winter. Under proper conditions will they keep and grow all winter, so that I can root the cuttings for spring trade? I notice a white, soft growth appearing on some of my plants at the joints where the leaves are. What can I do to remedy this? N. D. Y.—S. C.

To winter coleus successfully, give the plants in winter a minimum temperature of 55 to 60 degrees and you will have no trouble. You may be able to carry them over at 45 to 50 degrees, but you will probably lose much foliage unless the plants are watered with care. The material at the joints is, doubtless, a pest, which is partial to coleus, called mealy bug. The force of cold water driven through a fine spray nozzle will effectually dislodge it and is the best remedy. Lay the plants on their sides and you will be able to spray them more thoroughly. C. W.

STERILIZE YOUR SOIL.

Under separate cover I have sent you a sample of my cucumber vines. Twenty-four hours after they seem to be in good shape, they will have wilted and died. And my lettuce seems to be similarly affected. Would sterilizing the soil help any? F. J. G.—Wis.

Little could be gained from an examination of the sample of cucumber sent, as it was so completely dried up. The trouble is not at all unusual and, if old soil has been used without sterilization, such conditions are nearly certain to occur. There is nothing you can do now to save your present crops, but steam sterilization will assuredly prevent such trouble in the future. The most successful growers of these two important greenhouse vegetable crops would be forced out of business if they would not sterilize. By all means sterilize soil for all vegetable crops. C. W.

GROWING HYDRANGEAS.

Will you kindly advise me what is the best method of propagating Hydrangea arborescens grandiflora and H. paniculata grandiflora in New York state? What is the best season for doing it? R. S.—N. Y.

Both Hydrangea arborescens grandiflora and H. paniculata grandiflora propagate well in summer from softwood cuttings, which can be carried in flats or coldframes all winter, or ripened wood can be utilized, which should be cut off in early winter after the foliage has dropped. Cut it in lengths containing not less than three eyes each, tie it in bundles and pack it in damp earth in a cold cellar over winter. In spring line these out in nursery rows, covering two-thirds the length of the cuttings firmly. As hydrangeas make considerable growth in a season, it is well to allow not less than fifteen inches between the cuttings. By taking summer cuttings, you can get large, salable plants the fall of the following season if the plants are kept well cultivated. C. W.

GALL-INFECTED ROSES.

I am mailing a sample of a new rose that we received from the east. This is one of a number of plants that do not seem to grow. Is the trouble club root or is it something else? The stock must surely be infected. We have also a batch of 500 grafted Milady from another firm and some of them are showing the same defect above the graft. Is there any treatment that can cure these roses?

J. B. & S.—Ia.

The rose plant received was suffering from a bad case of root gall. The plant was probably infected at the time the cutting was made, the knife not having been disinfected after cutting into a gall on one of the plants and so spreading the disease. This is a bad disease when it gets into a rose house and the sooner all plants affected are discarded the better, for it spreads easily. If the plants are infected at the root, the gall will prevent the sap from flowing up the stem and the plant will make little growth. If the gall is above the ground on the plants, it will have a tendency to draw all the sap to that spot and usually the plant will throw out a strong shoot from that place, while the rest of the plant will suffer.

When the galls are on top of the plants above the ground, it is a good policy to cut off all stems below the gall and burn them to prevent the gall from spreading. When the galls are on the root, little can be done to save the plant. On old plants it has been found that by keeping the plants continually wet the gall will rot and the plants will outgrow the disease. To prevent the spreading of this disease, never cut into the galls, as the knife will spread the germs to other plants and, before cutting, if there is the slightest danger of the knife's being infected, dip it in a solution of corrosive sublimate. This will kill the germs and prevent their spreading. W. J. K.

UNDER-FED ROSE PLANTS.

Three rose plants with soil on them are being mailed to you. We are having many roses this year that turn pale and die. I found that there were grubworms in the soil and I also found little white insects, like skippers, that got about fast. Likewise I found some little black bugs, which are being mailed under separate cover. Also there is being sent a sample of soil and manure mixed, which we took out of the benches. Will you advise as to how the grubs may be killed without affecting the roses? We should like to know also about the little insects; are they harmful or not? T. L. M.—Ky.

The plants received showed that they had made little top growth and had made no new roots to speak of, since they were planted. The foliage was yellow and small, which I am inclined to believe is caused from lack of feed. It is hard to tell how much plant food is contained in the soil without an analysis, but, from its appearance, it is low on ammonia and potash and the phosphate contained in the soil is not immediately available, without some agent which will make it so. The best feed in this case is a good top-dressing of fresh or partly decayed cattle manure and plenty of water to dissolve it. There were no insects found on the plants or in the soil on arrival, but, as a rule, grubworms do not attack rose plants as long as there is plenty of manure in the soil for them to feed on and, as they, in feeding on the manure, digest it and, in turn, make it more available to the plants, the worms do not do a great deal of harm. The soil sent with the rose plants was a medium, heavy yellow clay loam, which, with an addition of about one-third manure, should prove to be a good soil for roses. W. J. K.

CHERRIES FOR CHRISTMAS.

Will you tell us the proper time to stop pinching back Jerusalem cherries so as to have them bloom at Christmas?

W. A. L.—Va.

Jerusalem cherries need no pinching at any time and any efforts of this kind will only spoil the plants. The berries should naturally ripen in ample time for Christmas in a cool greenhouse.

C. W.

Lyons, Kan.—John Piercy is conducting a greenhouse on South Pioneer street.

Lawrence, Kan.—Clyde V. Bell has placed an order with Buchbinder Bros., Chicago, for a large display refrigerator.

Fort Scott, Kan.—Mark W. Weeks and R. C. Granger are starting a greenhouse business, which will be conducted under the name of the Fort Scott Greenhouses.

Tulsa, Okla.—Mrs. Ellen Cummings, who operates the Tulsa Garment Co., will build a greenhouse and a flower shop, to be run in connection with the dry goods store. Her daughter will take charge of the flower store and greenhouse.

Okmulgee, Okla.—H. D. Ellis, who built up the business of Ellis & Co. from one hotbed in 1917 to a greenhouse of 7,000 feet and is planning to double it, has leased the property of the Okmulgee Mushroom Co., consisting of a cave, 12x130 feet, for the culture of mushrooms. This expansion was the occasion of a lengthy encomium of Mr. Ellis in the local paper.

Sedalia, Mo.—Leon H. Archias, Jr., of the Archias Floral Co., has returned from a several weeks' trip through southern Missouri and the Ozarks. He made the trip overland and covered about 1,500 miles en route, stopping at Hahatonka, Springfield, Joplin and Carthage, Mo.; Bella Vista, Ark.; Pittsburg, Kan., and other places of interest. Mr. Archias called on members of the trade and visited several greenhouses while away.

Norton, Kan.—H. B. Burdett has moved his greenhouse from Osage, Ia., to this city and has begun business here.

Franklin, Neb.—The Burton Flower Shop has moved into the cement block building, just north of the Pastime theater.

Independence, Mo.—F. M. Hands, who is just starting in the trade, has a greenhouse 29 x 108 feet. He will grow mums, Christmas plants and bedding plants.

Omaha, Neb.—Charles L. Lowe, who has been growing flowers and shrubs in a limited way, non-commercially, has now purchased about fifteen acres of land, which he will plant to perennials, shrubs, etc.

Marysville, Kan.—When the balmy days of summer come down upon us and the lure of the gun and the rod beckons insistently from the woods and waters, most of us get down the guide books and begin to figure out where we shall spend the anticipated vacation. But H. R. Fisher, of Marysville, Kan., has his own bit of the big woods and he spends no time worrying about where he will go, because he knows his destination will be Fisher's Point. This resort, which Mr. Fisher owns, is located on the southwest corner of Leech lake, near Walker, Minn. Round about there is not a sign of civilization, but, if you look long and hard enough to the north, you can see the smoke of an Indian reservation through the trees or, if you walk two miles around the nearest point, you can see Walker in the distance. Mr. Fisher has entertained several florists there this summer.

CLUBS BEGIN NEW SEASON

CHICAGO CLUB OPENS SEASON.

Special Meeting and Exhibition.

At the special meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, called at the request of President Kohout, at the Randolph hotel September 8, the special order of business concerned the postponement of the entertainment plan for the October meeting, and by unanimous action it was decided to hold this entertainment in connection with the banquet to be held in honor of the Chrysanthemum Society of America at the Auditorium hotel November 16. The sum of $200 was appropriated for the entertainment at the banquet.

Secretary Lautenschlager stated that he had requested President Keimel, of the National Flower Growers' Association, to call a conference of growers during the Chrysanthemum Society's meeting, and Mr. Kohout stated that action of this kind had been taken. This will serve to augment the number of trade visitors in Chicago the third week in November. The reports made during the evening by Secretary Fred Lautenschlager, who is a member of the committee preparing the arrangements for the convention, indicated that much has already been done in the way of mental and paper calculations and plans.

Deceased Members.

In the course of the meeting President Kohout called attention to the death of three members of the club, W. W. Barnard, J. K. M. L. Farquhar and George F. Sykes. At the request of President Kohout, all members stood in silence as a tribute to these departed members.

Michael Barker, chairman of the transportation committee, presented a report covering transportation to the F. T. D. convention, at Toronto, October 11 to 13. It was decided to travel via the Michigan Central railroad. Details of this plan of travel appear on another page of this issue.

George Asmus Talks.

George Asmus was called upon to relate his experiences at the Washington convention. Mr. Asmus moved that a vote of thanks be sent to the members of the Florists' Club of Washington for the many courtesies extended to members of the Chicago club while visiting the capital city.

Mr. Asmus also called attention to the national flower show at Cleveland next spring, emphasizing that every grower of Chicago should make a special effort to send an exhibit. He declared Chicago has not done her share in national flower shows in the past, and he pointed out that Cleveland counts upon the Chicago trade's sending a good display.

T. E. Waters moved that the Cleveland flower show be a special topic at the October meeting.

Others, visitors at the meeting, who were called upon for remarks were J. K. Rugowski, of Manitowoc, Wis., who said that growing good asters was a combination of good seed and hard work; C. W. Peterson, of the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill.; Walter Hamilton, of the Madson Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis., and Mr. Nelson, grower for Hans Jepsen, Maywood, Ill.

Exhibition.

The exhibition tables furnished much of interest to members. Especially prominent was a vase of the orchid-flowered gladiolus, Louise, exhibited by the American Bulb Co. This gladiolus is a cattleya pink in color, with a somewhat darker throat. It is an exquisite flower, having a strong stem, and opens well. The judges awarded the vase a certificate of merit.

A vase of giant dahlia-flowered zinnias, brought from Joliet by C. W. Peterson, of the Chicago Carnation Co., was admired for the strength and length of the stems as well as the size of the flowers. It received a certificate of merit.

J. K. Rugowski, of Manitowoc, Wis., showed a number of his asters, including some of excellent color, though the size was not comparable with his introductions of last year. The judges awarded a certificate of merit to Rose Manitowoc, to Meritorious Pink and to unnamed seedlings of Meritorious Pink. Honorable mention was given Designer's Choice, a well formed variety; Pink Beauty, of good form and color; Crimson Beauty, full flower; Dwarf American Beauty, full flower; Pink Manitowoc, of good form and color. Honorable mention was also awarded his gladiolus, "Big Multipliers."

An excellent display of asters shown by Albert T. Hey, of Maywood, was awarded honorable mention.

From Vaughan's Seed Store was a display of thirty-five varieties of gladioli. A certificate of merit was given to seedling No. 129, a pure white, and to Martha Washington, a deep salmon with cerise throat. Honorable mention was awarded Mrs. H. A. Caesar, a rose pink with yellow and amaranth throat, and Flora, a pure yellow. A collection of cannas was also given honorable mention.

NEW YORK CLUB MEETS.

Long Island Night.

The first meeting of the New York Florists' Club after the annual summer adjournment was held Monday evening, September 12, President Hendrickson presiding. About 110 members were present. It was Long Island night, and island members were present to the number of forty-five and presented twelve applications for membership. A splendid exhibition of flowers and plants was staged in honor of the occasion.

F. H. Traendly, for the committee on the S. A. F. membership drive, reported progress.

Clifford Lowther, for the transportation committee, reported on the party for the journey to the Washington convention and the club passed the expense bill.

C. H. Totty, for the flower show committee, reported that at a meeting held that afternoon it had been decided to hold a flower show next spring, but it was not yet known whether it would be held in the Grand Central Palace. Treasurer F. C. Newbold, of the committee, sent in a check for $264.20, final payment on the club's share of the profits of the last show, making the total payment $3,264.20. President Hendrickson announced the reappointment of the flower show committee, to make preparations for next spring's show.

Paul A. Rigo suggested that a tour be arranged in connection with the journey to the Kansas City convention of the S. A. F. next year, and it was resolved that a committee be appointed to make arrangements. Paul A. Rigo, A. L. Miller and Clifford Lowther were appointed the committee.

A. T. De La Mare reported at some length for the good of the club committee, and ballots covering subjects for the club meeting were distributed, to be filled out and returned to the secretary.

Miss Barnett, publicity agent for the Allied Florists' Trade Association, made a lengthy address, in which she set forth the many advantages to be obtained through systematic publicity.

The secretary announced that the annual meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies would be held Wednesday, September 14, at the New York state fair grounds, Syracuse, N. Y. No members seeming desirous of serving as club delegates at the meeting, none was appointed.

The Exhibits.

John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., staged a splendid display of dahlias, awarded silver medal; a collection of gladioli, given a vote of thanks, and the new cactus dahlia, Sunkiss, awarded a preliminary certificate.

Charles Schwake, Bayside, L. I., showed a vase of Gladiolus Mrs. Watt, awarded a vote of thanks.

A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., showed a collection of cannas, tuberoses and hardy perennials, which was accorded a vote of thanks.

Anton Schultheis, College Point, L. I., displayed plants of cibotium and erica, given a vote of thanks.

Joseph Manda Co., West Orange, N. J., showed the new croton, Mamie Manda, which was awarded a certificate of merit.

Richard Hughes, Flushing, L. I., staged a collection of dahlias, roses and gladioli, a most creditable exhibit, which received a vote of thanks.

T. A. Weston, Hillsdale, N. J., displayed a vase of Statice sinuata, given a vote of thanks.

Van Bourgondien Bros., Babylon, L. I., showed a vase of Gladiolus primulinus hybrid, vase of Physalis Franchetii, Dahlia Millionaire and others, for which they were given a vote of thanks.

Roman J. Irwin, New York, staged a display of gladioli and dahlias, for which he received a vote of thanks.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Conditions in the New York cut flower market are unchanged. If anything, business is worse, but all in the trade expect a reaction any day. The majority of vacationists have returned, children are again at school, and home life should soon prove to be a factor in the demand for flowers. There is some complaint as to dumpages coming from the Boston market, some asserting that arrivals are interfering with clearances of stock from local shippers.

Roses are in good supply, and the quality is improved through cooler weather. The demand for them, while somewhat irregular, has taken them from under the dollar mark, the minimum of last week. American Beauty is not overplentiful, but the demand for it is small and prices are unchanged. Hybrid teas meet a better demand, but arrivals are not all cleared at the end of a day. The scarcity of white varieties has passed, and there is a sufficiency of all colors.

Cattleya labiata is coming in freely, and meets a fairly good demand; consequently, there is little, if any, change in prices. Gardenias are in small supply, but even at that move slowly.

A few carnations from benched plants are arriving, short-stemmed flowers, which move at prices hardly quotable.

White lilies have shortened considerably, and prices have advanced somewhat. A few red speciosums are seen, as well as some white of the same species. Lily of the valley is overabundant for the small demand, and stock is daily carried over in spite of the growers' efforts to check the supply.

Dahlias and asters are in greater supply than the market can absorb, and clearances are of the bargain order. Gladioli are not so plentiful as they have been, and the quality is inferior. Some fine tuberoses are coming in, and there is an abundance of gypsophila, delphiniums, eupatoriums, calendulas, African marigolds, zinnias, cornflowers, gaillardias, centaureas and other late summer subjects. Chrysanthemums are arriving more freely, but their season of demand is not yet.

Various Notes.

The flower show committee met Monday afternoon, September 12, and decided to recommend that a show be held next spring, although nothing definite was decided upon in regard to the place where it might be held.

The schedule committee having in charge the settlement of the cut flower schedule of the American Rose Society for the Cleveland national flower show met Monday morning, September 12. There were present Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.; W. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; James W. Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.; Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J., and Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn. They completed a schedule, to be announced later.

Robert Mason, formerly with Thorley, but for the past year with Carballo & Martin, Havana, Cuba, is north again, and has joined the staff of Malandre Bros.

Albert W. Gumz.

It is understood that Jack and Joseph Trepel, proprietors of Brooklyn chains of flower stores, have combined forces and will extend their store service.

Herman Kuhn, who for many years conducted a retail store at 896 Sixth avenue, but retired a few months ago, died Sunday, September 11, after a long illness with dropsy.

Roman J. Irwin has returned from a sea trip to Halifax, N. S., and the maritime provinces, ending at Quebec. He says the 12-day trip was most enjoyable.

The members of the Long island night committee of the New York Florists' Club were the invited guests of President Hendrickson at Flowerfield, L. I., Wednesday, September 7. There were present A. L. Miller, Richard Hughes, Anton Schultheis, Jr., Henry Weston, Marius Matheron, Secretary Young, John Miesem, Clarence Ankers, W. A. Rodman, Peter Hoebel, Arthur Weston and William Young. The party was escorted by Mr. Hendrickson over the big 800-acre Childs flower farm, spending some time among the fifteen acres of dahlias and a greater acreage of cannas. The gladiolus and other bulb and perennial plantings were also inspected. The party was entertained at a delightful lunch under the trees near the Hendrickson residence and passed a hearty vote of thanks to their host and his good wife for their cordial hospitality.

A meeting of the Allied Florists' Trade Association was held at the offices of the Julius Roehrs Co., in the Eighteenth street market, Monday afternoon, September 12. J. H. P.

GUMZ HEADS OWN FIRM.

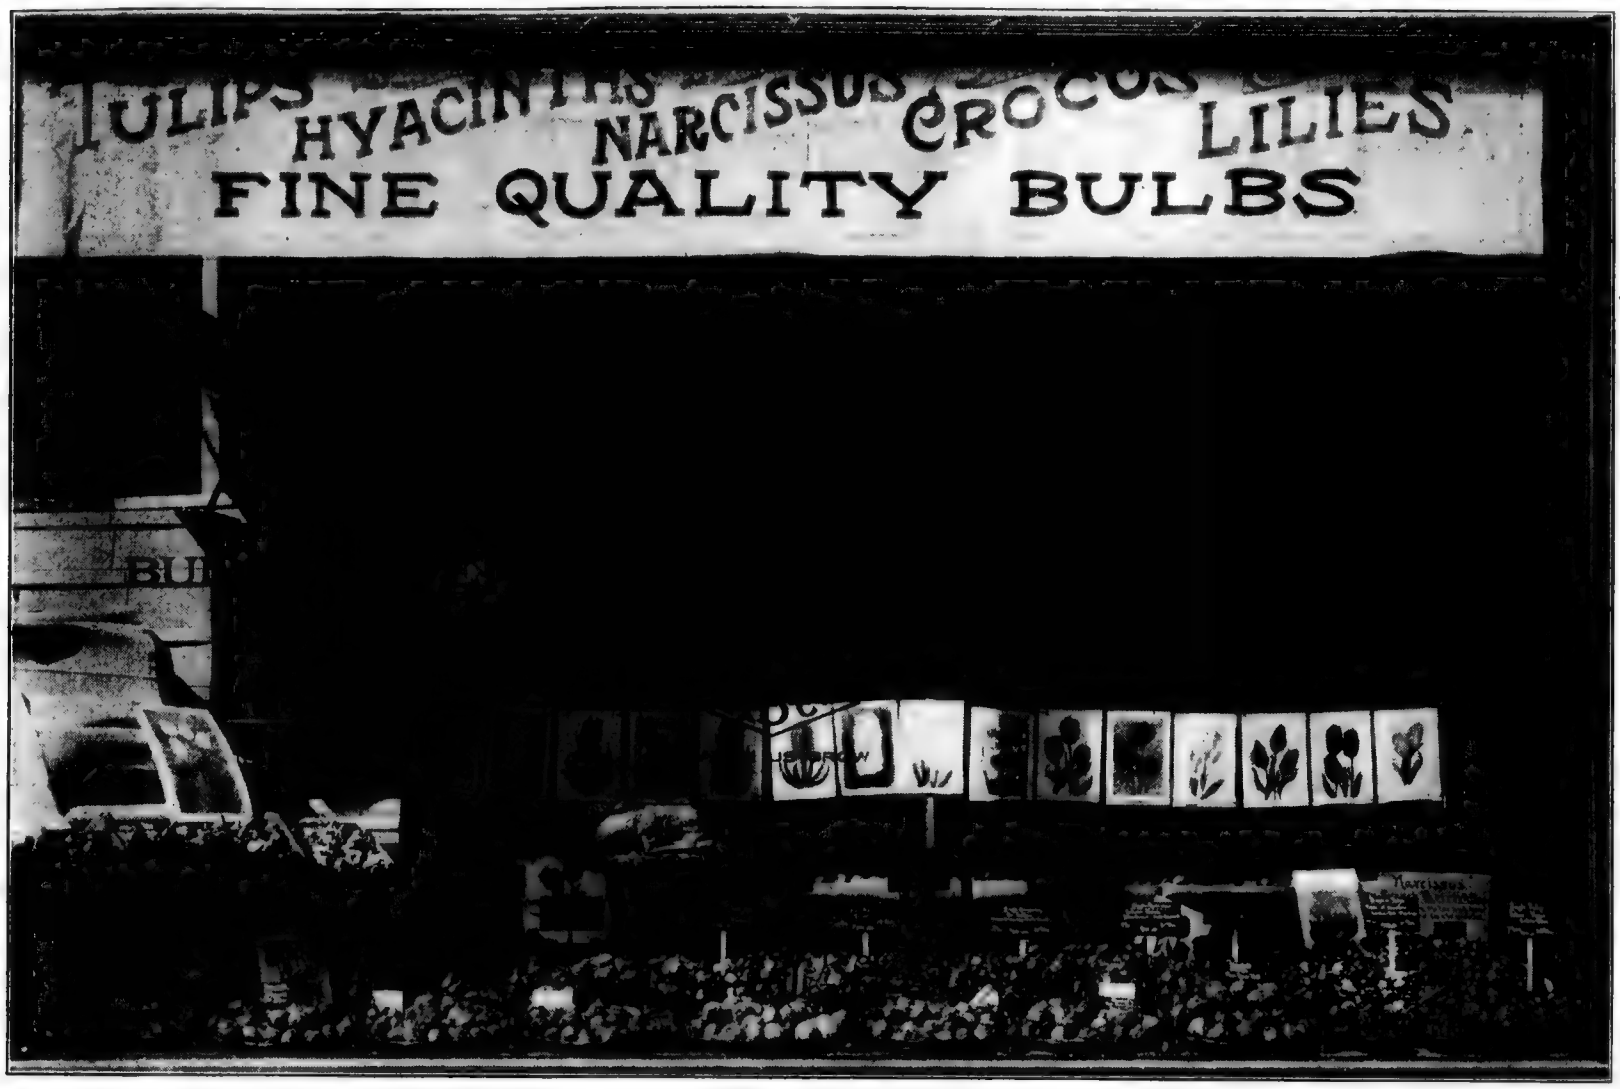
The new St. Louis wholesale commission house which will open the latter part of this month at 1314 Pine street will go under the name of the A. W. Gumz Wholesale Floral Co. and will do a general cut flower commission business. Mr. Gumz has been secretary of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. since its organization in 1912. Before joining that company he had been with the George H. Angermueller Co. for five years. J. J. B.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

National Publicity Campaign.

Renewed interest is being taken in the campaign now that the summer season is passing. The publicity committee is planning to resume national advertising in October, and, judging from the general opinion expressed in the trade, such resumption will be most timely.

The secretary is sending out to about 200 of the "live wires" interested in the campaign subscription books, such as were circulated at the Washington convention, containing subscription blanks, which they are urged to place before florist nonsubscribers in their different territories, with explanations as to the advisability of contributing to the fund. The return of these blanks completed is hopefully looked for by the committee by October 15, when there will be need for all available funds. All doubt as to the efficacy of national advertising was long ago removed, and if the committee is provided with a sufficiency of funds, the advantages previously obtained can be materially increased, for the good of all in the trade.



The following subscriptions are of record since the last report:

Louis A. Kintzele, Denver, Colo.	$ 2.00
J. H. Playdon, Andover, Mass.	10.00
Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa.	20.00
E. H. Carey, Brighton, Pa.	10.00
Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society	25.00
Allied Florists' Assn. of Chicago	639.47
Abram Stevens, Spring Valley, N. Y.	10.00
	$ 716.47
Previously reported	28,080.68

National Flower Show.

The preliminary work of promotion of the big show to be held in Cleveland next spring is in active progress. The various local committees are sparing no effort to complete the details entrusted to them, and everything is moving along harmoniously toward the object in view, the biggest and best show of the series.

The supply and auxiliary trades are reminded that if floor plans of the trade section are not at hand, copies may be obtained promptly upon application to the secretary. The latest addition to the list of applicants for space in this section is the W. Atlee Burpee Co., of Philadelphia, which has made a liberal reservation.

The new building in which the show is to be held is rapidly approaching completion. Its finish is so far assured that it has been leased for the use of the American Building Exposition, which is to open January 4 and run for ten days.

John Young, Sec'y.

HOW TO SELL BULBS.

Only a small percentage of the florists who handle bulbs for autumn planting make any real effort to sell the bulbs. They put in a stock and there the effort ends. If customers ask for bulbs, they get them, but in many cases the bulbs are not even in sight in the store. As a matter of good business, the selling of bulbs to the public should have been going on all summer. As soon as the spring planting is finished the florist should begin booking orders for fall planting, of shrubs and bulbs. People who are pleased with their flower beds in summer will readily give orders to fill the beds with bulbs after frost. If the florist makes the attempt he can accumulate a nice, fat little file of orders long before the bulbs arrive. But now the bulbs are here, keep them in sight—very much in sight. Out of sight is out of mind, out of the mind of the salesman as well as out of the mind of the customer who gladly would buy if asked to do so. There is enough business to be done with bulbs to justify making a window display of them. Indeed, as variety is spice, a window filled with ferns all summer and with flowers all winter will be more attractive at both those long seasons if in autumn it is used to show bulbs. That a window of bulbs may be attractively decorated only with bulbs is shown by the accompanying illustration, reproduced from a photograph of the display of a concern whose object it is to sell bulbs to the trade and to show the trade how to sell them to the public. Such a window is an object lesson.

The bulbs received in America this year are of unusually good quality. The European demand was not strong and better prices were obtained in the United States than elsewhere, so the Holland exporters sent their best. Prices are lower here than last year, but recent reports from Holland are to the effect that the demand has exceeded expectations and that many varieties have proved so short that the market has been advancing steadily since the recovery set in several weeks ago.

FORCING HYDRANGEAS.

My hydrangeas are of the variety, Baby Bimbinette, and are now in 3½-inch pots. They have from four to six pairs of leaves and are about ten inches high. Will you advise as to how I may handle them so I can have them for Christmas and Easter blooming?

T. S. G.—Kan.

Do not attempt to flower your hydrangeas for Christmas. You cannot make them bloom satisfactorily at that time and, even if you could, other plants, such as poinsettias, cyclamens, begonias, Jerusalem cherries and primulas, would be preferred. Hydrangeas are, however, wonderful forcing plants for Easter and Memorial day. From your letter, it is judged that your plants have only one shoot each. It is not too late to give a shift to 4½-inch pots in your latitude. Leave the plants outdoors until frost threatens them and then protect them in a coldframe. Carry them over winter in a cold greenhouse or in a dry, frost-proof cellar, keeping them somewhat on the dry side. Start them in a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night about January 15. Gradually advance the temperature to 55 or 60 degrees at night and run it somewhat cooler as the flower heads color. Feed the plants well and give them an abundant water supply. The plants will stand considerable forcing and they can be held back for some time in a cool house when in flower.

C. W.

PROPAGATING VINCAS.

Will you please tell me the proper method for propagating vincas?

A. D. S.—Neb.

If you refer to the variegated vinca commonly grown by florists or to its original green form, Vinca major, propagation from soft young shoots is easy. More mature wood can be cut in short lengths and will also root, but, of course, more time is needed.

The dwarf Vinca minor, which is hardy, can be propagated in the same way as V. major, and also by division of the roots in the spring. The shrubby Vinca rosea, used so much in bedding, is propagated from seeds, sown in heat in late winter, and later potted off singly.

The preliminary work of promotion of the big show to be held in Cleveland next spring is in active progress. The various local committees are sparing no effort to complete the details entrusted to them, and everything is moving along harmoniously toward the object in view, the biggest and best show of the series.

The supply and auxiliary trades are reminded that if floor plans of the trade section are not at hand, copies may be obtained promptly upon application to the secretary. The latest addition to the list of applicants for space in this section is the W. Atlee Burpee Co., of Philadelphia, which has made a liberal reservation.

The new building in which the show is to be held is rapidly approaching completion. Its finish is so far assured that it has been leased for the use of the American Building Exposition, which is to open January 4 and run for ten days.

HOW TO SELL BULBS.

Only a small percentage of the florists who handle bulbs for autumn planting make any real effort to sell the bulbs. They put in a stock and there the effort ends. If customers ask for bulbs, they get them, but in many cases the bulbs are not even in sight in the store. As a matter of good business, the selling of bulbs to the public should have been going on all summer. As soon as the spring planting is finished the florist should begin booking orders for fall planting, of shrubs and bulbs. People who are pleased with their flower beds in summer will readily give orders to fill the beds with bulbs after frost. If the florist makes the attempt he can accumulate a nice, fat little file of orders long before the bulbs arrive. But now the bulbs are here, keep them in sight—very much in sight. Out of sight is out of mind, out of the mind of the salesman as well as out of the mind of the customer who gladly would buy if asked to do so. There is enough business to be done with bulbs to justify making a window display of them. Indeed, as variety is spice, a window filled with ferns all summer and with flowers all winter will be more attractive at both those long seasons if in autumn it is used to show bulbs. That a window of bulbs may be attractively decorated only with bulbs is shown by the accompanying illustration, reproduced from a photograph of the display of a concern whose object it is to sell bulbs to the trade and to show the trade how to sell them to the public. Such a window is an object lesson.

The bulbs received in America this year are of unusually good quality. The European demand was not strong and better prices were obtained in the United States than elsewhere, so the Holland exporters sent their best. Prices are lower here than last year, but recent reports from Holland are to the effect that the demand has exceeded expectations and that many varieties have proved so short that the market has been advancing steadily since the recovery set in several weeks ago.

FORCING HYDRANGEAS.

My hydrangeas are of the variety, Baby Bimbinette, and are now in 3½-inch pots. They have from four to six pairs of leaves and are about ten inches high. Will you advise as to how I may handle them so I can have them for Christmas and Easter blooming?

T. S. G.—Kan.

Do not attempt to flower your hydrangeas for Christmas. You cannot make them bloom satisfactorily at that time and, even if you could, other plants, such as poinsettias, cyclamens, begonias, Jerusalem cherries and primulas, would be preferred. Hydrangeas are, however, wonderful forcing plants for Easter and Memorial day. From your letter, it is judged that your plants have only one shoot each. It is not too late to give a shift to 4½-inch pots in your latitude. Leave the plants outdoors until frost threatens them and then protect them in a coldframe. Carry them over winter in a cold greenhouse or in a dry, frost-proof cellar, keeping them somewhat on the dry side. Start them in a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night about January 15. Gradually advance the temperature to 55 or 60 degrees at night and run it somewhat cooler as the flower heads color. Feed the plants well and give them an abundant water supply. The plants will stand considerable forcing and they can be held back for some time in a cool house when in flower.

PROPAGATING VINCAS.

Will you please tell me the proper method for propagating vincas?

A. D. S.—Neb.

If you refer to the variegated vinca commonly grown by florists or to its original green form, Vinca major, propagation from soft young shoots is easy. More mature wood can be cut in short lengths and will also root, but, of course, more time is needed.

The dwarf Vinca minor, which is hardy, can be propagated in the same way as V. major, and also by division of the roots in the spring. The shrubby Vinca rosea, used so much in bedding, is propagated from seeds, sown in heat in late winter, and later potted off singly.

COOLER weather has brought a turn in most flower markets.

Do not neglect the matter of filling your coal bins because the thermometer still maintains a high level. Too little buying now will send up prices faster when the demand does occur.

EVERY florist retailing pot plants should have a side line of fertilizers and insecticides in the handy little packages. There is many a quarter and half dollar to be picked up that way, just by speaking of it.

A FLORET or two from a gladiolus stalk, wired in the center of a summer corsage, serves as an inexpensive substitute for a cattleya. The coloring of the variety Louise makes it exceptionally suitable for this purpose.

THE public does not buy half the bulbs it might if florists pushed them energetically. A few stores carry an impressive array, which gets attention, but most neglect this opportunity to add to the profits without increasing the overhead.

COUNTY and state fairs this year have attracted more attention from the trade than for several years. The interest displayed by the public in the extensive displays will encourage florists to employ this means of publicity another season.

AUTUMN is as good a time as spring for doing much of the planting on home grounds, and better for some trees and shrubs, since they gain practically a year's growth thereby. Take orders from your patrons for plantings about their residences, get the stock from a nurseryman near you, and so add to his business and yours.

THE fluctuation of business, says an able statistician, is between twenty per cent above normal and twenty per cent below normal. A year and a half ago the swing started from the height of twenty per cent above normal and is, in general, now at about the other extreme. If this view is correct, the merchant who is doing, in volume, two-thirds as much business as he was at the peak is in accord with the times. Few, if any, florists have suffered such a reduction in their volume of business. This line has consistently held well above the average.

LACK of prudence in handling the income rather than lack of such income troubles a few florists and many merchants of other kinds just now.

REPLACE the blooming plants in your customers' window boxes with evergreens for over winter. Such orders will fill the autumn lull and insure repeats in the spring.

IT takes longer to get out of the habit of easy-spending than it does to get into it. For this reason business reformations are not made in a day. Eternal vigilance on the outgo, as well as the income, is the price of permanent business success.

ENCOURAGING signs give rise in many quarters to the belief that the upward turn in business conditions has come. A brighter outlook is apparent in agricultural communities and a number of industries are resuming work at a pace stronger because of the pronounced slackness during past months.

THE COULD AND WOULD.

An envelope stuffer used by the Scribner Floral Co., Detroit, is quite appropriate and timely. It reads:

THE COULD AND THE WOULD OF IT.
If all of the people who could pay would, it would help all of the people who would if they could.

WE NEED PUBLICITY.

The growth of the florists' industry has brought it to a conspicuous position in the public eye. Consequently, more space is devoted to it in the daily newspapers. These, in their hurried editions, leave things half-said or do not say them accurately. The result is frequently a misconstruction upon perfectly innocuous matters. For example, a report was read at the S. A. F. convention at Washington urging the standardization of rose grades in the wholesale markets, something highly desirable and beneficial. The newspaper references to it were meager. A weekly published in Washington warns "price-fixing florists." Its readers perhaps believe a project of fixing prices of flowers throughout the country—manifestly an impossible thing—is on foot.

The remedy for this sort of publicity, the result of our trade's growing importance, as well as the recurrent holiday price complaints, is a campaign of publicity that will explain the peculiarities of this trade to the public, one such as that by which the railroads explain their predicament, the labor unions defend their position, the packers demonstrate their small profits and the coal industry gives information as to the market's trend. At this time the refutation of such reports as that printed below is in this trade left to such individuals as will voluntarily act in the matter. That method is neither thorough nor far-reaching enough. Publicity can be countered only with equal or more publicity of the right kind, much as it is said that fire should be fought with fire. Perhaps the national publicity committee will in its forthcoming compaign make provision to meet the evil effects of such publicity as this editorial in the Pathfinder, a weekly, published at Washington D. C.:

Florists from all over the country have just held convention at Washington. They agreed to a price-fixing scheme by which all flowers are to be sold at uniform prices all over the country. For instance, roses with an 8-inch stem would be a certain price and those with a 12-inch stem a specified higher price. The florists are treading on dangerous ground in thus conspiring to fix prices arbitrarily without regard to the cost of production or the state of the market. Price-fixers want to beware, or they are liable to find themselves up against the anti-trust law good and hard. Judge Landis in Chicago the other day made this plain to the labor union leaders who have been conspiring to hold up wages, curtail production and secure rake-offs on all construction. He told them that these price-fixing scales were illegal and that they were "headed straight for jail."

CHICAGO TO TORONTO.

The Michigan Central and Canadian Pacific railroads have been chosen for the trip of the Chicago Florists' Club and friends to the annual convention of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, at Toronto, Ont., October 11 to 13. The party will leave the Illinois Central station, Twelfth street and Michigan avenue, at 5:40 p. m., standard time (6:40 p. m., Chicago time), Monday, October 10, and will arrive in Toronto the following morning at 8:30 o'clock.

A rate of a fare and one-half for the round trip, on the certificate plan, has been authorized, making the fare $30.22, including war tax. The one-way rate is $20.57, including tax. Tickets will be on sale October 7 to 12, inclusive, returning to reach destination at or before midnight October 17. Pullman fares, including surcharge and war tax, are: Lower berth, $6.08; upper berth, $4.86; compartment, $17.01; drawing room, $22.68.

Another train for those unable to accompany the party leaves on the same road at 12:05 midnight and is due in Toronto at 4:45 p. m. The International Limited, on the Grand Trunk railroad, leaving Dearborn station at 5 p. m., is due in Toronto the following morning at 9 o'clock, and a train leaving at 11:15 p. m. is due in Toronto at 4:10 the next afternoon.

To secure the reduced rate, everyone going to the convention must purchase ticket to Toronto at full one-way fare and obtain certificate from the selling agent when buying ticket. The fare for the return trip will be one-half of the adult one-way fare applying from place of meeting to the original starting point by the route used on going trip as shown on the certificate, provided that certificate presented has been properly validated at the convention by the agent appointed for that purpose.

To join the Chicago party, see that tickets read via the Michigan Central and Canadian Pacific railroads, making all necessary reservations with Edward D. Jennings, city passenger agent Canadian Pacific railroad, 140 South Clark street, Chicago.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

F. G., Ia.—Sedum acre, or yellow stonecrop.

J. S., Ga.—Small bulb is a lilium, probably L. Carolinianum. The large bulb is difficult to name; may be an amaryllis, but more probably a crinum or pancratium. Send a leaf and flower for more accurate identification. The shoot is from one of the cotoneasters.

H. L. G., Mich.—The preparation of oak and beech leaves is complicated and too costly where only a small quantity is handled. Some of the lycopodium plants produce small cone-like fruits and this is probably what you have. If you will send us specimens we shall be glad to identify them.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary Kellogg.

Mrs. Mary Kellogg, 84 years of age, died at her home in Pleasant Hill, Mo., September 1. She had been in feeble health for the last twenty-five years, but had been severely ill only two days, and her death was unexpected.

Mrs. Kellogg was the widow of the late George M. Kellogg, founder of the Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., in its day one of the greatest in the trade. Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg moved to Pleasant Hill more than fifty years ago, when Mr. Kellogg engaged in gardening. Later he built a small greenhouse and from this grew the business that a few years ago was purchased by the Pinehurst Floral Co.

Mrs. Kellogg is survived by seven daughters. They are Mrs. M. F. Parker, Mrs. Grace Rowe, Mrs. Clara Beeler, Mrs. Sadie Pardee and Mrs. Georgia Cook, of Pleasant Hill; Mrs. Elle Bush, Omaha, Neb., and Mrs. Harvey Lamb, of California. In coming to the funeral, Mrs. Lamb was delayed thirty-seven hours by a wreck. In order to await her arrival, the burial of her mother did not take place until Monday, September 5, although the funeral services were held the day before.

Herman H. Kuhn.

Herman H. Kuhn, a retired florist of New York city, died September 11 at his home, 2 West Ninety-fourth street, New York, after a lingering illness. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Kuhn was born in Germany, and came to this country forty years ago. He opened a shop at 896 Sixth avenue and was in business there until last year. Services were held September 14 at the Campbell funeral church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth street. Mr. Kuhn is survived by his wife and two sons.

INDIANA'S FLORAL DISPLAY.

Popular Interest Keen.

The floral display at the Indiana state fair was unusually attractive this year. The exhibits in almost every case were complete and competition was unusually keen. The floral display has always attracted the majority and throngs daily flowed through the art building where the flowers were staged.

The Roepke Floral Co. staged some unusually beautiful plants in its large collection. Crotons, palms, dracænas and various other decorative plants were used to form a solid embankment, toward the front of which were featured blooming plants, such as lilies, tuberoses, asters, begonias, etc.

The prizes for specimen greenhouse-grown plants and collections in almost every case were won by Temperley's, which had a display of splendidly grown and shapely ferns, begonias, variegated-leaved plants, pandanus and blooming plants.

Baur & Steinkamp took blue ribbons on all the carnations they exhibited, which were especially good for this time of year.

Roses from Richmond.

The Joseph H. Hill Co. was an easy first with its excellent roses. A vase of Fred Lemon's white new rose, Angelus, was of unusual merit and received a blue ribbon.

The great popularity and superiority of Columbia were proven by the fact that every exhibitor displayed this variety for competition in the pink rose class. Amelia Gude, a new yellow rose, took first for yellow. The latter is of a pleasing shade of yellow and is unequaled in this class. This display was staged by Robert L. Catron, of Richmond, Ind.

John Rieman's design work was of great merit, especially his large plaque featuring the American Legion button, which was given first in the floral arrangement class.

Other displays that were attractive but did not compete for prizes are well worthy of mention. Mr. Barnes, of Spencer, had an exhibition of his numerous and excellent varieties of dahlias. The Jacob Schulz Co., of Louisville, also had an exhibit of dahlias.

A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind., who is a gladiolus specialist, featured some of his finest blooms. One variety of the latter is his own new seedling, a lovely ruffled flower of a pleasing shade of yellow, which bids fair to lead all other varieties in popularity.

Bertermann Bros. Co. staged an attractive exhibit in the Horticultural building. A pond, in which were featured plants and goldfish, was the chief feature. A small telegraph delivery boy was prominent on a small clump symbolizing an island in the ocean. The background was an embankment of palms, ferns and other decorative plants.

The Winners.

Following is a list of the premiums and the winners:

Display of potted greenhouse plants to cover 100 square feet of space—Roepke Floral Co., first; Temperley's, second; Walter Lewis, third.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There has been some improvement in the market, but the big change still is to come. The trade needs cool weather of the continuous type. The weather forecaster has been predicting a cold wave, and there have been one or two cool days, but the first decade of September was as hot as July and it was impossible for flower buying to be otherwise than what "Billy" Lynch used to call lackadaisical. The market has been full of what the rose growers describe as "junk" regardless of its quality, and it will so continue until cold weather comes and stays a while.

Nowadays it is seldom that there is unanimity in market reports, but the larger wholesale houses say they have been running up total sales about like those of last season to date, only moving much larger quantities of stock to do it. This, of course, means lower average prices, most unwelcome to the growers. But it also means that the public is buying flowers and there is general confidence that prices will pick up after we have had a few days of steady cool weather. This has been a most unusual summer in the matter of weather and the summer has extended farther than usual into September.

The market, bare of asters in the early part of their season, has been glutted with them thus far in September. The weather of July ruined the early crop and that of August made the late crop large and, much of it, fine. It has been impossible to sell all the asters recently received, except at prices which seemed too small to be acceptable.

Gladioli have been on the down grade for a fortnight, but the demand has declined also and reduced supplies have been sufficient. There probably will be plenty until frost. Only the best are selling at prices commensurate with the cost of the bulbs.

Each day sees some increase in the supply of carnations and of chrysanthemums. The former are improving in quality and would sell well if there were not so many good asters. Smith's Advance has come to join Golden Glow, always the earliest of the local mums. These, too, need frost to create a lively demand.

Some of the growers who cut roses heavily during August are not now in full crop, but others are just coming on, so that the character of the report depends somewhat on who is talking.

There has been some increase in the demand and prices have firmed up to a slight extent, but if anybody is short of roses he can get them next door without being held up. The quality of many of the roses is fine and it pays the retailers to push their sale. Crusader is specially good and is increasingly popular.

A good run of wedding work has made a call for valley, cattleyas and lilies.

Dahlias have made their appearance and there are quantities of cosmos, the latter selling much better than the former. Celosia is seen in many varieties and there are fine tritomas, both effective in basket work. Strawflowers are beginning to appear in quantity.

The market is full of zinnias, marigolds, centaurea, gaillardia, coreopsis, liatris and other garden flowers fre-

Kennicott's Official Staff.

A meeting of the board of directors of Kennicott Bros. Co. was held last week and one of the matters to receive attention was the election of a secretary to fill the position vacant since the retirement of J. E. Pollworth. Edward Assa, a son of John Assa, the well known Bowmanville rose grower, was selected for the post. The official roster now stands:

President, H. B. Kennicott.
Vice-president, Joseph Kohout.
Treasurer, B. F. Ellis.
Secretary, Edward Assa.

Directors, H. B. Kennicott, B. F. Ellis, Edward Assa, Robert J. Windler and F. Kennicott Reilly.

It is noteworthy that the corporation this year is celebrating the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the business, by Flint Kennicott, in 1881.

Selling a Store.

W. H. Hilton has sold his store at 1375 East Fifty-fifth street to Hugo Carlson and will leave for Florida in the latter part of October to look after his citrus orchard. The store was offered for sale in a 1-inch ad in a recent issue of The Review. "I disposed of the store to the first applicant," writes Mr. Hilton, "the day after the ad appeared. Have had ten inquiries since. You certainly get results for the florists who use The Review."

The Thien-Weiland Wedding.

John Weiland, Jr., manager of the business of John Weiland, Sr., in Evanston and Wilmette, took unto himself a wife September 7 and the Evanston paper had this to say of the affair:

The wedding of Miss Jeanette Thien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Thien, 710 Ridge avenue, and John Weiland, Jr., took place Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock in St. Nicholas church. The bride wore a gown of crepe satin. Her tulle veil, held in place by a coronet of pearls, fell to the bottom of a full court train, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Marie Thien, who attended her sister as maid of honor, wore a gown of apricot crepe de chine and carried a shower bouquet of Butterfly roses and lavender asters. The bridesmaids, Miss Helen Schut, Miss Frances Weiland, Miss Marie Weiland and Miss Betty Weiland, wore crepe de chine gowns in varying shades of apricot with orchid tulle girdles. They carried arm bouquets of Butterfly roses and lavender asters. Fred Gelderman served Mr. Weiland as best man and the ushers were Ted Boesen, Frank Thien, Edward Boesen and Joseph C. Reis. Mr. and Mrs. Weiland will be at home after October 1 at 2220 Grant street.

Various Notes.

C. L. Washburn is greatly interested in next month's big trade show at Los Angeles. The Pacific coast palm growing branch of Bassett & Washburn is a supporter of the show, both as underwriter and exhibitor. Mr. Washburn would like to get up a party to go from Chicago for a two weeks' trip.

The American Bulb Co., planning as much on impressing florists as on retail sales, has put in a handsome and effective window display of recent arrivals. September 9 the company received 867 cases of Dutch stock from Holland via New York.

Henry M. Hirsch, who now is in business under his own name at 833 East Forty-sixth street, has displaced his old refrigerator with a much larger one built to order by Buchbinder Bros.

cinity of Philadelphia and Baltimore. Although primarily a vacation trip with his brother, Mr. Cook's eye to business has caused him to call on dozens of florists never before visited by a representative of the Laboratories and in practically every case he has established a sales agency with a stock of New Plant Life fertilizer in cans to retail at 25 cents and 50 cents. Retail florists know they should carry stock of such steady selling closely related side lines and, although they may not yet have reached the point of seeking them out, they take them on readily enough when someone like Mr. Cook comes along and saves them the trouble even of writing a letter.

An analytical mind, combined with long study of the florists' trade, enables Fred Lautenschlager to derive a meaning from the purchases of boilers. From this summer's orders, which have been particularly numerous, he deduces that many small growers, encouraged by preceding seasons, have made moderate additions to their glass area. And, so sanguine are their expectations for coming seasons, that they are purchasing Kroeschell boilers large enough to permit further additions of glass within another year or two. Mr. Lautenschlager sees widespread confidence, thus signified, in the trade's prospects.

The E. Wienhoeber Co., on Elm street, is in the midst of remodeling its store. The work was begun several weeks ago and has been delayed by the labor troubles in the building trades, but will be finished quickly when the unions accept their wage award. In the meantime the Wienhoeber business continues good. There have been more wedding orders this year than ever before in the first half of September.

John Muir, who has had no vacation this summer, is planning an early autumn outing at his fruit farm at Mears, Mich., where he has, among other things, a 12-acre orchard of cherries which will come into bearing next year.

Maurice Grossberg, of the defunct Grossberg, Tyler, Finnerman Co., has joined the sales force of Lion & Co., a New York ribbon house.

A. J. Zech and Matt Mann have returned from their outing in Wisconsin. They had an enjoyable trip, although unable to find a place where the fish were hungry.

An old house, not useful for anything else, served to produce some splendid giant dahlia-flowered zinnias for P. W. Peterson, of the Chicago Carnation Co. Blooms of equal size have been obtained by other growers outdoors, but not such good stems, nearly two feet in length.

Otto Amling has spent more time than usual vacationing this summer, chiefly in fishing at Lake Marie and adjoining waters.

The windows of the Fleishman Floral Co., in the Railway Exchange building, are noted for the striking displays they contain. None has been so colorful as that of the last week, when the left-hand space was occupied by a gilded tree stump, from the hollows of which projected brilliant tritomas in large numbers.

In about another week Hans Jepson will be cutting Golden Queen mums, almost a month earlier than he has previously sent them to market.

The Lake county fair, held last week at Libertyville, was notable for its floral displays from the millionaires' estates in the vicinity. Joseph Kohout acted as judge.

Visitors.

J. F. Ammann is in town, addressing the opening fall meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago at the Hotel Randolph Thursday evening, September 15.

J. K. Rugowski, of Manitowoc, Wis., was in the market last week with some of his new asters. Though not so big as those he introduced last year, they

The Market.

No great change has come over cut flower market conditions since last week's report. Asters continue to arrive in great numbers and the quality leaves nothing to be desired. Sales are only made at low rates. Nearly all growers report much disease in their crops and one wonders how conditions in the selling line would have been if plants had all remained healthy. There is a perceptible slackening up in the arrivals of gladioli. A few fancies, notably Schwaben, Europa and Unique, make $5 and $6, but great numbers sell at almost unquotable prices. Dahlias come from one or two growers, but these are mainly shipped direct to the retailers from the large growers, who are numerous in Massachusetts. There is an ample supply of cosmos, larkspur, coreopsis, helichrysums and other outdoor flowers.

A fair number of short-stemmed carnations are coming in. Buyers are not eager to purchase them while asters and gladioli are plentiful and cheap. Roses are little changed, values running all the way from 50 cents to $12. There are no American Beauty roses, and it would almost seem as if this one time rose leader was passing out altogether. It has held the center of the stage for more years than any other rose, but has been gradually falling back. I don't know of any New England rose specialist now growing it under glass, but its climbing form is popular outdoors.

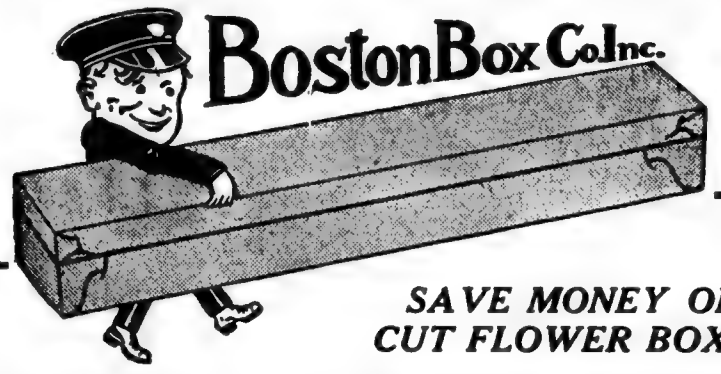
There are no longiflorum lilies nor white speciosums, but plenty of colored speciosums. Some chrysanthemums are arriving from several growers, mainly Early Frost and Golden Glow. These sell at $2 to $4 per dozen. A few pansies have appeared and single violets will come with cooler nights. Cattleyas are few and valley is poor. There are small lots of white bouvardia. Demand for fern and asparagus is light. A good call has started up for foliage plants and ferns for fall trade, and the general tone of retail trade is encouraging.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club comes September 20. Last year's poultry lecture proved so popular that it was decided to have another to open the fall campaign, and Roy T. Argood, poultry instructor and demonstrator of the Essex Agricultural School, will lecture on "Selecting Birds for Breeding Purposes." He will have a number of birds to illustrate his talk. Members are invited to bring displays of fruits, flowers or vegetables for the exhibits table.



Report of the dahlia show September 10 and 11 at Horticultural hall appears on another page of this issue.

The great exhibition of tropical ferns, orchids, cacti, stove and greenhouse plants, bromelias, etc., opens in Horticultural hall September 22 and the exhibits promise to fill all the halls of the society. W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., will fill 2,500 square feet in the main hall with a grand collection of ferns, cacti, bromelias, Rex begonias and dracænas. There will be many other large trade exhibits and some extensive collections from private exhibitors. This fern exhibition should prove to be a unique one and great interest is being taken in it. Several thousands of dollars in money premiums and about one hundred gold and silver medals are offered as premiums.

Thomas F. Galvin, Jr., had a big job on his hands September 9 for the funeral of M. M. Johnson, of the Endicott-Johnson Shoe Co., at Plymouth, Mass. No less than 109 pieces were made, of a value of over $4,000. This was one of the largest funeral orders handled by one retailer in Boston for some time.

William A. Manda was a visitor at the big dahlia show, making arrangements for his large forthcoming display at the big tropical fern show, opening September 22.

Fine chrysanthemums are coming in from Thomas Roland, the W. W. Edgar

Co. and William R. Nicholson. Varieties are mainly Early Frost and Golden Glow. Mr. Nicholson has a fine lot of Yellow Frost from one of his own sports.

Some of the large gladiolus growers are busy digging their bulbs. Jelle Roos, of Concord, who grows over twenty acres, has been busy for over three weeks on his. Thanks to abundant rains, bulbs are of great excellence this season.

There are numerous attractive flower classes at coming fairs in this vicinity. At Lynn this week there is excellent provision made for flowers. At Waltham, where E. A. Peirce is chairman of the floral department, there will be an even finer premium list than last year, and at Brockton fair early in October flowers are better provided for than ever before. W. N. C.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Conditions on the market showed a slight increase last week. Roses are now arriving in good-sized shipments, but they move readily, owing to the fact that just now they are the best flower to be had. Gladioli are still holding on and going well. The best varieties now to be had are Mrs. Francis King, Schwaben, Peace, America and White America. They move at prices from $2 to $5 per hundred. Dahlias now show the effects of their season and are arriving in quantities and in better condition. They move at prices from $3 to $6 per hundred. Delphinum can still be had and the outlook is good for some time to come, unless the frost kills it. Asters still glut the market, but they are about at their highest point now. They are beginning to look ragged and small. Carnations are of better quality.

Various Notes.

Julius Baer has a fine window display of novelty pigs and heads with growing grass on them, which are cleverly done.

T. J. Hardesty reports a record week in the sale of plants and baskets.

H. W. Sheppard reports that Mrs. Sheppard, who has been ill at the Good Samaritan hospital, is recovering rapidly and that soon she will be at home. Weddings and basket work for openings kept Mr. Sheppard busy last week.

C. E. Critchell is receiving some excellent dahlias from Charles Pfeiffer, of Fort Thomas, and also some exceptional zinnias from W. A. Schaefer, of Price Hill.

Samuel Urlage, of the Publes Corner Flower Shoppe, reports business on the boom around his section and his outward appearance on the market more than says the same thing.

The William Murphy Co. reports a good week in the sale of chiffons and baskets and also reports good shipments of roses from Rolf Zetlitz, of Dayton, O.

E. G. Gillett is receiving some good asters from a southern consignor and also reports large shipments of coontie foliage, of which the sales are many.

Fred Gear, of upper Vine street, reports a good week in funeral work. He has been doing well with F. T. D. orders of late.

The Tromey Flower Shop has been kept busy taking care of wedding orders during the last week.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving good Easter lilies from William Schumann, of the Highlands, and also good cosmos and dahlias from Frank Schumann, of Delhi.

Gus Adrian, Jr., of Clifton, has been having some excellent ferns of the Roosevelt, Boston and Scottii varieties, of which he reports good sales. Mr. Adrian, Sr., and Mrs. Adrian are still at Les Cheneaux islands, in Michigan.

A visitor last week was J. F. Keller, of the John A. Keller Co., of Lexington, Ky., with his son, who won a scholarship in St. Xavier's College here.

Richard Mayer, of Lion & Co., New York, and A. J. Obengerber, of the United States Foil Co., Louisville, Ky., were here last week.

Among the visitors was Prof. W. O. Cook, of the Polytechnic Institute, of Auburn, Ala. He was an ardent friend of the late C. P. Critchell and E. G. Gillett. He holds a number of positions in the state of Alabama, including that of professor of floriculture, professor of landscape gardening and deputy state inspector. Mr. Cook is about 80 years old, but is still as spry as a man much younger. He came through with the Dixie Highway delegation, of which he is a member and which held its annual convention in this city last week.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The market conditions are bad. Outdoor flowers are more plentiful than they have ever been at this season and there is only a moderate amount of business. The flowers sold bring fair prices, but many remain unsold. With indoor flowers the situation is a trifle better. The rose crop is going off. There is some demand for Beauties, valley and orchids. The better roses sell more readily than the shorter grades. Carnations have come.

Indications point to a gradual improvement, but with such a heavy oversupply of flowers, the wholesalers are unwilling to allow many dahlias to come. They feel that it would be a mistake. Better wait a few days for cooler weather and a little business. Golden Glow chrysanthemums have come and Smith's Advance are promised in a few days.

Down East.

Those interested in matters horticultural may recall that it was chronicled in The Review last spring that Charles P. Rich, secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, spent several days in this city and that, during his stay, he called upon some of our leading men.

Just why did not appear at the time. Now there is the strongest kind of circumstantial evidence to warrant the belief that this visit had something to do with the coming show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, to be held in Boston, September 22 to 25, and that a close scrutiny of the exhibits may show that some fine ferns and orchids have reached there from this neighborhood, which simply goes to show that Secretary Rich, like many successful men, believes that if you want something you must go after it.

An Overdose.

The question came up about a certain lot of plants that it was thought might have had too much bone meal, when one of the growers spoke up: "My boss was a graduate of Kew Gardens, in England. He knew a lot about plants. He said you could not give a plant too much bone meal. It is like giving cracked oyster shells to a chicken. It just takes what it wants and comes back for more when it is ready. It won't take too much. Now I will show you." So saying, the speaker took a strong, healthy plant from a 3-inch pot, potted it into a 4-inch pot, using a mixture consisting of one-half bone meal and one-half loam, remarking that you will admit that is an overdose.

The plant died.

The Chair Parade.

The parade of roller chairs on the board walk at Atlantic City September 8 proved to be an even more important affair than had been expected. There were an immense number of chairs in the procession and they were tastefully decorated, usually with garlands of flowers. The promoter was tremendously pleased with the interest taken in the affair, a pleasure that was increased by the fact that his chair won first prize, a gold cup, because, as he naively explained it, the judges just had to give the prize to the most beautiful lady in America and that was his wife, who was in the chair. The names of Habermehl and of Edwards were on every lip and the star of flora was in the ascendant. A description of the individual chair decorations would be quite superfluous, because you can get the ideas much better by just strolling over to the movies and there viewing the Atlantic City chair parade on the board walk. When you have done that a vista of possibilities will present itself to your alert business mind and you will bring about such a show in your own bailiwick.

Various Notes.

The commission houses resumed their winter hours Monday, September 12.

Robert Craig returned from Ocean Grove, N. J., September 7.

George D. Clark has returned from California.

Among the fine dahlias received by Berger Bros. from the Dahliadel Nurseries were boxes made up of one-half Norma, a large white cactus variety, and one-half Attraction, a pink cactus variety. Both were extremely well grown.

Frank X. Alter, managing partner of the Charles F. Krueger Co., has replaced gladioli with dahlias as the leading flowers in his Reading Terminal flower stand display.

Bianca, Attraction, Walker and Kalif are some of the leading varieties of dahlias at the store of the S. S. Pennock Co. There are many other fine sorts.

Arthur Henry delivered an illustrated lecture on "The Pueblo Indians of New Mexico" before the Germantown Horticultural Society in the Vernon park library, September 12. Why did he do it? There were creditable exhibits of wild and tame flowers, fruits and vegetables.

The Leo Niessen Co. is having its fine dahlias packed at the farms and shipped on orders, to avoid bruising and insure satisfaction.

Commodore A. B. Cartledge's Diana won the 50-mile motorboat race to Ship John Light, September 5, defeating the four-time winner and establishing a new record.

Samuel S. Pennock, Jr., is playing well in the national lawn tennis singles at Manheim, winning his match in the second round.

The baseball game, Bickmore versus Craig, scheduled for September 7, was not played.

It was reported in The Review for September 8 that Bickmore had defeated Craig in baseball August 29. The reverse is true; Craig defeated Bickmore on that date by a score of 14 to 11.

Edward H. White, of Hammonton, N. J., was in the city September 10.

The Market.

Business in general at Washington so far this month has been poor. Funeral work has fallen off until there are practically no orders being booked. It is too early for weddings and social activity is at a low ebb. At the same time, flowers are plentiful, particularly asters and gladioli. Large quantities of the latter, of good quality, are being shipped in from the north, competing with the local stock. However, the growers in this vicinity are now practically cut out. The northern stock brings from $25 to $40 per thousand; the local stock brings up to $60 per thousand.

Pennsylvania and New York state are furnishing huge quantities of asters of extra fine quality. The price on these ranges from $30 to $40 per thousand. Some good local asters are also to be had and are more desirable, because

The quality of roses shipped in from the north is good. Russell and Columbia are the best. In the local market, Mock and pink and red Radiance are the leaders. Prices range from $2 to $15 per hundred. American Beauty roses are bringing from $1.50 to $3 per dozen.

There is practically no demand for small corsage roses, such as Ward and Sweetheart, and these are to be had in large quantities at this time. The few orchids offered are taken up by an occasional wedding. Such valley as is desired must be brought in from out of town at $10 per hundred and, for the most part, the quality is good.

The weather has been too hot for dahlias; nevertheless, they are coming into the market in large quantities, both from local growers and from those located many miles distant from the city. Zinnias, marigolds and other outdoor flowers further complicate the situation.

William F. Gude is one of the eleven Washingtonians who have received one of the commemorative medals awarded by Hon. Eugene Schneider, president of the French Economic Mission, in recognition of their useful work on behalf of the mission during "the visit it so greatly appreciated in your city." The medal is in plaque shape, three inches long and two inches wide, and is of bronze. It was designed by the French artist, S. E. Vernier, and has Mr. Gude's name lettered on the reverse side. During the stay of the mission at Washington, Mr. Gude materially assisted the members and Miss Amelia Gude, one of the city's best young woman drivers, served as chauffeur for some of its members in a tour of the city and a visit to the Capitol.

First prize for a commercial float was recently awarded to Gude Bros. Co. for its efforts on the occasion of the parade and pageant held as an aid to build in the city of Washington a replica of the home, in Georgia, of the mother of the late Theodore Roosevelt. The parade was headed by a company of 100 marines. There were a number of attractive floats. The parade was reviewed by Adjutant General P. C. Harris, who acted for General Pershing.

The withdrawal of Adolph Gude from the firm of Gude Bros. Co. and the organization of a separate company to operate the Anacostia range are reported on a forward page of this issue.

ciety and Dahlia Society of New England at Horticultural hall September 10 and 11. The latter society was too late in issuing its schedule and many classes were uncontested. Another year it should send out a month or two at least in advance of the show. The quality of the flowers shown was superb. It has been a wonderful growing season for dahlias in the east and Boston never had as fine quality flowers before. Some of the specimens of decorative and peony-flowered shown were twenty-seven to thirty-two inches in circumference. These two types seemed to be the most popular. The cactus family has declined in favor, while the beautiful singles are all but neglected.

For the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's premiums awards were made as follows:

Twelve show and fancy, distinct—W. D. Hathaway, New Bedford, first; C. Louis Alling, second.

Twenty-four cactus—Alfred E. Doty, first.

Twelve cactus—C. Louis Alling, first.

Twenty-four decorative—Thomas Leavitt, Dorchester, first, with superb flowers of Sammy, Golden de Luxe, Marjorie Field, Hortulanus Fiet, Anna Mier, Cambria, Mons. le Normandie, Edgeworth, Mammoth, Millionaire, Sulphur White, Setting Sun, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, D. W. Jones, C. W. Hayden, Judge Mareau, Catherine Wilcox, Herbert Slocombe, Ralph Benister, Snowdrift, Frank Allen and President Wilson.

Twelve decorative—Hayden & Story, first, with extra fine blooms of Gen. A. J. Bailey, Glorianna, Della V. Potter, Azalea, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Pink Lady, Ralph Benister and Eagle Island.

Twelve peony-flowered—Thomas Leavitt, first, with grand flowers of T. L. Snow, Western Delight, Cleopatra, Fred P. Watts, Fiery Cross, Florence Bond, Chenango, James Macomber, Ralph Blanchard, D. Barnes and Sam Francis.

Twelve vases pompons—W. D. Hathaway, first; C. Louis Alling, second.

Largest and best collection of named varieties—C. Louis Alling, first.

Special awards were made as follows: G. L. Fish, a certificate of merit for a grand collection of seedling dahlias; certificate of merit for Dahlia Mandaiana, a rich crimson decorative carried on lusty stems with an abundance of heavy foliage right up to the flowers, of dwarf habit, a fine novelty; honorable mention to Dahlia Have-A-Look, a gem from G. L. Fish; C. Louis Alling, for seedling dahlia No. 66; Joseph Breck & Sons, for a large and representative collection of dahlias; Thomas J. Murphy, for Dahlia White Beauty; Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., for an extensive and finely arranged collection of dahlias and gladioli. Of the latter the following were remarkably fine: Dream, Mrs. Watt, Europa, Pink Perfection, Mary Pickford, Peace, White Giant, Panama, Niagara, Sulphur King, Reine Blanche, Youell's Favorite and Baron Hulot.

New England Society's Awards.

In the numerous classes of the Dahlia Society of New England some of the leading prize-winners were: Thomas Leavitt, J. E. Jones, T. J. Murphy, E. W. Darling, W. D. Hathaway, W. H. Symonds, T. H. Hughes, E. J. Harkins, John J. Garney, Alfred E. Doty, New Haven, Conn.; L. N. Davis, Cliftondale, Mass., and J. A. Nolet.

Miss Emily Slocombe, New Haven, Conn., had some large vases of handsome novelties. The best were Slocombe's Buff, Lorna Slocombe, Winifred Slocombe, of a lovely apricot shade, and Edith Slocombe.

John K. Alexander had a large and impressive collection of named varieties not for competition. Large groups were also staged by A. N. Doty, C. Louis Alling, L. N. Davis, Thomas J. Murphy, the Sunbeam Dahlia Farm and others.

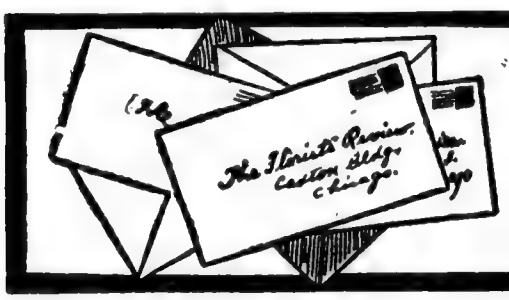
SNAPDRAGONS FOR MAY.

When should I sow the seed of snapdragons so that they will bloom during the months of May and June?

J. E. S.—Pa.

Sow the seed about the end of February. Pot them off singly and plant them in benches or beds, before they become too much potbound. C. W.

SUNBURNED PALM LEAF.



We are sending under separate cover an aspidistra leaf, which is an example of how our palms have been affected for some time. The plant has been housed in a residence parlor for about three years. Last summer it was shifted into an 8-inch pot and about six months ago leaf after leaf became spotted, as the sample shows. The plant itself gave off a disagreeable odor, especially when being watered. We have divided the plant into three clumps of about fifteen leaves each and have kept the plants for two weeks in the greenhouse in a semi-sunny place. Will you tell us what the trouble is?

A. P.—Mich.

The aspidistra leaves show no particular disease, but they are badly sunburned. This injury has been done by a defective pane of glass, the latter most likely having a large blister on it. When the sun's rays strike such a blister from a certain angle, a first-rate burning glass is at once formed. The odor referred to is simply that of burned vegetable matter. The best cure would be to find the defective glass and to paint it with thin white paint on the under side. W. H. T.

Columbus, O.—T. J. Blinco, who has been florist at the Columbus state hospital, has resigned his position to go into business with his two brothers.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

A marked shortage of flowers developed last week. A few hot days, with high, dry winds, ruined many asters and other flowers that were needed, while the dahlias do not fill the bill for shipping. Roses were on the scarce side and a more than usually good demand cleaned up everything in sight. Chrysanthemum growers, as usual, are setting the prices high early in the season, with the natural consequence that wholesalers buy only what they require for immediate needs. Later, when mums are cheaper, out-of-town buyers will go elsewhere—a plain case of the old proverb about the goose and the golden egg. Although there still are good asters in the market, they will decline from now on and will soon give way to mums. Greens are improving steadily and are shipping much better. Both wholesalers and retailers report a much better tone to business.

Various Notes.

At the store of the Redondo Floral Co. everyone is busy. A. Knopf, being much improved in health, is doing his usual trick at the store. In the absence of F. Reymond on vacation, A. F. Borden is also a busy man. Mr. Reymond will be away for about a month.

F. R. Hills has purchased a private collection of orchids at Santa Barbara and has added it to his cattleya collection at the nursery.

George Eischen, manager of the Alexandria Florist, and H. R. Richards had a pleasant trip through the mountains to Baldwin lake and Big Bear. Mr. Eischen is taking a well earned vacation.

At the public meeting called for discussion of the big show and a look over the exposition grounds, there was an attendance of about seventy-five, all interested. Roy F. Wilcox, M. Germain, F. M. Renfro and others spoke and much enthusiasm was shown. A record crowd seems inevitable.

Fine business is the report of the Broadway Florist.

Tassano & Son have disposed of their Glendale place and are erecting three acres of additional lath at Burbank. Later on, several new greenhouses are to be built.

Fine gladioli continue to be sent in by Gorini Bros. and these will come for some time yet, from successive plantings.

Tassano Bros. are shipping especially good maidenhair ferns to this market from their Artesia nurseries. Angelo Tassano says the prospects for blooming stock on his large plantation are extra good.

The H. N. Gage Co. reports a good demand for decorative stock for the fashion show, the large goldenrod being especially favored.

Geo. J. Hall & Co. report business opening up well. Ed. Hall is on a trip to San Francisco. On his return, everybody at this establishment will be through vacationing and will settle down to business. George says the summer business, though quiet, has been as good as could have been expected and prospects are good for next season.

T. Luke, president of Smith's Flower Shop, Inc., at Portland, Ore., was in this city last week, having driven down and visited the northern cities en route.

Apparently the efforts of W. N. Williamson, of W. Armacost & Co., have been successful in obtaining express service on the morning train to Salt Lake City and the express company has promised to put on a car October 1 or as soon as needed. Much credit is due Mr. Williamson for his work along this line, which will help all the other wholesalers as well as Armacost & Co. At the Sawtelle range the nonarrival of one of the cars of glass has checked construction, but it also gave Mr. Armacost a chance to get away for a three weeks' vacation, which he will spend, as usual, in the wilds, out of the reach of telephones and other business worries. He goes to Huntington lake and from there "treks" into the hills where the golden trout are to be had. Mr. Royston has left for an extended business trip, going as far east as Chicago and touring the southern states, as well as the Pacific northwest.

S. Murata & Co. are handling choice mums in their local and near-by shipping trade, but Mr. Murata says the flowers will not be safe for long-distance shipping until about October 1.

Albert Goldenson has returned from a trip to San Diego and Tia Juana, Mexico, accompanied by Mrs. Goldenson.

Los Angeles, Cal.

Attention Mr. Murata

Dear Mr. Murata:

I am writing you personally to thank you for the excellent manner in which you have handled our orders. The Asters are arriving in very good condition and we believe that you have solved the problem of packing for long distance shipping. You will probably be interested in knowing that while I was in New Orleans recently I had two hundred of the deep pink and purple Asters reshipped there and they arrived in very good condition.

Very truly yours,

It Pays to Pick Up Nails

Some years ago we had a man who was always going around picking up nails. Nails were cheap then. The foreman said he was a nuisance—said it didn't pay to pick up nails. He proved it to us with pencil and paper—but we were not entirely convinced even then. We decided to keep him a while and see how it worked out.

We mighty soon found out that a man who would take the trouble to pick up a nail, would pick up an empty pot, save a broken plant, lock the stable door, and just naturally look after the place like it was his own. He just couldn't help it. It was in his blood. When you see a man pick up a nail or a piece of string it shows you his character just as plainly as his handwriting, his thumb print, or the way he wears his hat.

It's just the same with a business house. We are a firm of nail pickers—and string savers. We are always fussing around to see if there isn't some way to sell stock cheaper, to grow the stock better, and to make the crate a little lighter. We don't give the Express Company any rest; we are after lower rates and better service. We have just succeeded in getting express matter on the Salt Lake Limited. This will be a big help for that territory. Been working for this for over two years.

We have some other plans to save you money. You will hear about them later. We can only pick up one nail at a time.

Are you getting our price list? A postal will bring it.

dant as other stock, are still plentiful enough to go around. The warm, sunny weather is making all stock do well, for there is not enough heat to do any injury. This makes prices for the moment reasonable, but after the first rains, which are due this month, there will, undoubtedly, be a less plentifully supplied market for a time at least. Meanwhile the local demand is fairly good and shipping is satisfactory, especially of mums.

Various Notes.

The fall dahlia and flower show, held at the Hotel Oakland, September 4 to 6, was viewed by some 1,500 flower fanciers and was the largest show of its kind ever given in Alameda county. The show was given under the auspices of the Alameda County Floral Society. Mrs. J. A. Scannavino was the manager and Mrs. R. H. Gray was assistant manager. A silver trophy for the best general display of dahlias went to Burns & Hartstone, of Oakland. A special exhibit of flowers, grown by the prisoners at San Quentin, arranged by Captain Randolph, of that institution, won first prize for the best group of dahlias, open to institutions. Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., won several prizes in the professional class. Several of the other San Francisco exhibitors were among the prize-winners and a number of Alameda county growers, both professional and amateur, were made happy by prizes and praise for the remarkably fine exhibits.

The Dahlia Society of California will hold its annual exhibit in the Palace hotel, San Francisco, September 15 to 17. President J. Davis and the board of directors have decided to award to the most meritorious exhibit in the show a trophy that the Dahlia Society of Trenton, N. J., has offered to the California society. Many remarkable exhibits are assured for the show. The prisoners at San Quentin, whose display caused much interest last year, will show on a larger scale. Frank D. Pelicano has several remarkable new dahlias. The growers for Charles C. Navlet & Co., Richard Diener, of Kent-

A big sporting interest is beginning to attach to the bowling match that is to take place between members of the staff of Podesta & Baldocchi and a scrub team, organized to take up the challenge that they gave to all local florists. The scrub team consists of David Lichtenstein, captain; J. A. Axell, Bap Pagona and Louis Capurro, of Avansino Bros. & Co., and Gus Taylor, of Fred Bertrand's Flower Store, in the Palace hotel. They are all good bowlers and have offered to back themselves to the extent of $50 to $100. The original challengers are now practicing industriously and bowling fans among the florists are urging that a date be set for the match.

Fred Moore, of Sacramento, has just been in San Francisco on a buying trip. He reports that business is keeping up well in the capital city. One of his orders consisted of the decorations for the Nelly Dingle wedding, one of the recent society events.

J. A. Axell, who has returned from a long trip, says that he found business conditions good everywhere among the florists. "Montana seemed to be the hardest hit," he stated, "on account of the mines running only one-third time, but all the Montana florists I met seemed to be optimistic. People in general were much interested in California flowers."

The experiment of shipping chrysanthemums to the south, as far as New Orleans, without a refrigerator car has been made successfully by Enomoto & Co., Inc. There is no refrigerator car to the south, so the firm took chances and the result has proved to be satisfactory.

Podesta & Baldocchi are having extensive alterations made in the store, to give more space for the art objects from Italy which are now in the San Francisco customhouse.

At Joseph's it was stated that the social season has opened with many orders for decorations. The firm is looking forward to a winter that will be active socially. The presence of the fleet is helping to make entertaining popular.

The Art Floral Co. has issued its new catalogue. It has seventy-two pages, all excellently illustrated with views of floral decorations, many of them attractive and original in design.

F. C. Jaeger, Sr., of F. C. Jaeger & Son, is a member of the grand jury and he is on a tour of inspection, with the other jurors, visiting the scene of the great Hetch Hetchy projects, for bringing water to San Francisco. The completion of this great project means much to growers.

Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., is calling on the local trade. M. M.

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

The hot weather during the latter part of August put roses ahead too fast and, consequently, there have been too many on the market. Some of the larger growers found no market for them. Up to September 15 there had been no frost and little cool weather, so that flowers were fairly abundant in the gardens. Large quantities of gladioli are being grown. Some excellent stock has come into the market. Indications are good for better business as soon as frost comes.

At the State Fair.

The Minnesota state fair was the big attraction last week. The attendance was not so great as usual, but the association cleared between $40,000 and $50,000. Floriculture in St. Paul was represented in a commercial way by Holm & Olson, who, in addition to the regular classes, put on a fine display of nursery stock. Their table decorations were excellent and brought forth much favorable comment. Swanson's, Inc., and the Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, of Minneapolis, put up fine displays of ferns, decorative plants and designs.

Pauline Windmiller, of Mankato; the Pfeiffer Nursery Co., Winona; George Black & Son, Albert Lea, and F. F. Farrar, of Birch Lake, were among the out-of-town visitors and exhibitors.

The Pfeiffer Nursery Co. made a fine display of 100 varieties of gladioli, in spite of the fact that they had to be brought 200 miles by automobile.

The amateur gardeners had fine displays of cut garden flowers, wild flowers, wild flower baskets, etc. They showed fifteen or twenty different dinner table decorations. Among them were some of excellent quality.

This exhibit was held in the horticultural building and filled about one-half the space. About $3,000 was offered in prizes for flowers and the following are those who won the prizes offered:

Decorative plants covering 100 square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Floral Co., third.

Decorative plants covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Floral Co., second; Swanson's, Inc., third.

FOOTWEAR IN FLOWERS.

Certainly one of the prime essentials in planning a funeral design is to manage so that the legend of the piece is appropriate to the occasion. A fine example of how attractively this can be done is shown in the floral shoe design on this page. This piece was made by W. J. Brust, of Columbus, O., for the funeral of C. W. Miller, of that city, a prominent citizen and the president of the H. C. Godman Shoe Co. As can be seen, the piece is realistically made up of lilies surmounted by fern for the top of the shoe, while asters of light and dark shades compose the vamp, heel and sole. Many other designs for the funeral were made by Mr. Brust, one of the pieces being a large blanket of roses and gladioli.

ONE WASHINGTON WINDOW.

Probably for the purpose of producing as cool as possible an aspect in a city reputed to be somewhat torrid in summer, several of the florists of Washington, D. C., show cool scenes in their windows. Some of them have had mention in the columns of The Review. One that has attracted much attention is that on the H street side of Z. D. Blackistone's store. This is quite evidently a working out in materials available to the florist of a Maxfield Parrish painting, a magazine-page reproduction of which is displayed down in one corner. A turreted castle looms on heights at the back, while in front is the water scene that lends the effect of coolness. Herein are ducks and turtles in quite realistic surroundings. Perhaps this is the moat of the castle. In any event, the colorful scene by Parrish has been carried out in a most interesting manner. It has drawn the attention of many, many passers-by during the summer. The Fourteenth street window of Mr. Blackistone's store is filled with baskets and vases of flowers that show the art to be found in the floral work of this establishment.

MORE WINDOW DISPLAY IDEAS.

Many florists like to put some touch in their window that will draw the notice of passers without going to the trouble of making a complete display to illustrate the idea. For such florists a number of business-quickeners have been suggested in these columns before. Here are a few more:

In connection with a display of a popular and seasonable flower, fasten a paper of pins and a paper of needles to the cardboard on which you are going to make your sign. The sign should read:

Needles and Pins, Needles and Pins,
When a Man Marries Her Neglect Begins—
Take HER Some Flowers Tonight.

Show a woman's diary, opened, in the window. Have one of the girls in the store make entries of the little things that a woman might record. Four or five times on the two pages have something like this:

August 4—John brought roses from (name of your store) again tonight. Married ten years, but he is as thoughtful as before the children came.

August 10—Busy getting ready for club here tomorrow. Didn't know how to decorate room. Called (name of your store); he suggested (name of flowers).

August 15—Went to hospital today to see Grace. The baby is a darling. She was delighted with the flowers I took from (name of your store).

With some whiting and water, paint on the window glass some lines and notes to represent a bar of music, as if they were the words for the music letter on the following:

Harmony in the home
Where there's flowers.

Put in your window an easel with a blank piece of drawing board or cardboard on it. At the base of the easel place a bouquet and this sign:

MAKE A PICTURE OF HAPPINESS
in your own home. Here are the colors.

In a row in your window place a letter, a telegraph blank, and a telephone instrument or directory. Last of all have a card with the slogan. Behind these have a sign:

THERE ARE MANY WAYS—BUT BEST OF ALL
"Say It with Flowers."

Get a globe map of the world such as is used in schoolrooms. Put a dab of paste at each corner of a small sheet of tin foil and cover a part of the surface of the globe—the part nearest your window glass. Use this sign:

MAKE THE WORLD BRIGHTER FOR SOMEBODY.
"Say It with Flowers."

The Market.

Cooler weather has toned up business somewhat the last week and stock at the wholesale markets showed better quality. While extra prime stock is still limited, there is an abundance of anything seasonable to be had daily. Prices are still low and the retailer with a big job on his hands has had things pretty much his own way in buying. Several bargain sales advertised by the downtown florists somewhat relieved the market of the great surplus that accumulated daily, after the morning sales were over. Several good rains during the week gave fresh life to all outdoor flowers.

The consignments of asters have greatly increased, while gladioli have decreased. Roses are in abundance in all varieties and grades, especially in Columbia, while other varieties are more than the demand calls for. Carnations are improving in flower and stem. With cool nights from now on, speedy improvements in quantity and quality should be in evidence in another week. A few mums, Golden Glow, are arriving, but there are not enough for market quotations. Growers of mums say the crop will be large this season. Dahlia shipments, too, have greatly increased and all markets have more than they can handle at present. Gladiolus spikes are nearing their end and the market clears on them daily.

There are still many flowers from outdoors coming in, which have a good demand, for use in window displays. Valley and lilies hold their own in price, as they are not in abundance. Asters were in such great abundance last week that prices dropped badly and buyers in big lots made their own price. In greens the market was in good condition and the demand consumed the supply almost daily; especially was this so in asparagus and fancy ferns.

Florists' Club Meets.

The regular monthly meeting of the

Can You Tell When You Sell A Man?

Now honest, can you?
You can tell when he buys.
But can you tell when you have sold him?

What made me ask was, that yesterday in came a very stylishly dressed man and wife, and bought a jolly good lot of flowers for "a little dinner," as they expressed it.

Just before leaving, the gentleman said: "Do you know, Mr. Stumpp, how I came to buy these flowers of you today? Did it because you sold them to me six months ago. You didn't know when you sold me—but I did.
"We only bought one of your $5 Hobby Boxes then, but the courtesy and attention your salesman gave us, made us feel like a million dollars.
"You never really know when you sell a man. All you know is when he buys."

After which, I called the boys together and we had a little talk among ourselves about courtesy; its money-making value.

St. Louis Florists' Club was held at Webster Groves, Mo., at the establishment of Albert Senger. This being the installation meeting, the attendance was large. President Rowe called the meeting to order at 2:30 p. m., with all the officers present. The trustees reported the receipts and disbursements of the recent picnic, leaving a balance of $15 to be returned to the club's treasurer. The committee also announced that the October meeting will be held at the establishment of the W. A. Rowe Floral Co., at Kirkwood, Mo.

L. Jules Bourdet, chairman of a committee to organize the Allied Florists' Trade Association, reported that the committee at a recent meeting had perfected such an organization, that forty had signed as charter members and that the list was still open for charter members. The secretary then read the by-laws that had been adopted. The committee on the applications for membership from Herman Gross, Paul Ahner, George Dressell, L. F. Meiners and John Edwards, reported favorably and a motion prevailed that the secretary cast one ballot for the members present for the applicants. Their election followed.

The question then arose as to the fate of twenty delinquent members. This was fully discussed and it was decided to leave the question for the officers to decide at their next monthly conference. They are to report at the next regular meeting. Each of four members paid 10 cents for failure to wear a flower during the meeting.

Next came the installation of officers-elect. The chair appointed two former presidents, J. F. Ammann and F. J. Fillmore, as installing officers. These two in turn installed into office W. A. Rowe as president. Vice-president-elect Julius Schaeffer was not present. J. J. Beneke was installed as secretary; W. C. Smith, as treasurer, and Albert W. Gumz, as trustee. The secretary then read his yearly report, which showed that the membership is 235, thirty over last year. There were no deaths, no resignations and none was dropped for non-payment of dues. During the year $1,371.49 was handled by the secretary and disbursements on vouchers were $749.97, leaving a balance on hand of $621.52. The amount due the club was $470.65, leaving a total of $1,092.17 to the club's credit. A motion then prevailed that the report be printed and a copy sent to each member of the club with next month's meeting notice. It was moved that the club donate a prize of $10 to the St. Louis County Growers' Association picnic. A rising vote of thanks was extended to Albert Senger for the afternoon's entertainment.

L. P. Jensen next gave an interesting talk on the recent annual meeting of the American Park Superintendents' Association convention, held at Detroit, Mich. The chair then called upon several members who attended the S. A. F. convention at Washington for a talk, to which J. F. Ammann, ex-president of the S. A. F., responded in his usual interesting way. Mr. Jensen's and Mr. Ammann's talks were highly interesting to all present, and both received a rising vote of thanks. The question box brought out several discussions of interest to the members. The meeting then adjourned. The members were taken in hand and invited to partake of refreshments and cigars. After inspecting Mr. Senger's new greenhouse range of 15,000 feet of glass, the members pronounced it up-to-date in every

The Bowling League.

The "Say It with Flowers" Bowling League opened its season September 7, at the Grand Arsenal bowling alleys, with six teams. All members were present. For the opening night, the Orchids, captained by George Kuehner, defeated the Carnations, captained by Fred Hermann, in two of the three games played. The Roses, captained by Frank Plotz, won all three games from Captain Oscar Ruff's Violets and Captain John Bentzen's Sweet Peas won all three games from Captain Frank Windler's Daisies. Oscar Ruff averaged 182; J. J. Beneke, 180; Frank Plotz, 172; N. Y. Ellison, 168; A. Hoffmann, Jr., 160, and H. Schlechter, 159. These were the six high average men of the night. The Orchids had the three highest games, averaging 732 per game, a total of 2,179. The Roses were second, with 718 per game, a total of 2,153. The Orchids rolled the highest single game, 795, and the Carnations rolled 768. All in the trade are invited to see the fun any Wednesday night.

Various Notes.

SUMMER SEASON, Bellevue Ave., NEWPORT, R. I.

Co., in Kirkwood, Mo. There was a large attendance present when President Ude called the meeting to order. The committee on arrangements for the annual picnic reported everything in readiness for the picnic, to be held at Studt's park, upper Creve Coeur lake, September 15. Secretary Joseph Deutschmann announced that a discussion would take place on the Allied Florists' Trade Association, which is being formed by a committee appointed by the St. Louis Florists' Club. The by-laws as adopted by this committee were then read by the secretary. These and the new organization were then fully discussed, after which a motion was passed that the association go on record as being fully in accord with the new Allied Florists' Trade Association and as accepting the by-laws as read. All present signed as charter members. Workings of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association were also fully discussed. After the meeting had adjourned, W. A. Rowe, head of the W. A. Rowe Floral Co., invited the members to refreshments. An enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

Chairman C. E. DeWever, of the Pot Plant Growers' committee, has called a meeting of all pot plant growers for Tuesday night, September 20, at 7:30 p. m., at the store of the Bourdet Floral Co. Notices will be sent to all pot plant growers.

The executive board of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association will meet in St. Louis Tuesday afternoon, September 20, at 2 o'clock in publicity headquarters. President Walter A. Amling requests every member of the board to be present, as a matter of great importance will come up for discussion.

The death of Henry Jennemann occurred at his home at Webster Groves, Mo., August 31. Mr. Jennemann specialized in fancy dahlias and, although he was busily engaged in the commission business, nevertheless he consigned his fancy dahlias to the St. Louis wholesale market each season. Many knew him and many visited his fine dahlia farm each season. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

Albert Senger's new place at Webster Groves, Mo., is in fine shape for the season. He has 15,000 square feet of glass, under which are grown mums, both for cut flowers and pot plants; ferns and begonias. Mr. Senger is continuing his Lexington avenue greenhouses at St. Louis, where a general line of pot plants is grown. Mr. Senger's business was growing to such proportions that the new range, at Webster Groves, became necessary.

The Missouri Botanical Garden lost 900 tons of coal by spontaneous combustion. The fire department responded to the alarm. George H. Pring, superintendent of the garden, said the coal was stored in a concrete bin and that it was totally destroyed. This occurred last week.

Ben Bakker, representing A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, spent the last week here calling on the trade at large.

Thomas C. Carr has had an unusual amount of funeral work the last week, at his Union market store. Among the orders were some for several casket palls, which were finely executed by Miss G. Killeullen, the floral artist for Mr. Carr.

William H. Osseck, secretary and treasurer of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., has taken several degrees in Masonry the last month.

Again during the last week Grimm & Gorly relieved the market of surplus asters, which threatened to become a glut, by buying up many thousand and advertising an aster sale at 25 cents per dozen. The sale brought many new customers into the store.

Some of the old-time florist bowlers who organized the Florists' Bowling Club in 1893, when the S. A. F. held its first convention at St. Louis, are still bowling with the new league. They are C. A. Kuehn and Carl Beyer, with the Carnations; N. Y. Ellison, with the Daisies, and J. J. Beneke, with the Orchids. J. J. B. are of the best variety. They have larger heads and make a better showing than either Ophelia or Butterfly this early in the season. The cooler weather has strengthened stock perceptibly. Dahlias make a better showing as the season advances. Asters and gladioli are the other main flowers at this time.

Florists' Club Meeting.

An extremely interesting meeting of the Florists' Club was held Thursday, September 8, in the salesroom of the T. J. Noll Floral Co. Two new members were received: C. L. Paul Gabriel, florist and gardener of the city park and boulevard system, and J. M. McKeown, of the A. L. Randall Co. L. R. Bohannon, treasurer, made his semi-annual report, showing the finances to be in a healthy condition. Barkley & Moore, of Liberty, Mo., exhibited a bouquet of choice asters and J. B. Masson exhibited two plants of summer-blooming tuberous begonias. S. Bryson Ayres exhibited new varieties of celosia.

As this was the annual meeting, officers for the year were to be elected. When this order of business was reached, Samuel Murray, newly elected vice-president of the S. A. F., arose and voiced the opinion that, since the officers who had served the first year of the club's existence had done such splendid work, it would be a mistake to change. The work of preparing for the S. A. F. convention next August is such a big thing that Mr. Murray thought it wise to let the same officers serve another twelve months. As no opposition to this proposal arose all of the officers and trustees were reëlected, as follows: President, T. J. Noll; vice-president, W. J. Barnes; secretary, William Wade; treasurer, L. R. Bohannon; trustees, P. A. Manson, W. L. Rock and Arthur R. Smith.

President Noll reminded the members of their responsibility as hosts of the S. A. F. and said that preparations were already under way for the convention. Mr. Noll said that the park board had promised to coöperate with the club in every possible way. L. R. Bohannon suggested that the officers and directors hold a meeting every two weeks to take up matters pertaining to the club and to consider any suggestion or grievance that any member may see fit to present. These will be acted upon by the board and presented at the general meeting of the club in a concise manner in order to save time.

The sales force of the Alpha Floral Co. had a picnic September 11 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alpha Elberfield, at Overland Park, Kan. All of the thirty-two workers went out in their own cars, ranging from Fords to Packards. A delicious dinner of fried chicken, salads and various courses was served by the hosts. The ice cream was made from Jersey cream from the Elberfield farm and was frozen by electricity, which furnishes all the power on the place.

The second annual fall show of the Kansas City Gardens Association was held Saturday, September 10, in the G. T. O'Maley Ford salesroom. The object of the association is to encourage persons to raise their own food. Two tracts of vacant property contain over 100 gardens and there are a number of gardens in home lots and one community garden shared by apartment house dwellers. All varieties of vegetables were displayed. In the school gardens department were samples of canned fruit and preserves put up by the school children. The Harnden Seed Co. each year offers three prizes in merchandise to the value of $50 for the best collection of vegetables grown by an amateur. One of the features of the show was a display of celosia by S. Bryson Ayres. One basket, standing more than six feet high, was arranged by

LARGEST AMOUNT OF GLASS DEVOTED TO CUT FLOWERS IN THE SOUTH

L. R. Bohannon, of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. This was sent by Mr. Ayres to the office of one of the local newspapers and created unusual comment on account of its beauty. Mr. Ayres has a 10-acre field of celosia near Independence, Mo. Heretofore he has produced the flowers in small quantities and they have had a limited retail sale. This year he is able to sell in wholesale lots and has developed some unusual shades. He has a new hybrid pink, not entirely set, that promises to be popular.

The Market.

Market conditions during the last week showed a slight improvement over the previous week. The weather has been warm and there has been no rain for about two weeks. Consequently, outdoor stock is not doing so well as it should. Some of the growers are somewhat anxious about their late asters. With a good, soaking rain now, the crop of late asters would come along in fine shape and a rain would also continue the length of the gladiolus season. Asters at this time are abundant and good stock is offered at from 1 to 3 cents each. The supply of gladioli is getting smaller each day now, but excellent Schwaben and America are seen. Many other varieties are seen, but not in any particular quantity.

Roses are also in fair supply, but the heat of the last few days is noticed. They are not so sturdy and not so full in petals. Columbia and Ophelia are holding up well, as also are Premier and Butterfly. There is a fairly heavy demand for these. Whites are also in heavy demand. Zinnias are more plentiful than ever before in this market and are of splendid quality. Their popularity is increasing also and they have a ready sale.

There is a fair supply of dahlias reaching us, but they do not hold up well on account of the heat. Carnations are reaching us in limited quantities, but a good shipment of reds reached us this week-end and sold well. Whites and pinks are extremely scarce and will be for a while. African marigolds in wonderful shades of lemon and orange are quite plentiful and sell rapidly. Lilies are scarce. Orchids and valley are in meager supply and the demand is not large.

A good quantity of montbretia is seen daily and finds a ready sale, being of such a striking color. Marigolds and helianthus are also in fair supply and sell finely. Hardy larkspur in various colors is seen, but the demand is not extra large. Quantities of auratum and speciosum lilies are seen.

Miscellaneous flowers, including cosmos, physostegia, gaillardias, snapdragons, candytuft, daisies, cornflowers, scabiosa, sweet alyssum, achillea and white mountain flower, are all in profusion.

The market is well supplied with maidenhair fern and good local-grown asparagus is reaching us. Other green goods are plentiful and meet all present demands.

Various Notes.

A description of the Rochester industrial exposition, horse show and flower show, held during the last week, will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Among the many visitors to the trade this week were H. Blend, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Miss Leavitt and party, of Elmira, N. Y.; J. H. Ward, of Mumford, N. Y.; W. E. Joy, of the Joy Flower Shop, Columbus, Ga.; Mrs. M. Cleary, of Palmyra, N. Y.; Samuel H. Edelman, of the S. Hanfling Co., New York; R. E. Blackshaw, of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; Morris M. Cohen, of New York, and H. S. Morgan, of Le Roy, N. Y.

Another new flower store will soon be opened at 347 North street and will be owned by Tiore Avante, of Utica, N. Y. He also runs a store in Utica.

J. B. Keller Sons had an elaborate wedding decoration this week on Wellington avenue, at the home of W. F. Folmer. The home was profusely decorated with strings of asparagus, large quantities of gladioli and Ophelia roses. The color scheme was lavender and white. The bride's bouquet was of valley and orchids and was choice and artistic in arrangement.

Most of the uptown hotels and nearly all of the leading flower stores on Main street showed large floral horseshoes in recognition of the well-known horse show held in the city.

Hubert B. Stringer, of George B. Hart, is spending a several weeks' vacation in Canada, north of Toronto. George De Muth is also away on vacation.

Many beautifully decorated baby carriages were seen last week at the baby show. One prize-winner, the work of J. B. Keller Sons, was daintily arranged with pink asters, Columbia roses and larkspur.

Brooks the Florist had a large rainbow wedding for September 10, which was composed of six bouquets, six baskets for flower girls, a decoration at the hotel and decoration at the church. Roses, asters and gladioli were used extensively.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ehle are on an automobile trip to Philadelphia and Atlantic City, N. J., for two weeks.

H. Brooks, formerly of George T. Boucher, is now connected with Alberts the Florist. Miss Harvey has returned from her vacation in the mountains.

The Hart & Vick Co. has received a large shipment of bulbs from Holland. The company has issued an attractive fall catalogue. H. J. H.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

Another dull week with a plenteous supply is the report of the market. To give an idea of the supply, it is only necessary to say that the street sellers were unable to handle the surplus. This also will give a good idea of where prices went. Easter lilies only were scarce. These were, perhaps, more in demand than any other flower. The Easter lily has become a favorite for funeral sprays. Shipments from out of town were absorbed as soon as they arrived, while fine stock of other flowers was going to waste. There is not much danger of a summer crop of lilies having a glut with which to contend. Roses were overplentiful. The same may be said of gladioli and asters. All were fine stock, but there was not a sufficient volume of business to use them.

Anticipating the Pageant.

Nothing is being talked of so much these days as the street pageant to be held in October. John J. Perry, the chairman of the committee having it in charge, had his committee together again Monday, September 5. Between the time of the first meeting and this one, every florist in the city had been canvassed and the members, as each one reported on the list of those he had visited, were most enthusiastic. In the first place, the amount of money that will be required to put this pageant over on a big scale is assured. The committee is now at work on the idea of having floats with a distinctive meaning; for instance, historical floats, such as the landing of the first settlers of Maryland on the shores of St. Mary's county, all with a background of flowers. Then there will be the more modern floats, showing the use of flowers on festive occasions in the home at the present time.

Robert Halliday has been put in charge of the amateur section and he is right at home here. His business will be to see that the private touring cars get a good share in the peagant. He is full of his subject; his coat is off and he is lining up cars that are going to be a big surprise.

Joseph Merritt says we are on our way. It means work, but we cannot afford to fall down. Robert L. Graham, Jr., was at the last committee meeting and, when Mr. Graham says he had his eyes opened, you will have some idea of what the committee is doing. Robert Johnston is in a deep, brown study. You cannot get a line on him, but he is studying out something unique to represent his firm. George Eberle is another who is planning a big stunt and Joseph Cummings says it took the entire park board to deprive him of first prize last year, but this year he is going to have nothing but commercial florists to compete with. The Isaac H. Moss Co. needs no better float than just a duplicate of the evergreen display the company had at the Washington convention.

The idea of the committee is a mammoth flower show on wheels, where at least seventy-five per cent more people can enjoy it than if it were held in a hall, and the idea is for every florist in the city, no matter how small he may be, to be represented. It's the idea that counts. Tate.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Business the first part of last week was exceptionally slow, but toward the end of the week it showed a considerable increase. However, there seems to be a large stock of everything seasonable. From the looks of the local markets, it seems that every farmer in this vicinity has grown gladioli or asters. The farmers find that the market value of gladioli this year is small. The prices at which they are offering these flowers are so low that the wholesale houses cannot compete with them. American Beauty roses are not so plentiful. The shorter grades move slowly. Other roses are of good quality, especially Columbia and Ward. The yellow chrysanthemums continue to come into the market daily and move out rapidly. Lilies continue to hold their own prices and are practically cleaned up daily. There have been good Sprengeri and plumosus in the market during the last week. Dahlias are beginning to become one of the factors of this market and, no doubt, will arrive in quantities shortly. Carnations also made their appearance last week and the quality is exceptionally fine.

This week the Dahlia situation was rather discouraging to the grower. The finest varieties of good dahlias were sold at $1 per box, or less than 1 cent per flower.

Various Notes.

The big florists' meeting scheduled for September 20 promises to be a greater success than even at first anticipated, as practically every florist in the city is showing a lively interest in it. Everyone realizes that the speakers engaged are men who can tell us some things worth while knowing. The banquet is to begin promptly at 6:30 p. m. in the English room at the Fort Pitt hotel and, from the manner in which banquet tickets are being bought, it seems certain that almost every florist will attend. Music will be furnished by the well known, fun-making, colored Homer Lindsey quartette, insuring liveliness throughout the meeting. The speakers will be called on for their messages. and family are spending a short vacation at Canfield, O.

John Mitchell, of the Alpha Floral Co., and family have just returned from an automobile trip through northern New York and Canada.

W. A. Clarke, treasurer of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has just returned from his vacation at his summer home, on Lake Chautauqua.

The improvements at the range of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Bakerstown, are far under way and it is the hope of the officers that the new equipment in this range will be ready for operation about October 1. Three new boilers have been installed. H. J. H.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The weather last week was against us, for it has been so hot that everything is arriving in quantities that fairly swamp the demand. There is no improvement to be noticed on the market. If anything, business has been a little slower than it was the week previous, with the exception of a day or two. Asters are a drug on the market, there being hardly any call for them. For some reason or other the wholesalers do not seem able to give asters away, probably because everybody has them in his back yard.

funeral and wedding work. It is surprising to note the number of weddings taking place at this time of year and especially this year. Roses are coming in plentifully and, so far, have been cleaning up fairly well, there being more of Ophelia and White Killarney on the market than anything else. The first carnations made their appearance last week and the outlook for them for the coming season is good. Easter lilies have been scarce, while the demand for them is good. Dahlias are arriving in quantity, but the weather is too hot for them and they do not hold up as they should. A little cool weather will do them good. Gladioli are just about done for, a few still straggling in, but the quality is inferior. Tritomas are now coming into the market in fairly good quantity and are moving nicely. Fancy fern has been rather scarce lately, but some good plumosus has been coming into this market.

Various Notes.

Stephen Berthold, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., has ordered a new Ford sedan.

T. B. Stroup, of New Philadelphia, O., was a recent visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Tong, of Ashtabula, O., were here to arrange for the decorations for a big wedding.

William E. Pennick, of Wooster, O., was a mid-week visitor. W. A. R.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The last two weeks have shown a picking-up in business. True, the weather has been exceedingly hot, but, in spite of it all, people are beginning to drift back home after their vacations. Roses continue to be the principal flower. They are still in excess, although the quality remains poor. Good roses, however, sell well and bring a good price. Carnations are coming in more freely now and the quality is improving. Asters and gladioli are scarce, but dahlias are beginning to come in, now that we have more rain. They make up for the lack of asters. French bulbs are practically all in and the quality seems good. Dutch bulbs have not yet arrived.

Various Notes.

There has never been a time in the history of Nashville when there was as much building going on as at present and everyone feels that this will mean abundance of work for the ornamental man and the landscape gardener this fall and spring. Most of the trade are laying in an abundant supply of coal, so that, if we have the threatened labor and transportation difficulties, no one will be caught.

Harold Joy is back from the S. A. F. convention at Washington, D. C. He reports the best convention he has ever attended. After the meeting was over, Mr. Joy visited a number of large ranges in the east, taking note of whatever he thought would be of value to the business at home.

Leo Geny is back on the job, having spent nearly a month on a vacation in the north. Oscar Geny has been seriously sick for the last few days.

Next week is state fair week and the trade is expecting to put up a better exhibit than ever before. State fair is coming to be looked upon as an opportunity for good advertising by the local florists.

Charles Tritschler has been propagating evergreens and other hardy ornamentals. He says the time is coming when we shall all be glad for Quarantine 37.

McIntyre Bros. are giving their greenhouses a complete overhauling. They have things in excellent condition for the new season's business.

Only a month until the Tennessee State Florists' Association holds its annual meeting at Chattanooga. In the past the meeting has always been held in midwinter, but it was thought that this year it would be an advance step to hold the meeting in October and to put on a good chrysanthemum show with it. The association has been following the plan of meeting one year in one of the large Tennessee cities and the next year in another. The meeting was held in Memphis last year. Efforts are being made for a good exhibit and everyone feels that the meeting will be the best ever held by the state association.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

There is still little change in the market. The demand is exceptionally good for this season of the year and the supply is, perhaps, below normal. Roses are of good quality. Carnations are lengthening out a little and are coming in a little more heavily. Probably in no previous season has so much outdoor cut stock been disposed of at good prices. Shippers have used much more than usual this year. Later plantings of gladioli are still good and bring $4 to $6 per hundred. Asters will soon be gone. Quantities of 3-inch and 4-inch cyclamens and begonias are being shipped now.

Various Notes.

Mr. Nelson, a rose grower, who has been with Martin & Forbes, of Portland, Ore., visited here a week ago.

L. J. Fischer, of the Park Floral Co., of Trinidad, Colo., was a visitor also.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago, will soon establish a branch office here, with Fred Meyer, 1720 Rosemary street, in charge.

E. P. Neiman, of the Park Floral Co., is spending a week on a fishing trip, previous to his departure for a tour of the east. B. E. Gillis has just returned from the Pacific coast.

Albert Kluge, truck driver for Fred Maler, accidently killed a boy of 14 years Thursday afternoon, September 8. The boy, who was riding a bicycle, evidently became frightened at the sound of the horn and rode directly in front of the heavily loaded truck.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Little change was noticed in the market last week. However, September seems to have started fairly well and, if the weather continues the same, the month will be better than September last year. Of course, the increased demand for flowers in this month is due to the fact that the hundreds of people who were away on their vacations have returned.

Frequent rains have improved the outside stock considerably and most of it is in ample supply. Dahlias form the backbone for the outside stock this time of the year and, now that they are getting plenty of water, they are looking fine and are cleaned up well at all times. Some of the fancy ones have made attractive window displays for the retailers and have increased the sale of them wonderfully. Asters are not good and few that are seen are usually thrown away. Buddleias continue to come in steadily and find ready sale. Zinnias are also arriving in large quantities. Delphiniums are seen occasionally and then they are only of second grade. Gladioli are scarce and poor. Roses are plentiful and, the demand not being great, many of them have gone to waste. They are good and in normal times would no doubt find ready sale. White is the only thing that is cleaned up and this only happens at times. But, since there have been a considerable number of weddings of late, white roses have felt a slight demand.

Flower Show.

Louisville flower buyers are treated this year to a real flower show, held at the state fair, September 12 to 17 inclusive. Never before in the history of the trade was there as much interest shown or as much hard work done to accomplish what has been the ambition of some of the city's oldest florists. Half the floor space of one of the large exhibition buildings has been given the florists for their show and fifteen exhibitions are utilizing the entire area. Prizes are awarded every day and premiums amounting to $450 in cash will be given.

Philip Shaid, of the F. Walker Co., is managing the affair. Following are the firms that have exhibits: The C. B. Thompson Co., Henry Fuchs, the William Walker Co., Marret & Miller, the F. Walker Co., Kunzman Floral Co., Nanz & Neuner, E. T. Wiggington, Victor Mathis, Louisville Nurseries, the Jacob Schulz Co., the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and the Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago. E. G. FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

General trade has been about the same, with a slight tendency upward. Excellent stock is now being shown in all the shops. Outdoor stock continues to be plentiful and of good quality.

Various Notes.

The Doswell Floral Co. is now putting the glass in the new houses. The firm has a large quantity of cherry plants that are excellent in quality. The rose stock is looking fine and the mums were never in better condition. John Doswell has had serious trouble with his throat lately. He has had his tonsils removed and he is already feeling better. Dwight Shirey, who has been with the firm, is leaving for college.

The Lanternier Florists report business as about the same.

Ralph Tinkham, of the House of Flowers, has had a busy week.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting some fine Cattleya labiata, as well as Vanda cærulea and Oncidium varicosum. Their new orchid house is progressing nicely and will soon be ready for use. C. A. Max has been engaged to look after the growing of the carnations.

Mr. Mahoney, of the Indianapolis Reed Co., was a trade visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom and sons, Flick, George and Donald, motored to Decatur, Ind., where they spent the week-end as guests of relatives.

The Blossom Floral Co. reports business as good during the first week in September, with funeral work in the lead. The company has several wedding orders booked for the next two weeks. This firm reports an excellent telegraph business during the summer months, wire orders averaging thirty per cent of the total business during July and August.

It Makes Selling Easier

Six editions have been printed and sold—no other book for Florists ever had so large a sale.

With this Album the Florist can show his Customer, in handsomely printed pictures, how a Design will look when finished. The Album makes it easier to take an order and its use usually leads to a LARGER AND BETTER ORDER than could be taken without it.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

A good many seedsmen, while hoping for the best, look for another hard winter before conditions admit of easy breathing and sleepful nights.

Onion sets in the Chicago district have been favored by the drought, and are small and firm. There is an upward inclination to prices, as the crop is not large.

Visitors to Chicago last week included Walter Hamilton, of the Madson Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis., and J. K. Rugowski, of the J. K. Rugowski Seed Co., also at Manitowoc.

All Holland and French bulbs will get into this country ere the new tariff goes into effect. One seed house calculates the saving this effects on its bulbs will total about $6,000 this fall.

Shipments of all its imported bulbs have been received by the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, so that all orders may be filled completely as to varieties, a rare occurrence, President R. B. Howe states.

The first two autumn bulb catalogues reached this office on the same day last week, one from Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, and the other from the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago. That of the Thomas J. Grey Co., Boston, followed a day after.

In the dahlia trials at Wisley Gardens, England, held by the Royal Horticultural Society this season, Jean Kerr, from W. Atlee Burpee & Co., won an award of highly commended. Toreador and La Grosse Bete, from J. Scheepers, were commended among the peony-flowered.

Last week brought reports of receiverships for Ross Bros. Seed Co., Wichita, Kan., and the Randall-McLoughlin Co., Seattle, Wash. S. A. Rogers & Co., Newark, N. J., were sold out last week under the receiver's orders, as reported under the head of "Business Embarrassments" on a forward page of this issue.

The third conference regarding French bulb prices held by British members of the trade in London resulted in the unanimous passage of a resolution "that this meeting expresses satisfaction with the past conferences on the French bulb prices question and decides that individual firms desirous of purchasing should do so at whatever prices they can now obtain; but that as regards next season, earlier action be taken to coöperate with the American buyers, which this meeting believes to be as much in their interests as our own."

Much more timothy seed had left growers' hands by August 29 than at a corresponding date last year, according to reports received by the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the Department of Agriculture. The movement, taken as a whole, is nearly seventy-five per cent greater than the belated movement that took place last year and fifty per cent greater than two years ago. In the most important districts $3.60 to $3.85 per hundred pounds was offered growers, compared with $6.50 to $7 last year and $9.65 to $11.25 two years ago. The quality of the 1921 crop in practically all sections except northern Missouri is superior to that of the 1920 crop because of its better color and smaller percentage of hulled seed. Iu southern Minnesota the difference is particularly marked, the 1920 crop having been badly hulled.

C. C. POLLWORTH CO., MILWAUKEE, WIS.

DECREASES in the production of red clover seed estimated at thirty per cent to forty per cent and of alsike clover at twenty per cent to thirty per cent below the 1920 production are shown in government reports received during the week ending August 27. In almost every important section the acreage cut for seed and the yield per acre are less than last year. Drought and hot weather during the summer were the predominating factors in causing the acreage and yield reduction, although in some sections winterkilling and "green worms" (lesser cloverleaf weevils) thinned the stands materially. The harvesting of both red and alsike clover seed began about two weeks earlier than last year, under generally favorable conditions. Much lower prices were being offered to growers than prevailed last year and two years ago.

THE production of white clover seed in Wisconsin this year is estimated to be about one-half as large as the 1920 production. The acreage cut for seed is the same as last year, according to data obtained by the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the Department of Agriculture, but the average yield per acre is about fifty per cent less. Growers were receiving $25 to $33 per hundred pounds, basis country run, and $33 to $40 per hundred pounds, basis recleaned, for their white clover seed the last of August. The short crop has given a firmer tone to the white clover market during the past few weeks. Fairly large quantities of imported white clover seed are coming in, however, and are reported to be offered at $38 c. i. f. New York. The acreage of white clover cut for seed in Idaho this year is less than one-third of 1920, while a slightly increased yield per acre is reported.

TARIFF CHANGES ASKED.

Recommendations regarding the Fordney tariff were presented before the Senate committee August 31 in a statement by James McHutchison. He with William F. Gude represented the Society of American Florists and Kirby White and Curtis Nye Smith represented the American Seed Trade Association. A previous conference had been held of the floricultural interests August 18, engaged in by F. R. Pierson, James McHutchison, J. C. Vaughan, Kirby White and E. A. Robinson, the latter representing the American Association of Nurserymen. So a united front was presented to the Senate committee.

THE LILY HOUSE

25 Murray Street NEW YORK

ask for reductions except when the increase exceeds 100 per cent of the present tariff. Our recommendations will increase rather than decrease the revenue, but will not further unnecessarily depress business.''

The changes in the duties on bulk recommended were as follows, the rate being per thousand in each case:

	Present tariff	Fordney tariff	Rate asked
Tulip	$0.50	$4.00	$1.00@$2.00
Narcissus	1.00	4.00	2.00
Valley pips	1.00	4.00	2.00
Lily	5.00	4.00	6.00

The other items, including valley clumps, hyacinth and crocus bulbs in paragraph 751, were stated to be satisfactory.

The paragraph on nursery stock was asked to be changed, solely for the purpose of clearer understanding, the rates proposed being satisfactory.

In conclusion, a plea was made for specific duties in every case possible, since the American-value plan of ad valorem duties was considered impracticable on horticultural commodities.

LOSSES IN SAN JOSE FIRE.

To give accurately the figures regarding the company's losses in its recent fire, some estimates of which have been made in print elsewhere, the California Seed Growers' Association, Inc., San Jose, Cal., gives the following authoritative statement as to the amounts of seeds lost:

	Lbs.
Onion	55,200
Lettuce	20,000
Beet	52,000
Carrot	20,000
Radish	10,000
Mustard	8,000
Endive	3,100
Celery	200
Parsnip	1,300
Leek	150
Salsify	900

In addition to the above, the fire destroyed quantities of uncleaned beet and radish seed, empty bags, seed sheets and cleaning mills and other equipment. The value at the cost price is $73,000 and the insurance was $57,400.

MORE FRENCH BULBS.

The French steamer Providence, from Marseilles, brought into New York harbor September 6 consignments of French bulbs totaling 1,134 cases. The consignees were as follows:

Consignee:	Cases
Drevon-Tegelnar & Co.	42
American Bulb Co.	334
Maltus & Ware	14
Meyer, Charles F., Corp.	84
Scheepers, J., & Co.	58

Van Waveren, M., & Sons	204
Vandegrift, F. B., & Co.	65
Vaughan's Seed Store	250
Farquhar, R. & J., Co.	33
Total	1,134

The number of cases in this shipment added to the 14,416 cases already received makes a grand total of 15,550 cases received up to the present time.

CATCHING THE PUBLIC EYE.

The unheeded opportunities for publicity in the thousands of pieces of daily mail sent out by a seed house have been recognized by a few and salvaged to their own profit by a lesser number. Among those who have seen the way and followed it is R. B. Howe, president of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago. He has just received from the printers 100,000 envelopes, of correspondence size, on which appears a two-color adaptation of the slogan picture presented for seedsmen's use by a publicity concern last spring. In green and blue appears the picture of a suburbanite, presumably, spading his garden. Underneath, on the square flap, is the slogan, "Plant a Garden, for Health and Wealth." Across the lower half of the envelope, in large type, appears the more particular slogan of the company, an effective chime to follow what is above, "Sow Barnard's Seeds."

DUTCH BULBS STILL COMING.

The steamers Ryndam and Luckenbach, both from Rotterdam, docked at New York harbor, September 6, with large consignments of Dutch bulbs that totaled 13,221 cases. The bulbs on board the Ryndam were consigned to the following:

SNAPDRAGON

Philadelphia Pink

Originated about seven years ago at the Allman Nurseries, Holmesburg, Pa.; has been improved by reselection until now it has become one of the best and most popular with the retail trade of any variety now grown.

Color: Beautiful shade of bright pink; produces exceptionally large spikes, displaying the flowers to fullest advantage, particularly suited for decorative work.

This variety grown from seed comes almost 100% true to color and type.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

W. E. THEE is planning to go into the nursery business at Akron, O.

THE Federal Nurseries, of Rochester, N. Y., have been incorporated. The capitalization is set at $25,000 and the incorporators are C. G. Schoener, E. B. Oliver and G. W. Oliver.

PLANTING of nut trees along the highways is advocated by the Department of Agriculture. Especial emphasis is placed on the black walnut, the timber supply of which was rapidly diminished during the war.

THE official roster of the McKay Nursery Co., Madison, Wis., is: President, W. G. McKay; vice-president, J. M. McKay; secretary and treasurer, L. J. Tucker. The nurseries are at Waterloo, Wis. The business was established in 1897 and is now capitalized at $60,000.

ERNEST F. COE, president of the Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn., will retire from that company and devote his time to landscape work. After October 15 his office will be at 951 Forest road, New Haven, Conn. The landscape department of the Elm City Nursery Co. is not influenced by Mr. Coe's retirement.

SOUTHERN NURSERYMEN MEET.

Business the Leading Topic.

More than 100 representative southern nurserymen and salesmen were present at the opening of the twenty-third annual convention of the Southern Nurserymen's Association, which was held at Chattanooga, Tenn., September 7 and 8.

The program announced that the convention was to be "a business meeting for southern nurserymen," and judging from the topics presented and the talks given, the program was carried out in both letter and spirit.

Promptly at 10 o'clock President Paul C. Lindley, of Pomona, N. C., called the opening session to order Wednesday morning, September 7. After an invocation by Harry Nicholson, of Winchester, Tenn., the convention was welcomed to the city by Robert S. Walker, representing the mayor and the Chamber of Commerce. To this, response was made by H. C. Caldwell, of Atlanta, Ga.

Valuable Addresses.

"Nursery Stock Investigations" was discussed by Prof. L. B. Scott, of Washington, D. C., who described a number of interesting experiments in producing plants from both hard and soft-wood cuttings, and from root cuttings. This division of the department's work will be of the greatest value to nurserymen, from the fact that experiments and studies are carried on under typical nursery conditions, in the open field, or frames, and in most cases in common soil rather than in propagating sand.

"Seedling Apples for Nursery Stocks" was the subject of an address by Prof. O. M. Watson, of Knoxville. In it reference was made to the value of seeds from different varieties, to the variations of the seedlings, and to their value for budding purposes.

Soil building and the modern method of seed inoculation as applied to leguminous crops, was covered by A. H. Mason, representing Earp-Thomas Co., of New York. This talk was illustrated by specimens of alfalfa roots showing results from untreated seed, partially treated seed, and seed treated with a scientifically prepared culture. The difference in quantity and size of the nitrogen nodules, and consequently in soil building value, was altogether in favor of the scientific culture.

Watson Talks on Advertising.

Possibly the address of John Watson, on "Nursery Advertising," created more general interest than any other address given the first day. The necessity of better publicity, better direct mailing material, better selection of mediums, better copy, as well as other items that go to make successful and profitable advertising, were treated in a fashion that appealed to all of Mr. Watson's hearers.

"Cost figures of nursery stock to be used in preparing inventory for income tax report" brought forth opinions from many members. This discussion was led by E. W. Chattin, A. L. Ligon and John Fraser, Jr.

Other speakers during the second day included S. W. Crowell, whose talk was entitled "Assorted and Resorted"; W. A. Easterly, on "Which—Winchesters or Budding Knives?" and Chas. T. Smith, on "Tired, Retired, and Rubber-Tired."

Important measures before the Georgia legislature were discussed at a special meeting Monday afternoon, September 5, at which time R. C. Berckmans stated the attitude of the Georgia legislature and board toward the nursery trade at large. The proposed bills will restrict in a large degree the business of "wild-cat" dealers.

Officers Elected.

The convention closed Thursday noon, after the selection of the following officers: President, C. A. Simpson, of Monticello, Fla.; vice-president, O. Joe Howard, Hickory, N. C.; secretary-treasurer, O. W. Fraser, Birmingham, Ala. The executive committee includes the officers, with S. W. Crowell, Rosacres, Miss., and Henry B. Chase, Chase, Ala.

Lexington, Ky., was chosen as the convention city for 1922.

PAINESVILLE, O.

The fall shipping season is near at hand and nurserymen are busy preparing for what we are hoping will be the heaviest fall season in our history.

The W. B. Cole nursery is building a large storage cellar, because the old one has become inadequate.

Joseph W. Kallay has just completed a large landscape planting of evergreens at Marion, O.

One of the features of the Lake county fair, just held, was the Storrs & Harrison Co. purse of $600 in the 2:30 trot.

The shrubbery and ornamental plantings which beautified the fair grounds were donated by the Lake county nurserymen in general.

James O'Leary, who has already started in the nursery business, intends to go into it more extensively next year.

Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor, O., is shipping large orders of hydrangeas. Mr. Hagenburger reports business as good for this time of the year.

George Martin is mailing his price list, which includes a nice assortment of perennials, shrubs, etc.

R. E. Huntington and H. G. Norton, of Perry, O., both had beautiful displays of gladioli at the Lake county fair.

Thomas J. Murphy is booking many orders for perennials and is looking forward to a busy season. T. J. M.

PLANTING PERENNIALS.

Will you tell me when to plant hardy perennials, such as ornamental grass? How shall I care for them?

harden them up and plant them out when the weather becomes settled. Such varieties as Arundo Donax, Eulalia japonica and gracillima should winter out with you. The variegated eulalias are a little more tender and it would be well to lift one or two clumps in late fall. Pack them in boxes and carry them over winter in a cool house, dividing and potting up clumps in spring. Select the best types to carry over, as seedlings prove somewhat variable.

ROCHESTER FLOWER SHOW.

Exposition Week Weather Ideal.

Beginning Labor day and extending throughout the whole of last week, the Rochester exposition enjoyed nothing but the best of weather. Promptly at 10 o'clock Monday morning, the mayor, Hiram E. Edgerton, formally declared the exposition open. Many thousands of people visited the show throughout the day.

The floral building, which, by the way, is particularly adapted for the exhibits, presented a woodsy looking appearance, due to the fact that the walls were entirely covered with arbor-vitæ and southern smilax. Here and there were pergolas painted in white, making a pretty contrast to the dark green foliage. From the ceiling were suspended a good number of wood baskets filled with zinnias in a profusion of colors.

It is authoritatively declared that this year's flower show surpassed any previous show held at Exposition park. This year there were more exhibitors, and the quality of the stock was exceptionally good. It was all well arranged and great care was taken all through the week to keep the stock looking its best.

The flower show committee, of which Charles H. Vick was chairman, has been highly complimented by the city officials on the excellent show that the florists and amateurs of the city put up.

At the Entrance.

At the main door to the floral hall the entrance was made particularly inviting by a massed arrangement of choice shrubbery and beautiful pine trees, the display of the Brown Bros.

BAUR & STEINKAMP
3800 Rookwood Ave. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Nursery Co. This exhibit was outlined by a mossed rockery and small ferns.

Perhaps the next thing that met the eyes of all was the wonderful bed of zinnias. This bed received much favorable comment. It was part of the exhibit of Hart & Vick, Inc. A few feet from this was a table on which choice dahlias were shown from the Cottam Dahlia Farm. These were arranged and the roots distributed by Hart & Vick, Inc. The choicer varieties noticed in this display were: Firecracker, Norma, Kalif, Gaity, D. M. Moore, Pride of Bridgeport, Union Jack, Golden Wave, Sweet Briar, Mrs. Fellows, Southern Bell, Yellow King, Aurora, Attraction, Snowstorm, King of the Belgians, Pierrot, Dr. Lewis, Little Bessie, Adelaide Swallow and Prince of Bulgaria.

A lengthy table of annuals and perennials was also shown by Hart & Vick, Inc., and included named varieties of gladioli, montbretias, statice, mignonette, asters, auratum and speciosum lilies, helianthus, gaillardia, candytuft, African marigolds and many others.

Alexander Lothian, landscape architect, exhibited a miniature house and showed excellent taste in the landscape work around it. There were walks, fountain, summer house and lily pond, with miniature shrubbery, etc.

Many Gladiolus Exhibits.

N. A. Hallauer, of Ontario, N. Y., one of the local gladiolus and dahlia specialists, exhibited thirty selected varieties of gladioli, among them being a splendid vase of Rochester White and an unnamed seedling, No. 18. His collection of dahlias included Insulinde, Mrs. Warnaar, Frank A. Walker, Frau Geheimrat Schieff, Latona, Golden West, Le Colosse, Pierrott, Rower's Pink, King of Autumn, King Albert, Bianca and Beatrice Slocum.

Jacob Thomann & Sons were represented by a large bed of gladioli of three varieties, Pride of Goshen, White and Augusta. The bed was outlined with ferns and rockery.

Schum Bros. made a good showing of gladioli and dahlias, part of which were arranged in baskets. Among their named varieties in gladioli were Flora, Herada, Mary Pickford, Myrtle, Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Pink Perfection, War

Montgomery's Priscilla

That's the name of the new pink rose! The name will be Priscilla probably after the public has had it a while, but we have had to add the prefix to cover the rules of nomenclature.

In order to get someone who knows more about roses than we do to give an unbiased, honest opinion on the merits of this rose, we have placed 12 plants of it with each of the following rose growers:

and White Giant. In dahlias many of the best named varieties were seen.

Max the Florist exhibited a large standing heart with base of red roses, which was much admired.

Table Decorations Attractive.

An elaborate set of dinner dishes with silver and a pretty table center of roses and small pink asters were shown by the Dudley Given Co. These dishes were changed three times during the week and replaced by other sets of equally beautiful ware.

A unique table was shown by David McGregor, Chamberlain and Grand avenues. At the opening of the show a handsome table center of Ophelia roses and montbretia was seen. Four corsages, showing different arrangements, were exhibited. For the two middle days of the week a beautiful bride's bouquet of White Killarney roses, with gypsophila and asparagus tied in the shower, attracted much attention and favorable comment. Friday and Saturday a dinner table decoration was shown. It was composed of a centerpiece of Columbia roses and montbretia, with eight miniature vases arranged with maidenhair fern, Columbia roses and miniature pink asters. Peacock blue silk was laid loosely between the flowers.

Arthur M. Newborn had a wonderful showing of strawflowers arranged in many different ways. Gift baskets, centerpieces, favors, corsages and funeral work was shown. The color combination was exquisite. Many different grasses, berries and cones and burrs were seen here, all in the same varied line of color effects.

Alberts the Florist decorated his table with a good assortment of ferns, window boxes filled with primulas and ferns, large and small baskets of flowers and some excellent bouquets of pink and white lilies. In the center of his exhibit was a large cibotium fern, through which many yards of yellow chiffon were strung.

Two tables were occupied by F. Schlegel's Sons, one of which was for named varieties of gladioli. The collection was fine, over thirty-five varieties being shown. On the second table three large baskets filled with seasonable outdoor stock were seen. Good specimen ferns were also shown in this exhibit.

George T. Boucher showed some excellent ferns, including good specimens of Boston, Whitmanii, Teddy, Jr., and Verona. Good vases of roses made this exhibit fine indeed.

George B. Hart showed some fine vases of Columbia, Pilgrim, Ophelia, Premier and Crusader roses, all grown at his Fairport range.

Thomas Cogger, of Melrose, Mass., and formerly of Rochester, had a table on which were over forty varieties of gladioli. Considering the fact that they

FRENCH HYDRANGEA

NEED ANY

HYDRANGEAS, that are good, that will bloom and that will return profits? Ours are very good this season, better than ever and they are priced right. As to varieties, we have them, all that are good, French and Otaksa, in any shade from pink to red, also white, while some come blue. Baby Bimbinette, Lilie Mouillere and Mme. Maurice Hamar especially good and in any quantity. They were grown in the field, but are now in pots and hurrying to root through and make themselves fit for forcing. We can supply them from 4, 5, 6 and 7-in. pots at 25c, 35c, 50c and 75c each; specimen plants from $1.00 to $3.00 each. No charge for packing. Delivery from Oct. 1, on. Get them early and have them established while they are full of life; it means so much to you. Order enough; business is on the mend; be ready with a big lot when money circulates again.

ROSES

Ramblers and Baby Ramblers, all on their own roots.

The Ramblers have been grown in the field for two years, every one tied up to stakes to ripen the wood; they are good. Dorothy Perkins, Excelsior and Tausendschoen, 30c each and charges for boxes.

The Baby Ramblers have been in the field for one year and have done well. The strongest only will be lifted. Do not compare them with budded stock, but as to blooming, they will do as well or better. Baby Rambler, Baby Tausendschoen, Clothilde Soupert, Ellen Poulsen and Erna Teschendorff. 25c each, no charge for packing. Delivery from early November on.

had been shipped a long distance, their quality was exceptional. He was introducing here the only gladiolus named after a Rochester girl, Helen Franklin. Among other varieties in gladioli he showed were Peace, Mrs. Watt, Evelyn Kirkland, Princepine, Mrs. F. K. Pendleton, Mrs. Francis King, Panama, Bertrix, Pride of Hillegom, Pride of Goshen, Pink Perfection, Crystal White, Goliath, Independence, Mrs. Keur, Gretchen Zang and others. The last two days of the week an exquisite collection of dahlias of the better varieties were seen, such as Madonna, Latonia, Rose Gem, Maude Adams, American Beauty and Mina Burgle. Mr. Cogger is exhibiting at the New York state fair this week.

Charles W. Curtis had a fine display of flowers and plants. He exhibited good specimen plants of coleus and begonias. One good-sized orchid plant showed several blooms. The window boxes filled with ferns and begonias were attractive. Excellent zinnias, lemon marigolds, asters and several large vases of gladioli completed this exhibit.

L. T. Bryant, of Newark, N. Y., had a good collection of between fifty and sixty varieties of gladioli. Of these three new varieties were greatly admired, Liebesfeuer, Golden Measure and Negerfuerst. Good vases of statice in lavender and white were seen, as well as a good quantity of bittersweet, which was hung in the background.

Vick's Fine Collection.

James Vick's Sons had a splendid collection of annuals and perennials, well arranged, which occupied considerable space. Their usual display of cut flowers included, in part, Crego asters, zinnias, candytuft, montbretias, lilies, marigolds, hydrangeas, spiræas, mignonette, gaillardia, coreopsis, helianthus, cosmos and Hyacinthus candicans. In gladioli, King George, Prince of Wales, Willy Wigman and Attraction were worthy of mention. A large bed of cherries had for background Amarantus Sunrise and Amarantus Sunset. The latter is new this year and is well colored in yellow and red. Their new aster, Peerless Yellow, was accepted as quite good. Some fine dahlias were seen here, among them being Darkness, a wonderful flower, rich in its dark, velvety shades.

Hans Müller, of Pittsford, N. Y., made an exquisite bed of cockscomb, Celosia cristata, in which there were many beautiful shadings in red and yellow.

H. B. Schell had an exceedingly good collection of gladioli, in which Mary Pickford, American Beauty, Germa, Flora, Pink Perfection, Liebesfeuer, Independence and Frank Pendleton were featured. His dahlias were also quite good, among them being Jack Rose, Mina Burgle, Morning Star, Queen Wilhelmina and Fashion.

Harold D. Phelps, landscape architect of the Pinnacle Garden Shop, prepared a fine grouping of shrubbery and evergreens. A brick walk, rustic furniture, and boxes of brick, red geraniums and small ferns were well arranged.

Not only were flowers seen in the floral hall, but literally all over the grounds. Large and small baskets of flowers were used to decorate the booths. In the paddock gladioli and asters were used extensively on the lower and higher jumps and other convenient spaces. Record-breaking crowds attended this year, the weather remaining ideal throughout the whole period. H. J. H.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

AMOUNT OF FUEL NEEDED.

Have any actual tests been made as to the difference in the amount of fuel required to heat a carnation house and a rose house during the winter months? If this subject has been discussed in a previous issue I have overlooked it and I shall appreciate it if you will give me the information. M. F. C.—Utah.

Not only will the amount of coal required for rose and carnation houses depend upon the average temperature outside, but the ratio between the amounts required for the two classes of houses will vary under the same conditions. With a minimum temperature of zero, a rose house will require about one-third more coal than a carnation house, while with 15 to 20 degrees above zero, as a minimum, a rose house will use nearly fifty per cent more coal than a carnation house.

Putting it another way, if a carnation house needs forty pounds of coal for each 1,000 square feet of glass, a rose house will make use of something more than fifty pounds each day in sections where the minimum temperature is zero, while sixty pounds per thousand square feet would be used to heat a rose house with the minimum 15 to 20 degrees above zero, provided, of course, forty pounds would be needed to heat a carnation house.

NUMBER AND SIZE OF FLOWS.

I have a greenhouse, 20 x 60 feet. It is six feet high at the sides and eleven feet to the ridge. It runs east and west, and has a tight, uneven-span roof, with the long span on the south side. There are two glass gables and there are thirty-six inches of glass in the south wall. The boiler house is at the southeast corner, below the house and the returns. I am going to use a Wilks boiler, 24 x 42. The heater will be connected with an expansion tank. Will you advise me as to the number of flows and returns and the correct sizes to use? H. C. H.—Wash.

The letter is not definite as to the minimum temperature that must be provided for. Taking 25 degrees above zero as a minimum, the house can be heated by using two 2½-inch flow pipes on the side wall plates and, after running them to the farther end of the house, by connecting each flow pipe with three 2-inch return pipes to be carried under the benches. This would require two flows and six returns. In case the temperature does not go below freezing, it will only be necessary to use two returns with each flow pipe. At the most not more than 300 square feet of radiation

Records are as important in the growing business as in any other business. Progressive growers who spare no effort in raising highest grade stock use Standard Recording Thermometers and know the great aid of keeping records of temperatures. Your equipment is far from complete if you have no Standard Recording Thermometer.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

COLORADO DAHLIA SHOW.

The first annual dahlia show of the Colorado Dahlia Society was held at the Rink, Denver, Colo., September 2 and 3. It was a great show. The large building was filled to overflowing with a gorgeous display of dahlias. Among the exhibitors were a number of growers who are professionals and many who grow for pleasure and sell some roots.

B. T. Townsend made the finest display of high-class varieties. They were wonderful. The price of a dahlia root has no terrors for Mr. Townsend if he wants it. He also raises some high-class seedlings of his own, that will be heard from in the future. The prizes in the professional classes went to W. W. Wilmore, R. T. Davis and F. W. Carlson, whose displays were exceedingly fine. The Sunshine Dahlia Garden and L. M. McHenry also had fine displays, as did many others in the amateur and semi-professional classes.

Much of the success of the show was due to the efforts of the committees in charge. The chairmen of the committees were as follows: Arrangements, George W. Beyer; program, B. T. Townsend; exhibition, Mrs. G. A. Warfield; decorations, R. T. Davis; music, Frank Corbin; publicity, J. A. Bixby, and prizes, C. R. Root.

The judges in the various events were: Class A—W. R. Hines, W. C. Borst and E. P. Miller; class B—W. W. Wilmore, B. T. Townsend and A. Kohankie; class C—S. R. DeBoer, R. T. Davis and F. W. Carlson; class D—George W. Gero, Lewis McHenry and George H. Beyer; open class, W. R. Hines, G. H. Reed and A. Kohankie.

Business is recovering slowly from the drop that took place during the warm weather. Though it is still warm, the people have generally returned to the city. Schools opened Tuesday, September 6, and the return to the city is usually timed with the opening of the schools.

The Canadian national exhibition, now going on in the city, has made a considerable amount of work for some of the florists, as many of the exhibitors keep their booths decorated during the exhibition. The display of ferns and plants in the Horticultural building is good. Prominent among the winners were noted the names of Sir Henry Pellatt, Thomas Manton and the Dale Estate.

There are plenty of flowers to take care of the trade. Two funerals of prominent men recently took a great many flowers. These were Sir Sam Hughes, former minister of militia, who organized the Canadian contingent, and Lionel Clark, lieutenant-governor of Ontario. J. J. H.

NEWARK, N. J

Now that Labor day is past and the vacation period is drawing to a close, Newark florists look for some improvement in their transient trade, although, because of the many people out of work, this naturally will not be so great as when general business conditions were better. There, doubtless, will not be any marked increase in the volume of business until after October 1.

There is still a scarcity of asters. The quality of these arriving is better than it was earlier in the season. Dahlias are weekly becoming more plentiful and the quality is improving. A few cosmos are coming into the market. Roses are more abundant than they were, but there is no overstock of them, as yet.

A notation in regard to the selling out of S. A. Rogers & Co. will be found under the heading, "Business Embarrassments." R. B. M.

Germantown, N. Y.—H. W. & S. W. Albrecht are building a new greenhouse, 26 x 100 feet, for their specialty, sweet peas, of which they are the largest growers in their section. They also are erecting a small house, 9 x 26 feet, for plants.

Okmulgee, Okla.—The Okmulgee Greenhouse Co. is planning the erection of a new greenhouse, 12x160 feet. Business is particularly good for this time of year. Carnations, mums and pot plants in large variety are ready for the opening season.

There are two ways of getting acquainted in the business world; one way is fair and square and the other way is NOT.—JIM.

Ain't that little statement just ringing with truth and ain't it easy to see whether or NOT a fellow has the goods? Jim thinks it is, for from the very start I've stuck to a plan that sooner or later will win.

I'm the guy you're hearing about that's turning out the wonderful JIM'S ELASTIC GLAZING PUTTY in a beautiful GRAY COLOR, that lasts longer than anything you ever used and sets up elastic just like my name says it does.

Another thing you've got to consider is that if you want to remove my material after it's been on a few years, it's easy.

On new houses you can use JIM'S ELASTIC for bedding and also for running over the top of the bar on old, leaky houses and man, oh man, you'll have a tight house.

Making a real gum glazing material in GRAY COLOR ain't hard, for my formula is like our ball team; it's a World's Champion. Respectfully yours, JIM.

If you haven't seen my material the treats are on me and I'll send you a free sample QUICK, if you use the coupon below or write me.— JIM.

The Market.

The supply continues almost as heavy as it was last week, but the demand has been a little better, causing less stock to be wasted. Roses continue in large supply and range in price from $2 up per hundred. Large quantities can be purchased at rare bargains. Asters are numerous, although fine ones are not so plentiful. Medium and poor ones predominate. Dahlias have been appearing in large quantities. Some of these are especially fine, but the price remains low on account of the glut in general.

Carnations are beginning to be a large item. The blooms are fairly good, but the stems remain short. These are priced at $2 and $3 per hundred. Gladioli are less abundant, although all that are needed are available. Lilies are plentiful at from $2 to $2.50 per dozen. Chrysanthemums are seen in some of the display windows, but these are the first of the season. Other miscellaneous flowers are zinnias, delphiniums, larkspur, cosmos, etc.

Allan Humason, of Chicago, has been calling on the trade. A number of out-of-town florists were in the city and called on various tradesmen during fair week. E. E. T.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Stimulated by the cooler weather, business the last week has shown a slight gain and the general sentiment apparently indicates an active demand during the coming season. Some of the finest asters seen this season are being displayed among the late offerings and these are giving the few early stort-stemmed carnations, mostly field-grown, that have put in an appearance a hard run. Roses are making a good showing from the early cuts and nearly all the growers report an encouraging outlook.

Gladioli are now at their height and it is wonderful what a great stride they have made in popularity during the last few years. Where, a few years ago, a limited number of stray spikes of somewhat indifferent quality were to be seen in the stores, now whole window displays are made of gaudy gladioli.

Various Notes.

W. A. Bowers, Inc., made a big run on gladioli Saturday, September 10, offering more than 10,000 spikes, the cut from one farm which they commandeered.

Archie Aikens, of the Colonial Flower Shoppe, was a business visitor in Boston last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Barker, of Warren, are on a vacation trip by automobile over the Mohawk trail and through the Berkshires.

B. M. Latham is cutting more than 500 spikes of gladioli for the Providence market daily. He has more than an acre under cultivation at North Scituate and expects to harvest at least 250,000 bulbs.

Frederick Dietz, of French street, was in New York and vicinity last week.

S. A. Dawson, representing the Burlington Willow Ware Co., of Burlington, Ia., was a caller upon the trade here last week.

Bowers & Reisnick are getting ready for an early opening of their wholesale department, stock for which is already arriving.

The Hoxsie Greenhouses, at Hoxsie station, has had its largest cut of gladioli in its history this year, running up to several thousand spikes daily.

Chipman, of Woonsocket, R. I., has been making some radical changes in his office, which has been entirely rebuilt, with new showcases, icebox and display facilities.

Miss Annie Peckham, of Carpenter street, has returned from a three weeks' automobile trip.

Peter S. Byrnes, of the Homogansett Greenhouses, Wickford, has had several large decorations at Watch Hill, Narragansett Pier and Point Judith recently.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe had a large wedding decoration last week.

Miss Ellen T. O'Connor has renovated her store at 289 Thayer street and is ready for the new season, for which she is optimistic.

Large numbers have visited the Hillcrest Dahlia Garden at North Scituate the last week to view the handsome display shown there. W. H. M.

Marietta, Ga.—Mrs. Henrietta Meinert has just completed the erection of an up-to-date greenhouse. She will make bulbous stock of all kinds a specialty and a small stock of blooming plants will also be grown. Two Atlanta flower houses have already ordered their flowers for the next season from Mrs. Meinert.

Introducing—

HALL'S
NICOTINE INSECTICIDES

—an improved group of tobacco products designed to completely control plant-lice, thrips and similar soft-bodied insects. Nicotine percentages guaranteed.

SPECIAL scientific processes of manufacture and a large supply of raw materials, permanently assured, enable us to offer this unusually effective group of insecticides.

Whether your problem is one of fumigating or vaporizing, spraying or dusting, you can absolutely rely upon one of the four Hall products.

Hall's Nicotine Insecticides are:

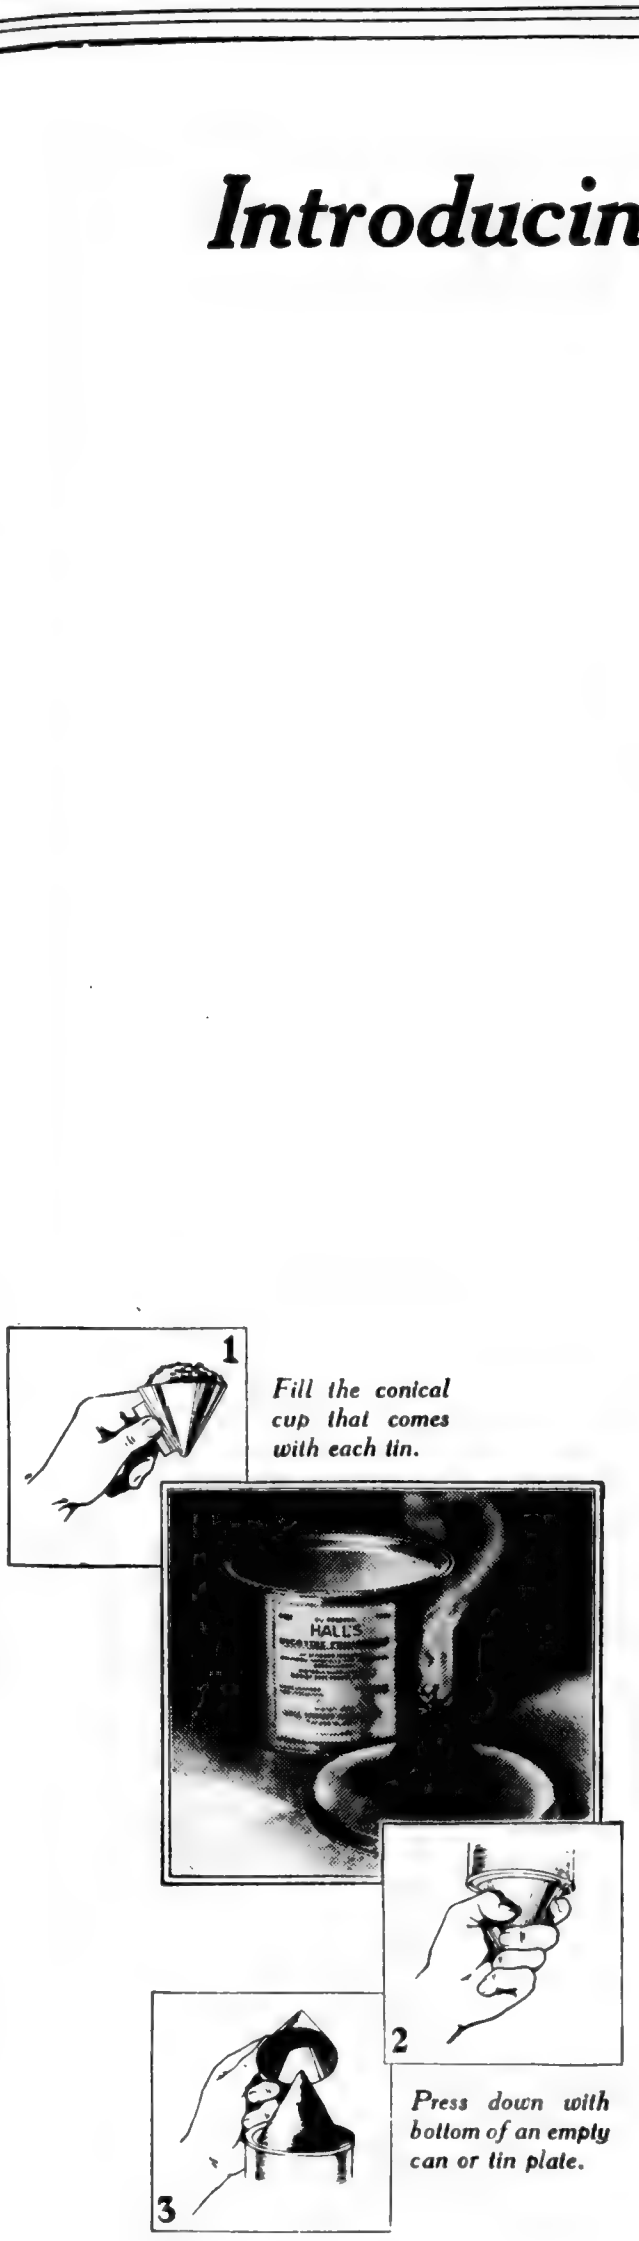
Hall's Nicotine Fumigator (12½% nicotine guaranteed) for fumigating greenhouses.

Hall's Free Nicotine (40% nicotine guaranteed) for greenhouse spraying.

Hall's Nicotine Sulphate (40% nicotine guaranteed) for outdoor spraying.

Hall's Tobacco Dust (1% nicotine guaranteed) for dusting.

As a florist, you are probably most interested in



Hall's Nicotine Fumigator

A specially prepared tobacco powder saturated with 12½% pure nicotine—guaranteed, which is the correct amount for economical and effective fumigation.

Simple to use. A measuring cup comes with each tin. That is all you need in the way of equipment. (See illustration.)

Hall's Nicotine Fumigator is packed in air-tight tins and retains its strength indefinitely. It lights quickly, burns evenly and will not go out. In addition to these improvements, Hall's is cheaper per ounce of nicotine content than any other fumigator.

1 pound tins, $1.25—2½ pound tins, $2.50—10 pound tins, $8.50. If your dealer cannot supply you write us direct.

BULBS

AMERICA FOR THE AMERICANS!!

You need no longer be dependent on The Netherlands for your Tulip supply.
Since 1914 we have raised Tulips in Michigan with great success and we are strong for them. You, too, can raise your own supply of Tulips. (See official report by the Department of Agriculture in the Florists' Review of April 28, 1921.)
If you are alive to a paying proposition, act at once and take advantage of this.

Owing to limited space on our farm at Grand Rapids, we are forced to sell the following named varieties at a sacrifice:
Early Tulips, Yellow Prince and Artus.
May-flowering, or Cottage Tulips, Caledonia, Gesneriana Lutea, Gesneriana Spathulata, Golden Crown and La Merveille.
Darwin Tulips, Clara Butt, Gretchen and Inglescombe Pink.
Planting stock, 2-year-old.....$6.00 per 1000
Planting stock, 1-year-old..... 3.00 per 1000

Grasp this: Next year you will pay $4.00 per 1000 duty on Tulips. Please send cash with order.

POINSETTIAS

TRUE CALIFORNIA POINSETTIAS.

This stock is grown from stock plants grown in California. They can be grown quite different from the old variety of Poinsettias. Last winter at times we would grow them real dry, then real wet, then in a 70 degree temperature, again in a 50 degree temperature to try them out.

After such treatment, we grew them with beautiful foliage from the ground up, and with an extra large bloom of the most dazzling splendor.

We are offering 2-in. stock of this same variety, as we grow no other, at $10.00 per 100.

HOOSIERS HOLD MEETING.

At Indianapolis.

The September meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held at the store of the Smith & Young Co., Indianapolis, Thursday evening, September 8. This arrangement of having the meeting on Thursday of fair week has for the last few years proved most successful, as a larger out-of-town attendance has resulted. Two new members were proposed for the association: H. E. Herr, of West Lafayette, and Professor V. H. Reece, a new instructor in floriculture at Purdue University.

A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis, gave a short address concerning the association's picnic, held last month. Thomas Sneider, of the Indianapolis transfer men's association, gave a short talk in regard to the injustice of the double license system in effect at the present time on commercial vehicles. This provides that not only a state tax be paid on such vehicles, but also a city tax of $5. Mr. Sneider explained how on large trucks a tax of $75 went to the state and only $5 to the city, yet the city streets are most depreciated by the trucks. Mr. Sneider felt that only one tax should be levied and that should be levied by the state and prorated to the city, according to the weight and travel done upon its streets. President Hitz appointed a committee to investigate the situation to see what could be done. This committee consists of E. E. Temperley, chairman, and Albin Schreiber.

Committee Reports.

A. F. J. Baur spoke in behalf of the program committee and stated that the October meeting would be held, as usual, about the first Tuesday in October and that some of the features of the meeting would be a talk by Harry Dietz, assistant state entomologist, and lantern slides of the international show held at New York. Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson will also furnish some slides for the meeting. Mr. Baur suggested that the October meeting be made a visiting day, to visit greenhouses in and about Indianapolis. Irwin Bertermann put this into due form of a motion, which was seconded by E. E. Temperley and carried unanimously. The good of the club committee was assigned to make the arrangements. Mr. Baur also spoke of the splendid displays of dahlias and gladioli made by Mr. Barnes and A. E. Kunderd, respectively, at the state fair. In response, Mr. Barnes gave an enlightening talk upon dahlia culture.

An invitation was extended by Baur & Steinkamp to hold the November meeting with them, which was accepted.

November 11 and 12 an exhibition will be held at Purdue University, which the association will make plans to attend. Particulars will be published later.

President Hitz commended Mr. Blackman upon his ability and fairness as judge at the fair exhibits and called upon the latter for some remarks. Mr. Blackman expressed his appreciation of the displays and praised the enthusiasm shown. He felt, however, that the exhibit could be made larger and that more Indianapolis florists should exhibit. John Kilcoyne, with John Rieman, and E. E. Temperley, representing Temperley's, thanked Mr. Blackman for his impartial decisions.

Professor Reece, of Purdue, told of his ambitions in regard to his new position and asked the coöperation of the florists. He stated his desire to have the florists' problems brought to him. The Purdue committee of the association was called upon to instigate such coöperation. The members of the committee are John Hartje, Indianapolis; A. Rasmussen, New Albany; J. H. Hill, Richmond, and A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis.

After the meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hosts. E. E. T.

Hicksville, N. Y.—William A. Finger, proprietor of the Mannetto Hill Nurseries, returned last week from a six weeks' vacation spent in northeastern Canada.

American Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

August 15th 1921.

Dear Sirs:

The two Steel Bar houses just finished for us are in every way entirely satisfactory. These houses are each 36 feet wide and 250 feet long with a center walk and four gables, having walls ten feet high. They are being planted to sweet peas.

Your workmen were gentlemen and mechanics as well. It was a pleasure to have them on the job and when we build more houses it would please us to have the same men again.

As for the Steel Bar house we hardly know how to express ourselves. When they were glazed and we had our first look at the finished structure, we could hardly believe that we were the owners of such wonderful buildings. Having close neighbors owning practically every make of greenhouse there is on the market, and being raised among greenhouse owners, living and working in and around greenhouses since we were children, we feel we can safely say that the Steel Bar revolutionizes greenhouse building. There is no comparison between the Steel Bar and the other styles for they are far more beautiful, much lighter and so simple and strong. You have done wonders in this new house and anyone who expects to build had better hold off until he sees the Steel Bar. We cannot say too much for it and the American Greenhouse Mfg. Company.

You have our good wishes. All the way through you did what was right and we like our houses very much.

Very truly yours,

This Extra House Will Increase The Profits
WHY NOT BUILD ONE NOW?

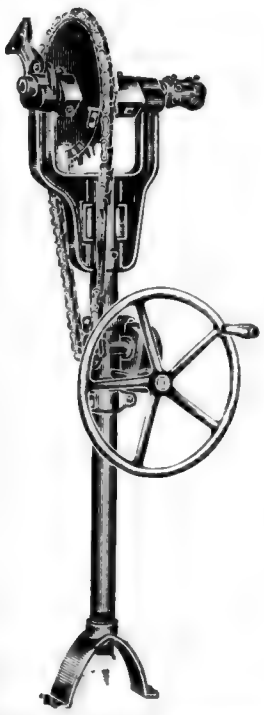
Erected for Aug. Priebs & Sons, Park Ridge, Ill.

THINK THIS OVER

Present evidence shows that the decline in commodity prices in general has about culminated. For the first time in nearly fifteen months the index of wholesale commodity prices shows a reversion in the steady decline, an advance of 2½% being recorded in July on some materials.

We believe the above indicates that price declines show signs of coming to a halt.

It is therefore advisable that you florists who have been waiting for lower prices on greenhouse materials should decide to build now, as there is still time to have your greenhouse completed before cold weather.



Even if you build only one additional house, AS MR. PRIEBS HAS DONE, you will cut down your overhead expense, thereby increasing your profits.

More About Strout's House

Two weeks ago you recall we showed you the exteriors of Strout's two new houses; one being Semi-Iron for propagating, the other an Iron-Framer, 60 ft. by 300 ft., for carnations.

Whitney, Mr. Strout's hustling young foreman, reckoned he could erect the house, provided we furnished a superintendent to get things started. So Mr. Strout let him prove it.

And by the jumping John Rogers, he sure did.

Both houses are a thoroughly workmanlike job from start to finish. You can go over it with a fine-tooth comb and find all the little things have been given painstaking attention and care.

It happens that this Iron-Framer, with its wide rafter spacing and Fink Cambered trussing, is the first of its kind put up in New England.

It is certainly an inspiring sight to go into that house. Its striking freedom from columns; its spacious air area; its surprising lightness; its sturdy strength indicated in every line of the construction, fill you with admiration and convincement.

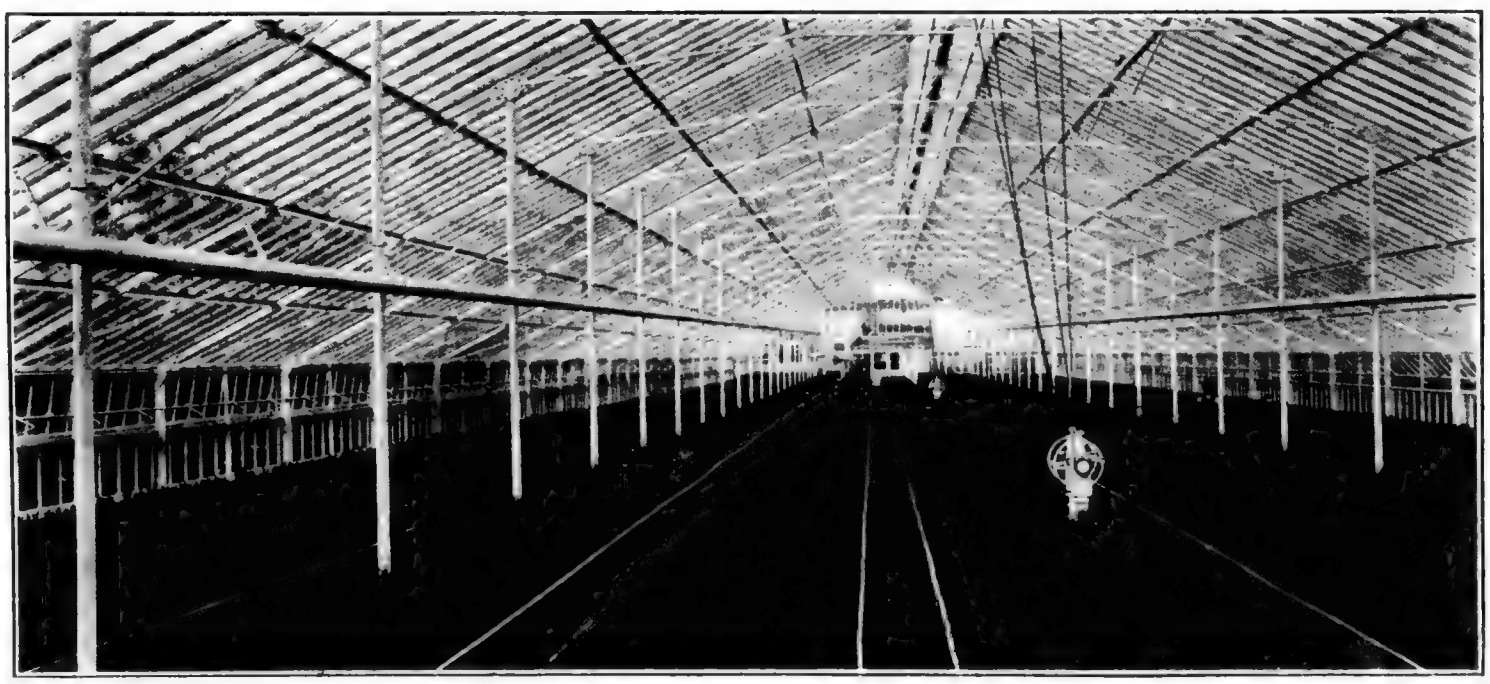
The overhead mains are painted a glistening white, not a dingy black. Note the anchoring rods extending each way from the center to the next column cap. No coils are fastened to the benches. They have independent pipe supports, set in concrete. Whatever happens to the benches, the heating remains undisturbed.

Here you see thousands of Strout's glorious Sunshine Carnations, neighboring happily with a half dozen or so other varieties.

From this house, Strout Incorporated hope to be able, for a while at least, to fill the ever-increasing demands of their customers, which extend from New York to even so far as Quebec and Halifax.

In addition to the fine service building, office and show room, recently completed, they have just finished a new power house equipped with two tubular boilers and a Custodis chimney. There is room for three more boilers to take care of the proposed future companions to the big house.

About the entire layout, there is everywhere evidenced that sincerity of purpose and carefully thought out action, which has characterized the Strout proposition ever since the first day Mrs. Strout inspired its conception. After all, a good wife is a mighty good investment.



Hats off to her, all of us.

Do You Receive What You Pay For?

Consider the different price lists published in the Florists' Review of September 8th, 192i. Read any four of them and note, if you will, the first Roses listed. One calls for Select, 12 to 15 cents; another, Select Long, 12 to 20 cents; another, Fancy Long, 20 cents; another, Fancy Long, 10 to 12 cents; another, Special, 25 cents.

WE ASK A QUESTION: Do any of them give you any idea as to the exact length of these so-termed grades? One does not know if these Roses are fifteen inches, twenty inches, or thirty inches. It is pot luck what will be given for any of these grades.

A retail florist, when ordering, knows what length is wanted and is disappointed if his order is not filled as anticipated.

Consider our system of grading. It cannot be more explicit. It is not necessary to order by inches, since, for the sake of brevity, we have employed a code to indicate lengths. For instance, when a customer desires 30-inch Columbia, the order would be written thus:

"100 COLUMBIA, FIRSTS"

It is understood that 30-inch—not 24-inch or 20-inch—stock is specified (which might be received when ordering one hundred Long Fancy, or Selects, or any of the various terms used).

If you want 24-inch Roses, why pay for 30-inch stock? Difference in length means difference in price. WITH OUR SYSTEM WE HAVE BEEN ABLE TO BRING A CONSIDERABLE SAVING TO FLORISTS. We have had many new satisfied customers. ORDER ROSES BY CODE. Try it for a time and note the advantages it gives you.

"Value Lies in What You Receive, Not in What You Pay"

Said a Florist to us the other day: "I bought a page in the ——— ——— just because its rate was so cheap."

"How cheap?" said we.

"$30 a throw," said he.

"What circulation do you think you get?" we asked.

"The man said 3,000 copies would be printed."

"Well," said we, "if 3,000 for $30 looks cheap, it isn't any wonder Review space almost sells itself, with 12,600 circulation for $37.50 a page."

"Do tell!" said the Florist, "I never realized Review rates were so low by comparison with what others charge."

"I have been well pleased with results obtained from my ads in The Review. I believe that in the future I will be a more consistent user of your columns."—L. E. Klopp, Kankakee, Ill., September 16, 1921.

The Denver WHOLESALE FLORISTS' CO.

DENVER, COLO

We are giving below some of the main reasons why we can at all times take care of our customers in a satisfactory manner.

We are centrally located, being only a few city blocks from all the railroad terminals of this western country. This enables us to take care of your orders and get them shipped out in shorter time than would otherwise be possible.

We do not depend on one source of supply, but have several of the largest greenhouse plants around this territory to draw from. Every one of our growers is near enough so the flowers can be cut in the morning, and in a few minutes be brought in from the various greenhouses. This does away with shipping and reshipping.

We do not cater to any great extent to the home market, our business being nearly exclusively shipping. On this account we are better able to please our customers than would otherwise be the case.

We carry a full line of supplies of the most common things that a florist is in need of, and on that account quite often our customers can save some in telegraph charges.

We also carry a full line of wire designs, and as our wire workers are constantly on the job, anything special can nearly always be made up on short notice.

DUTCH BULBS

All these are Holland-Grown

Florists who have visited us and have seen our bulbs, expressed satisfaction as to our quality. We handle one grade only—THE BEST.

Holland has had a very favorable growing season and by having our own experienced Holland buyer on the ground we were able to select the best from the large number of bulb growers. There are more than three thousand well organized establishments engaged in growing bulbs in Holland. We gladly invite florists to visit and inspect our stock, as we are then assured that you will purchase your bulbs from us.

IMPORTANT—Prices quoted here are F. O. B. CHICAGO. You have no duty or broker's fees to pay. Freight charges are much less, as we ship from Chicago and save you the heavy freight charges from New York. The prices are very reasonable for the high quality of bulbs we offer and are Twenty to Fifty per cent lower than last year. ORDER TODAY.

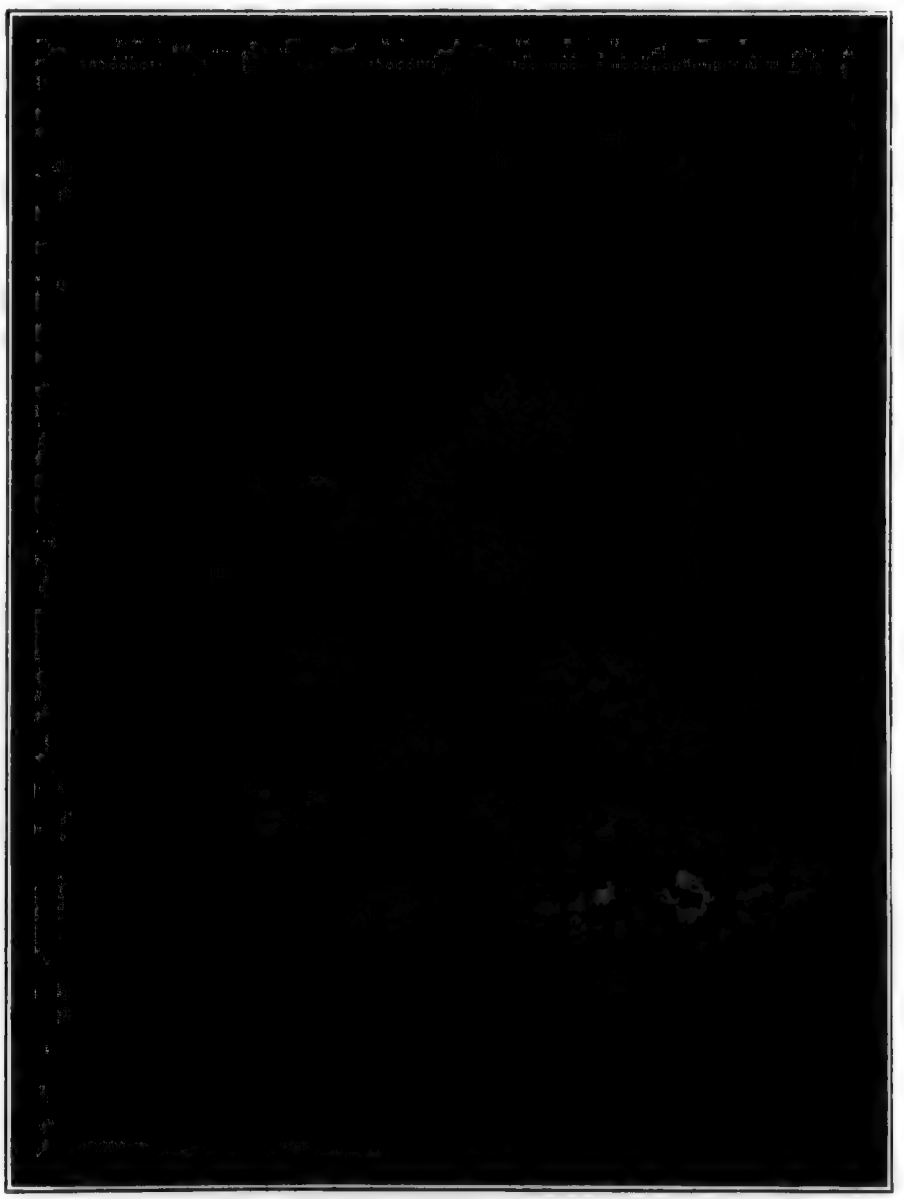
THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

LILACS IN LAWN AND LANDSCAPE

When florists try to boost their incomes in fall and spring by handling hardy shrubbery, one of their problems is the selection of shrubs that thrive in adverse conditions. In such endurance of hardship, few plants excel the lilac, but it deserves better treatment than it usually receives.



YOU KNOW the good-natured man, don't you? He is the man — surely you have met him—who is so even-tempered, so accommodating, so peaceably inclined, that inconsiderate people impose upon him. They step on his toes, kick his shins and bump roughly against him, literally and figuratively, for they are sure he will not retaliate.

You know, also, the good-natured shrub, commonly called the lilac. It has all the long-suffering patience of the good-natured man. It is persistently neglected and abused, just because it is slow to resent such treatment. It will cheerfully endure more hardship than almost any other plant. It has a wonderful faculty of returning good for evil. It will flourish and bloom to a fairly satisfactory degree in extremely unfavorable conditions; hence these are the conditions that are provided for it in a large proportion of cases.

Give It a Chance.

Now, the fact already indicated, that the lilac recompenses the grower so abundantly for so small an outlay of effort or expense, is a sufficient reason for its great popularity and a sufficient reason for continuing to recommend it to customers as one of the most desirable of shrubs. Many florists add a substantial sum to their fall and spring profits by the sale of shrubbery; probably other florists might do so if they pleased, and there are few shrubs that can be handled with more safety and satisfaction than the lilac.

But why not give the lilac a fair chance? If a florist not only sells shrubbery, but also plants and tends it, he has a fine opportunity to give a practical demonstration of the right methods. But he should not neglect the lilac and give all his attention, all the good soil, all the water and all the little special favors to the other shrubs, on the supposition that the lilac is perfectly able to take care of itself.

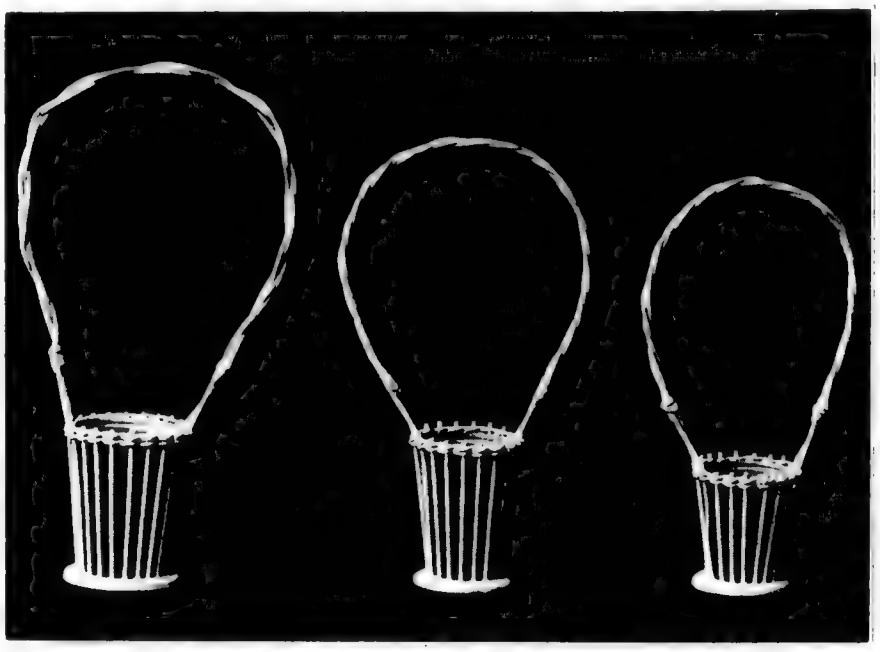
There Are Few Shrubs Equal to the Modern Lilac.

As Bad Habits Are Baffled.

Undoubtedly, one of the important points in the cultivation of the common lilac, Syringa vulgaris, is to keep the suckers in subjection. These are often considered a great nuisance and a serious fault of the shrub, but, like men's bad habits, they are easily conquered by cutting them out before they become strong. Of course the suckers sometimes spring up in multitudes and must be controlled, for, if allowed to multiply freely, they will so absorb the strength of the shrub or choke its growth as to retard the production of blooms. But the suckers do not become formidable except when long permitted to have their way. It is an easy matter to cut them out with a hoe when they are only a few inches high.

In the case of the grafted varieties of Syringa vulgaris, it may sometimes be especially important to beware of suckers, lest they insidiously usurp the place of the grafts and take complete possession. But the truth is that the grafted forms, when their growth is well established, seldom sucker badly, even though S. vulgaris is used as the stock. The suckers should be watched for, but are not likely to be numerous. If crown grafting has been used, the trouble with suckers has thus been reduced to a minimum.

If the suckers are suppressed, there is generally not much else that is needed to keep the bushes in shape, for lilacs are naturally of symmetrical habit and need but little pruning.



Points on Pruning.

It is true that they may become so overgrown and ungainly as to need heroic cutting back, but such a condition can result only from long continued and utter neglect. All that is necessary, in most cases, is to head back any runaway shoots and remove dead or weak wood. Such trimming usually should be done soon after the shrubs have finished blooming, so as not to destroy the next season's flower-buds. At this time the dead trusses should also be cut away, not only for the sake of appearances, but also to prevent the weakening of the shrubs by the formation of seeds.

A few words may here be ventured by way of comparison between S. vulgaris and its hybrids, though comparisons in this case may be dangerous if not odious. It is generally agreed, among nurserymen and others who are best informed on

In the case of the grafted varieties of Syringa vulgaris, it may sometimes be especially important to beware of suckers, lest they insidiously usurp the place of the grafts and take complete possession. But the truth is that the grafted forms, when their growth is well established, seldom sucker badly, even though S. vulgaris is used as the stock. The suckers should be watched for, but are not likely to be numerous. If crown grafting has been used, the trouble with suckers has thus been reduced to a minimum.

If the suckers are suppressed, there is generally not much else that is needed to keep the bushes in shape, for lilacs are naturally of symmetrical habit and need but little pruning.

Points on Pruning.

It is true that they may become so overgrown and ungainly as to need heroic cutting back, but such a condition can result only from long continued and utter neglect. All that is necessary, in most cases, is to head back any runaway shoots and remove dead or weak wood. Such trimming usually should be done soon after the shrubs have finished blooming, so as not to destroy the next season's flower-buds. At this time the dead trusses should also be cut away, not only for the sake of appearances, but also to prevent the weakening of the shrubs by the formation of seeds.

A few words may here be ventured by way of comparison between S. vulgaris and its hybrids, though comparisons in this case may be dangerous if not odious. It is generally agreed, among nurserymen and others who are best informed on the subject, that many of the hybrid forms are much superior to the old S. vulgaris—superior in size and texture of flower trusses, in richness and purity and variety of colors; superior, also, in resistance to mildew and other fungous diseases of the foliage. Undoubtedly that is all true, under ordinary conditions. But it is quite possible for the conditions to be so bad that even lilacs, though among the most dauntless of bloomers, will not bloom at all, and it seems that some of the hybrid forms are more easily discouraged by such conditions than is S. vulgaris.

An Instance and an Inference.

For instance, in a certain residential district in what might be called the inner suburbs of Chicago, where the air is somewhat smoky and the soil is nondescript, there are several good-sized specimens of Charles X and Rubra de Marley that have stood there for about seven years without producing a bloom, or the slightest sign or promise of a bloom. Apparently they have no more notion of blooming than a tramp has of working or bathing. Yet in the same yard some S. vulgaris and S. Josikæa have bloomed fairly well. Perhaps a little feeding with bone meal, or an application of lime to remedy any possible sourness of the soil, might have induced the hybrids to bloom, but they have been treated as considerately as the other varieties have. That instance, and others similar to it, have led to this inference: Though the hybrid lilacs may beat the old species completely when the chances are reasonably good, some of the older species may beat the hybrids when the chances are bad. That conclusion may not be correct, but it is offered for consideration if it deserves any.

With the foregoing proviso, this writer will humbly but heartily agree with the nurserymen and join in boosting the hybrids, for they are truly glorious. It would scarcely be possible to sing their praises too loudly.

A Wealth of Good Varieties.

Among the best of the hybrids, at least for use in the middle west, may be mentioned the following: Souvenir de L. Spaeth, single red; Charles X, single purple; Marie Legraye, single white; Frau Bertha Dammann, single white; Mathieu de Dombasle, double mauve; Alphonse Lavalle, double blue; Michael Buchner, double blue; President Grevy, double lilac; Mme. Lemoine, double white. And there are plenty of other good ones. Indeed, there is an embarrassing and bewildering wealth of fine hybrid varieties, so nearly equal in merit that a choice is difficult.

Here are a dozen lilacs, partly hybrids and partly old-timers, which will give two months of flowers, including both single and double forms, in a fine range of colors: Marie Legraye, oblata, Mme. Lemoine, macrostachya, Philemon, Michael Buchner, Charles X, Emile Lemoine, persica, chinensis, villosa and Josikæa.

Methods of Propagation.

Any of the old, typical species of lilac can be easily reproduced by seeds or suckers. The hybrids can be propagated by cuttings or by layering. However, most of the hybrid forms of S. vulgaris, as sold at nurseries, are grafted on privet or common lilac. The variety of privet that is principally used for this purpose in the north and in the middle west is probably Ligustrum amurense. In those latitudes the California privet is not hardy enough for such use. The Polish privet, a hardy, upright form that is comparatively new in America, will undoubtedly be tried as a stock.

Most nurserymen prefer to propagate the hybrid lilacs by grafting, for the reason that strong, marketable, satisfactory plants can be produced in that way more quickly and economically than by means of cuttings. It is generally admitted, however, that plants grafted on privet are not the most long-lived of stock, especially if attacked by borers.

Propagation by Cuttings.

Since own-root lilacs are the best in some respects and have the special advantage that every shoot produced is sure to be true, some florist may wish to grow a stock of the hybrids from cuttings. Of course, he may do so if he is willing to exercise the necessary patience. The cuttings should be taken before the wood becomes too firm. From the middle to the end of June is the best time for their propagation. Leave two eyes to a cutting, trim the foliage back well and place in flats in a frame. If there is a little bottom heat, all the better. Drain the flats well and put the cuttings in sandy loam. Spray several times a day. Give little air, close early in the afternoon and be sure that the glass is well shaded.

When the cuttings are nicely calloused, air more freely, and early in September remove the sashes entirely. By fall some varieties will have made a veritable network of roots; others are slower. Keep the flats in a coldframe, packed in dry leaves, over winter. Transplant carefully into nursery rows in spring. The second season some of the plants may be of sufficient size to sell.

POSTPONE CONVENTION.

The Tennessee State Florists' Association's convention, which was to have been held October 25 and 26, at Chattanooga, Tenn., has been postponed to November 1 and 2. The reason for this change in date is that the United Confederate Veterans will reunite on the dates formerly set for the convention. So make your arrangements to be in Chattanooga November 1 and 2 and we assure you a good time. One of the features of this convention will be the flower show at the Tivoli theater. This alone will be worth your attending.
